Lunar Dirt Tests Reveal No Life

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — The moon appears to be lifeless, first tests with lunar dirt showed Saturday.

Twenty-four germ-free mice which had sterilized and unsterilized moon dirt injected into their stomachs Thursday and another 240 mice who received innoculations Saturday all "are alive and kicking," said Dr. Korman Jones, preventative medicine specialist at the space agency's Lunar Receiving Laboratory (LRL) here.

"They have shown no untoward reaction to the sample and seem to be in very good health," Jones said. He added that the rodents "had even less reaction" than occurred with sterile material from earth used in earlier practice sessions.

Dr. William W. Kemmerer, LRL quarantine manager, said moon dust mixed with cultures containing six different types of human and animal cells and several kinds of bacteria has also produced no adverse reaction whatsoever.

"At this point in time, there is no indication of bacterial growth," Kemmerer said. "Preliminary work indicates no growth of any kind."

Absence of lunar life in the tests came as no surprise, since most scientists have long maintained that living organisms could not survive searing temperatures, solar radiation storms and lack of atmosphere on the moon. But it marked the first time they had any real evidence to back up that contention.

Officials say it is still too early to say conclusively that the lunar soil is free of any life, however.

Apollo 11 astronauts Neil A. Armstrong, Edwin E. Aldrin Jr. and Michael Collins—along with 16 other people in quarantine with them—also remained in good health and were reported to be "looking forward to getting out" Aug. 11.

The trio met Saturday with astronaut Donald K. Slayton, director of flight crew operations at the Manned Spacecraft Center, and Warren J. North, of the space agency's flight crew support office, to discuss how to improve spacecraft simulators used for training future moon-bound astronauts.

A briefing to discuss spaceship systems Sunday was called off because of the lack of problems that developed during the flight, Slayton said, leaving the crew with a day to relax and complete written reports of their mission.

Public affairs officer John McLeaish, in quarantine with the moon explorers, said they have followed "with interest" scientific knowledge being harvested as a result of their mission, but "most of their comments have dealt with more earthly things" such as football.

The three moon men have mentally adjusted to being locked up until their 21-day quarantine period ends, the official said.

Meanwhile in San Francisco, the head of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration said an American could step onto Mars on Aug. 9, 1982

Object of Terror

Festus—A policeman holds the pipe necklace that supposedly contained a bomb and was placed around the neck of a youth by a man who was angry at the boy's father. Eighteen-year-old Gary Miller, Festus, went through a tense 10 hours thinking a bomb had been placed around his neck Friday. Army demolition experts were called in, x-rayed the affair and found no explosives early Saturday.

Teacher Hangs Homemade 'Bomb' On Neck of Boy

FESTUS, Mo. (AP) — A 60-year-old high school teacher who was irked because someone put sugar in the fuel tank of his auto, was charged with felonious assault Saturday morning after authorities dismantled his "home made bomb" from around the neck of a 19-year-old boy.

Rupert M. Johnson, a teacher of vocational education at Crystal City High School, was held in lieu of $50,000 bond in Jefferson County Jail.

Gary L. Miller, who spent nearly 12 hours thinking the weird contraption made of pipe might explode at any minute, was recuperating from a night of drama that ended in the eerie light of a high school football field where bomb experts cautiously removed the device.

Police said the incident began at 3:30 p.m. Friday when Johnson came to the Miller home to complain about repair work Gary's father, Charles Miller, did on the Johnson car.

Sheriff's Deputy Irvin Ferguson said "apparently he (Johnson) thought there was still some sugar in the engine."

Oly the Miller youth was home, said Festus Police Chief Burl Rudisiale, and Johnson asked him to accompany him to his home to help convince Mrs. Johnson to buy a car.

Gary told officers that Johnson asked him to see a bubble machine invention in his basement and it was there the teacher displayed a .32 caliber automatic pistol and bound and gagged him. After he was blindfolded the pipe device was placed around his neck and tightened, Gary said. It consisted of four ½-inch diameter pipes connected by elbows.

The boy was allowed to summon his father and later a former circuit court judge, Edward T. Eversole was called to the Johnson home. All were held at gunpoint, police said.

Eversole ran into the bathroom and escaped out the window and in the confusion the elder Miller subdued Johnson.

Police said Johnson definitely warned the pipe collar would blow up if touched. He told officers that he made a similar one that he tested on a dog and that it had "blown the dog's head off."

Police could not substantiate the statement but took every precaution. Bomb experts from the St. Louis Police Department, 35 miles away, and the Granite City, Ill., Army Engineer Depot sought to determine if the device contained explosives.

A portable X-ray machine was brought and the experts worked feverisly trying to beat a one-hour deadline that Johnson mentioned as the time he set for explosion. Meanwhile a crowd of about 200 had gathered.

The boy was taken to the center of a high school football field but police and military men stood helpless while the final

Warm Greeting For President In Red Nation

BUCHAREST, Romania (AP) — President Nixon was swept up and almost overwhelmed Saturday by thousands of cheering Romanians who shouted "Nix-on, Nix-on, Nix-on!" and "Hoo-rah!" as they waved American flags.

The cheering began at Otopeni airport, decorated with U. S. and Romanian flags, as Nixon became the first U.S. president to make a state visit to a communist capital.

Welcomed by President Nicolae Ceausescu, the Communist party boss who has not feared to ruffle the feelings of the Soviet Union, Nixon at once made a bid for peaceful coexistence, saying: "Nations can have widely different internal orders and live in peace."

The cheering swelled to a roar as Nixon and Ceausescu set out in an open limousine for the 12-mile ride from the airport.

It was ironic that Nixon, long a fighter against communism in the United States, received in Communist Romania the warmest welcome given him anywhere on his round-the-world trip.

Romania's government assured a large turnout by letting workers cut short their Saturday half-day of labor. It moved many in by truck. But there was no doubt about the enthusiasm of the crowds. Police estimated the total at 500,000 and said it was more than turned out for Charles de Gaulle last year.

Three times during the drive into the city, throngs forced the motorcade to stop. When Nixon got out of the open car to shake hands, he sometimes was all but engulfed and nearly knocked off his feet. Ceausescu, smiling, got out with him.

The crowds began chanting Nixon's name when he cried in Romanian: "Long live Romanian-American friendship.' Some tossed bouquets into the limousine and shouted "Hoo-rah."

"That's him," shouted a woman. "I know his face. I have watched him on television when he was waiting for the American astronauts on that ship."

A man observed: "This would have been unbelievable only a few years ago." Said another: "This is a good thing for Romania."

The government had passed out U.S. paper flags for the crowds along the way.

Riding behind the presidential open limousine, Mrs. Nixon in a closed car came close to being overlooked by the crowd. Many did not see her and Mrs. Ceausescu pass by. Mrs. Nixon blew kisses to the crowd.

The crowds were so dense that Nixon's schedule was set back half an hour. Nixon himself said the reception was better than the fervent welcome he received as vice president in Poland 10 years ago to the day.

The President frequently stood up in the car, his hands raised high, and that familiar

Hearty Response

Bucharest—President Richard Nixon jubilantly acknowledges the cheers of apartment house tenants as his motorcade proceeds through Bucharest Saturday. The president arrived for a two-day state visit and received an enthusiastic welcome from crowds at the airport, along the route to the city, and outside the government guest house, where the President and his wife will stay during their visit. Enemy Shellings Lowest in Months

SAIGON (AP)—Enemy shellings dropped to two attacks Saturday, the smallest number in two months.

But the fury of U.S. bombing raids shook buildings in Saigon as B52 bombers hit targets 17 miles southeast of the capital. The big bombers had not struck so close to Saigon since April 12, when they bombed 14 miles away.

Several soldiers were wounded in one of the two enemy fire attacks on a South Vietnamese military unit north of Saigon. A U.S. spokesman said there were no casualties or damae in the other attack.

Saturday's shellings in the 24-hour period ending at 8 a.m. Saigon time were the lowest since May 30 when one rocket-mortar attack was reported.

Enemy shellings have been following a generally downward curve since the current lull in ground action began nearly seven weeks ago. During the 24 hours ending Friday morning, enemy gunners hit 11 targets, including five U.S. units or installations where two Americans were wounded.

In other ground action Saturday, 15 North Vietnamese regulars were killed after being surprised by two Cobra gunships of the U.S. 25th Infantry Division.

The helicopter pilots came across the enemy troops, 15-20 strong, 25 miles northeast of Saigon. The gunships rolled in to attack while summoning fighter-bombers. One helicopter was hit by ground fire but made it safely back to its base at Cu Chi.

The dive bombers mounted three strikes against the enemy positions, then 25th Division infantry swept the area.

The American troops killed five North Vietnamese and found the bodies of 10 others killed in the air strikes.

In Quang Tri Province, far to the north, soldiers of the South Vietnamese were wounded.

The government force uncovered eight 60mm mortars, seven light machine guns, five field radios, a telephone set, 63 assault rifles, 600 rounds of mortar ammunition, 400 rocket-propelled grenades and more than 200 pounds of medicine.

The B52s flew four raids early Saturday, continuing attacks that totaled 11 Friday mainly around Saigon, the U.S. Command said.

Military spokesman said six Americans were killed when a U.S. Army helicopter and an Air Force observation plane collided in flight 23 miles west of Chu Lai on South Vietnam's central coast. The victims were the pilot of the plane, a propeller-driven 01, and all five crewmen aboard the twin-rotor CH47 helicopter.

A 750-man battalion of the 9th Infantry Division is leaving for Hawaii Sunday as part of the current withdrawal of 25,000 U.S. troops. The unit is the 2nd Battalion, 39th Infantry, which operated in the Mekong Delta.

Community Fair Set At Tipton

TIPTON — The Tipton Community Fair will open Tuesday and run through Saturday this week.

Kickoff event for the fair is a ham breakfast to be held at 7 a.m. Tuesday. The fair queen, to be chosen from 11 candidates, will be crowned at the breakfast. The queen will receive an all-expense paid trip to the State Fair in Sedalia.

Other events on Tuesday will include livestock judging with a hog and sheep show and a beef cattle show to be held in the evening. An art exhibition will also be held during the day.

A Western and walking horse show will be held on Wednesday and Thursday nights and a tractor pulling contest will be held on Friday night.

On Saturday a parade will be held at 2 p.m. Each organization that enters a float will be given $5 and cash prizes of $25, $15 and $10 will be given the three best floats. A traveling merchant's trophy will be awarded to the business with the best entry.

Saturday night there will be a pony pull and other entertainment. A carnival will be on the midway each night.

Directors and officers of the fair are: Roscoe Gibson, president; Dennis Garber, vice-president; Dean Kasper, secretary; Dean Knipp, treasurer; Melvin Knipp, David Orscheln, Dave Brant, Nathan Miller, and Glenn Schaffter, directors.

Morris Addresses Sheriffs

The Missouri legislature has "snapped the handcuffs one notch tighter on law enforcement," Lieutenant Governor William S. Morris told the Missouri Sheriff's Association at a banquet Saturday night at Bothwell Hotel.

In the past year, Morris said, laws which might have made local levels of law enforcement more efficient have been stimied by a "flagrant display of contempt by certain persons in Jefferson City."

One of the cases in point concerned House Bill 89 which dealt with the powers of "search and seizure," a bill passed by the House, but rejected by the Senate.

According to Morris, this matter came up before the U. S. Supreme Court in the case of Shimmel vs. California. Here, he noted, the court limited the power of law officers to searching only the immediate area in which a crime had been committed, thus limiting further investigation in surrounding regions.

Another bill defeated by the past legislature, which according to Morris indirectly harmed the effectiveness of law enforcement, was a bill which asked that it be made an offense for a prisoner to attempt an escape from a penal institution. Presently, he explained, it is not directly against the law to attempt an escape and the prisoner has nothing to lose and everything to gain by such an attempt.

A third bill which was rejected would have made it a felony to enter the premises of a store for the purpose of stealing. This bill would not have affected small law enforcement agencies as much as large city business owners, according to Morris. It was directed at attempting to halt looting in the event of a civil uprising or riot.

Lt. Gov. William S. Morris

If passed, the bill would have provided for a three months to five years imprisonment with possible additional fines. This too was ignored by the legislature, said the Lieutenant Governor.

At this point, Morris said he felt the public had a right to know what the "legislature was doing—or should I say, not doing."

The state government has seen to it that pay increases have been provided for sheriff departments, Morris noted, thereby acknowledging the importance of law enforcement, but they have denied the lawman his most important tool—adequate laws.

Morris ended his speech by noting the trend toward computerized law enforcement and urged those present to support any legislation which might bring this invaluable tool within the grasp of the law officer.

Walter Buerger, Hillsboro, Sheriff of Jefferson County and President of the Missouri Sheriff's Association, was master of ceremonies for the event.

Pettis County Sheriff, Emmett Fairfax, and Carroll County Sheriff, Paul Johnson, were presented gifts on behalf of the association for their work as co-chairmen of the legislative committee.

Fairfax in turn presented four

Legislative Bumps Ahead For Tax Reform Measure

WASHINGTON (AP) — There are bumps in the legislative road ahead for the tax reform bill, whose sponsors promise ultimate $7-billion relief for low and moderate incomes at the expense of the wealthy and business interests.

But it has one claim for congressional support shared by few major legislative enactments of the past 20 years: it is Congress' own product.

When the House Ways and Means Committee opened tax reform hearings Feb. 18 it was acting on its own initiative. No request for legislation had been filed by the Nixon administration or left by the Lyndon B. Johnson administration.

There had been for a year an insistent clamor in Congress for closing what were termed tax loopholes. It grew louder after President Johnson proposed the income tax surcharge as an anti-inflationary measure.

Ways and Means Chairman Wilbur D. Mills, D-Ark., supported Johnson's request but promised Congress the surtax would be followed up by action on tax reform. The bill that goes before the House Wednesday is the result.

Specialists in the Johnson Treasury had worked up extensive reform proposals. But they were never adopted by Johnson. He left them for his successors, without comment. They passed them on, by request, to the Ways and Means Committee, also without comment. Some found their way into the tax bill.

The Nixon administration, after the Ways and Means Committee was well into its hearings, did come up with some proposals. Two major ones—minimum income tax and low income allowance, were adopted in somewhat modified form.

But the Nixon plan had been to take much more time to develop recommendations—perhaps a year or more. They were expected to include such long-standing Republican proposals as sharing federal revenues with the states, tax incentives to business to help cope with social problems, and perhaps a value added tax—a form of sales tax—as a substitute for part of the corporation income tax.

Mills never looked kindly on these proposals, and their chances will be dimmed if Congress enacts the pending bill substantially as written. It would appear to pre-empt for some years to come not only the revenue to be gained by tax adjustments, but also the time and attention of Congress for major tax changes.

Mills's touch shows in section after section of the committee bill.

His often repeated tax philosophy is that the income base should be as broad as possible—with a minimum of exceptions and deductions—and the rates as low as possible.

The mammoth bill devotes most of its 400 pages to pruning out of or shrinking existing provisions that shelter income from taxation. And it envisions at least a start on rate reduction—to the astonishment of most of Congress. This subject had been little discussed during the open hearings and apparently even in the committee's closed sessions.

Mills has been saying that tougher treatment of foundations is called for and the bill has notably tough provisions in this section—including a tax on foundation income. A fight in the Senate on this point appears certain.

Big Firm Not Phased By Suit

WASHINGTON (AP) — Despite two government antitrust suits, rapidly expanding International Telephone & Telegraph is pressing ahead with plans to annex two more big companies to its worldwide financial empire.

The Justice Department moved Friday to slow ITT's growth by challenging the huge conglomerate's plans to take over the Hartford Fire Insurance Co. and the Grinnell Corp.

It asked a federal court in New Haven, Conn., to issue temporary injunctions to prevent both acquisitions, a combined deal that would add more than $2 billion in assets to ITT's present holdings of more than $4 billion.

Responding to the government suits, an ITT spokesman said the firm, already the nation's 11th biggest industrial corporation, will fight both "and proceed with mergers in the meantime."

ITT took the same course in April when the department challenged its acquisition of Canteen Corp., a Chicago-based food and vending company with annual sales of more than $322 million. There has been no ruling on that complaint.

In Friday's suits, the government said ITT is expected to consummate its merger with Grinnell about Aug. 5 and then finalize the Hartford takeover about Aug. 15.

The complaints, noting that the nation's 200 largest firms now control 61.2 per cent of all manufacturing assets, charged that ITT's expansion activities are a factor in the increasing concentration.

Attacking the Hartford and Grinnell proposals, the government said both mergers would violate antitrust law by encouraging illegal reciprocity, discouraging competition and prompting mergers by other companies seeking to protect themselves from the impact of the new combine.

Hartford, one of the nation's leading writers of property and liability insurance, had consolidated assets of $1.9 billion in 1968.

The suit said two of Hartford's 10 divisions are life insurance companies with total policies in force of $2.1 billion. ITT also is in the life insurance business, controlling six companies with a worldwide policy level of more than $1 billion.

Grinnell, a Providence, R.I., firm that ranks 268th among the industrial giants, is the nation's biggest manufacturer of automatic sprinkler fire protection systems, a leading maker of plumbing and piping hardware and a major warehouse operator and jobber.

Woman Gives Birth To Girl Over Sea

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — There were 156 persons aboard a non-stop Japan Air Lines flight from Tokyo to San Francisco Friday, but there were 157 when it made an unscheduled landing in Anchorage, Alaska.

Shortly before 6 a.m. PDT, Mrs. Shek Wong Kan-Yu gave birth to a girl, 29,000 feet above the Pacific.

Mother and baby were reported doing fine at Providence Hospital in Anchorage. The flight continued on to San Francisco.

Bounce Lunar Laser

SAN JOSE, Calif. (AP) — Laser light beams are being bounced off the reflector left on the moon by the Apollo 11 astronauts as scientists sharpen their fix on it for what they hope will be 10 years of experiments in lunar physics.

After 12 days of failure, scientists at Lick Observatory bounced a light beam from their 120-inch telescope to the reflector and back at 2 a.m. Friday.

About 500 pulses of red light 100,000 times brighter than the sun's rays were subsequently fired at 30-second intervals to confirm sighting of the reflector.

The rays bounced back to the 4,000-foot mountaintop observatory in 2.5 seconds each.

Several more days are expected to be devoted to honing in precisely on the 18-inch-square reflector before the start of experiments that may last a decade.

Scientists at several observatories hope to use laser beams reflected by the device to measure the distance from the earth to the moon within six inches of accuracy, observe the slight wobble of the earth on its axis, and determining whether the earth's continents are shifting and, if so, in what direction.

The principal task for the Lick telescope, second largest in the world, was to locate the 60-pound reflector.

Continued observation will be the responsibility of McDonald Observatory in West Texas, where scientists using a 107-inch telescope also had been attempting to locate the reflector.

Scientists said their early attempts failed because of earth-bound equipment failures and mistaken coordinates on the reflector's location.

They feared earlier that the reflector may have been knocked over or covered with moon dust when the lunar module blasted off.

Bizarre Twist to Bomb Scare

FESTUS, Mo. (AP) — Bomb experts disassembled a device clamped around the neck of a 19-year-old youth early today, and found it contained only a few pieces of wood, a battery and string.

A 60-year-old high school teacher who said he placed it on Gary L. Miller, told police it was a bomb, and said it would explode if any attempt was made to remove it. Festus Police Chief Burl Rudisiale said Miller told officers that a similar device he had tested on a dog had "blown the dog's head off."

The teacher, identified as Rupert M. Johnson of Festus, was held at the Jefferson County sheriff's office.

For Miller, the discovery of the device's contents ended nearly 12 hours of horror.

"He told me it was a time bomb, and only he himself could disarm it," Miller told police.

The device was made of four pieces of copper tubing, about one-half inch in diameter, and was fitted snugly by elbow joints.

Festus police called in bomb disposal experts from Ft. Leonard Wood, Mo., the Granite City, Ill., Army Depot, and the St. Louis Police Department. An attempt to X-ray the device at a hospital in Festus, about 35 miles south of St. Louis, failed.

Use of a powerful industrial X-ray unit indicated that the device contained no mechanical parts.

The decision was made to lead Miller off the parking lot to some soft ground, and open the device.

Miller said: "They just unscrewed. There was just a string and a battery inside."

One of the bomb experts, asked when it was determined that the device was harmless, replied, "When they took it apart."

The drama began to unfold Friday afternoon when Johnson went to the Miller home to complain about mechanical work done on his car by the youth's father, Chief Rudisiale said.

Rudisiale said only young Miller was at home, and Johnson asked him to accompany him to his own home to help convince Mrs. Johnson to buy a new car.

Miller said that when he and Johnson arrived at the Johnson home, the teacher pulled a .32 automatic revolver. The youth said he was blindfolded and gagged, and the device then was fitted around his neck.

"He was shaking," Miller said, "and he got angry every once in awhile."

Johnson released Miller and ordered him to telephone his father, Charles, who rushed to the Johnson residence. The three then returned to the Miller home, where the elder Miller said he eventually disarmed Johnson.

Then the police were called.

Boy With Rabies Remains In Coma After 100 Days

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP) — Not yet 3, Tommy Buchmann has spent 100 days now in a hospital bed with rabies.

Except for the first six days, he has been in a deep sleep. Doctors at University Hospital list his condition as unchanged —still critical.

The once bright-eyed youngster has lived longer with rabies than anyone else in recorded history, doctors say. A Kansas boy was kept alive for 63 days last year.

The coma shows no sign of breaking, although Mrs. Max Buchmann said Friday she has spotted tears in her son's eyes.

Once, she said, his eyes opened. Occasionally, Tommy's tiny chin appeared to quiver.

"We hope and believe he is coming slowly," said Mrs. Buchmann, wife of a poultry rancher in Lakeside. But the doctors put little stock in these apparent movements.

A respirator has enabled Tommy to breathe since he lapsed into a coma April 28, four weeks after being bitten and clawed by a rabid bobcat at his home. Attempts to get Tommy to breathe on his own have failed. His mother said, "He pulls a couple of breaths, but that's about it."

He is visited daily by his father or mother and the Rev. Harold E. Reynolds.

The $18,000 donated for hospital expenses by individuals and groups throughout the country has been used up. Special nurses have been taken off Tommy's case, and staff nurses now stay with him day and night.

Tommy, youngest of the Buchmanns' three children, will be 3 on Aug. 27.

Food Cost Will Stay Up There

WASHINGTON (AP) — Government experts have thrown cold water on what American consumers had hoped was a sign of a break in soaring food prices.

A new forecast from the Agriculture Department says higher food prices at groceries and in restaurants are likely for the rest of the year.

It had been hoped that an earlier midweek government report of a reduction in the upward rate of wholesale prices might signal a slow-down in inflation.

But department forecasters—who had cautioned against too much optimism over the wholesale price news—made it official Friday: they see little change likely in over-all food supplies.

They said retail food prices will rise "somewhat more" than last year's 3.2 per cent. Grocery prices have been going up at a 7 per cent rate this year and are a major factor in soaring living costs.

Prices for meals eaten in restaurants are likely to increase by more than last year's 5.2 per cent, the forecast said.

As has been the case all year, meat is a major factor.

Navy Gets Anti-Sub Aircraft

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Navy has launched a $3.2 billion program to build antisubmarine warfare planes, but is docking its U.S.-based forces as much as possible to save operational funds.

Lockheed Aircraft Corp., which has had difficulties with two other major military contracts this year, was selected Friday by the Navy for a $461 million contract for research and development of the new S3A carrier-based antisub plane. Officials said the estimated ceiling price for the full eight-year program is $3.2 billion for a fleet of 193 aircraft.

Shortly after announcing the contract award, the Navy disclosed its ships and planes will reduce operations off U.S. coasts this year in keeping with President Nixon's ordered cut in defense spending. There was no estimate of how much would be saved.

Only the 1st Fleet off the U.S. West Coast and the 2nd Fleet in the East Coast waters are affected. Although the ships and planes will be spending more time in home ports, the Navy said they would have enough at-sea time to remain in readiness.

Announcement of the Lockheed contract marked the first new major aircraft program pushed toward production during the Nixon administration.

Lockheed, of Burbank, Calif., has had problems this year with contracts for the Air Force C5A supertransport and the Army's Cheyenne helicopter gunship.

The S3A contract includes production of six prototypes, with an option for the navy to buy 193 more planes. The S3A is to be powered by two turbofan engines, have a speed of more than 400 miles per hour and a range of more than 2,000 nautical miles. The all-weather plane is to be designed for homing torpedos, mines, depth charges, rockets or missiles with which to destroy enemy submarines.

Famous Brazil Store Destroyed By Fire

SALVADOR, Brazil (AP) — Salvador's famous "Model Market," a 62-year-old waterfront structure whose customers ranged from Queen Elizabeth II to beggars buying a few ounces of "money attracting powder," was razed by fire Friday.

The market was a famous tourist attraction, offering handicrafts, meats, vegetables and herbs and powders used in "Camdomble," the Brazilian version of voodoo.

Only two insects have been domesticated by man — one kind of moth, the Oriental Silkworm, and the honeybee.

Thomas J. Stohr, son of Cpl. and Mrs. Peter Stohr, 500 West Fourth, has enlisted in the Navy. He left July 24 for 10 weeks of recruit training at San Diego, Calif.

In Ranks

Airman Benny P. Bestgen, son of Mr. and Mrs. Cecil J. Bestgen, Tipton, has completed basic training at Lackland AFB, Tex. He has been assigned to Sheppard AFB, Tex., for training in aircraft maintenance. Airman Bestgen is a 1969 graduate of Tipton High School.

Navy WAVE Airman Apprentice Janet L. Byrd, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wayne H. Byrd, Route 5, graduated from Air Controlman School at the Naval Air Technical Training Center, Glynco, Ga.

The school provides training in the direction of air traffic by a ground controller.

Midshipman First Class James C. Alexander Jr., son of Dr. and Mrs. J.C. Alexander, 1016 W. Broadway, has been assigned to the guided missile destroyer USS Sellers for training.

The Sellers is currently in the Mediterranean. He is aboard the ship for the summer to study the Navy in action and to learn those aspects of a Naval officer's duties which he will need to know upon reporting to his first ship for duty after he is commissioned.

He will be commissioned an Ensign in the Navy following his graduation from college.

Midshipman First Class Alexander is now attending the University of Missouri, Columbia.

U.S. Air Force TSgt. Thomas S. DeWeese, son of Mrs. Fern DeWeese, Windsor, has arrived for duty at Tachikawa AB, Japan.

Sergeant DeWeese, a supply inventory supervisor, is assigned to a unit of the Pacific Air Forces. He previously served with an Air Force unit in Las Vegas, Nev.

He was graduated in 1947 from Windsor High School and attended Central Missouri State College.

Georgia Will Fight School Mixing Suit

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — The largest school desegregation suit ever filed by the federal government faced Georgia today as Gov. Lester Maddox summoned all available state resources to fight it.

The Justice Department filed the suit Friday in U.S. District Court in Atlanta, asking that every public school in the state be desegregated under court order.

Maddox called upon the state attorney general "to use all the legal and financial resources at the command of this state" to oppose the suit.

"We'll win the war against these tyrants," Maddox said. "If we don't, the United States will cease to be a free republic."

The complaint, filed on behalf of U.S. Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell, accused Jack P. Nix, Georgia school superintendent, and the Georgia Board of Education with failing to take adequate steps to disestablish a dual school system based on race.

It was the first time a state board of education has been the target of a government desegregation suit.

The Department of Health, Education and Welfare (HEW) had previously cut off federal aid to 30 Georgia school districts. But the Justice Department said with the filing of the suit federal aid will be restored to the 30 districts. Funds are not withheld in cases where litigation is in progress, the department said.

The government claimed that Georgia, not only maintains a segregated school system, but that the educational opportunities provided for Negro youngsters are decidedly inferior to those for whites.

"It was to be expected," Maddox said of the suit.

"The powers in Washington have created a monster that they don't know what to do with," he said. "They know they have placed public education in the death grip of a police state in Washington. Now they are going in this direction to try and make the state the tyrants and the police in order to try to get the monkey off their back."

The school board, in a letter to the Justice Department before the suit was filed, claimed that it had no jurisdiction over local school boards.

The government contended in the suit, however, that the Georgia board could be sued because it has the power to set standards and withhold state funds from local boards failing to comply with state law or the board's regulations.

A sister of the late country and Western singer, Hank Williams, Mrs. Irene Williams Smith, was charged July 31 with possessing what U.S. Customs agents said was one of the largest amounts of pure cocaine ever to enter the United States. Mrs. Smith, a respected Dallas, Tex., matron once named as "Woman of the Month" by her community's Chamber of Commerce, was arrested when she crossed the border in her car. Agents say that the cocaine may be worth as much as $7 million. (UPI) campaign gesture brought more cheers.

What pleased his aides the most was the response along a 10-block stretch from his quarters in the government guest house to the handsome Palace of the Republic, where Nixon opened the first of his two talks with Ceausescu.

The crowd was so solid there, with people hanging out of windows, that Nixon had to slow down en route to his appointment. Again there were ringing cheers.

Besides the first state visit by an American president, there were other precedents set. Nixon's arrival from Pakistan was televised. It was the first live telecast ever sent from Romania to the United States.

He was the first official visitor to land at Bucharest's $50 million Otopeni airport. It will not be completed until next year.

Beyond these historical footnotes and official exchanges of views on international affairs, it was the size and the emotional surge of the common-folk Romanian welcome that made the Nixon party feel the trip was well worth any irritation to the Soviet Union next door.

This impresses U.S. strategists more than any immediate results of the Nixon-Ceausescu talks. Aides said Nixon did not intend to make any specific commitments during his 27-hour stay, but to discuss topics in general terms.

Romanian trade with the United States, while relatively small, has increased more than tenfold from the $2 million it totaled in 1963. The Romanians would like to get on better trade terms.

In his welcoming speech, the 51-year-old Romanian chief stressed the theme of peaceful coexistence, as "a safe way of building a climate of confidence."

Nixon replied that "the United States believes that the rights of all nations must be equal."

"We are prepared to do our part also in the era of negotiations," Nixon said, referring to his announced aim to make his administration one of negotiation and not of confrontation.

He declared his hope this would permit all Europe to "pursue to fulfillment their just aspirations for a better life, free from the fear of war or threats of war."

Says Union Will Not Stop Effort

William R. Parkhurst, president of the Parkhurst Manufacturing Co., said Saturday that he doesn't expect that the International Association of Machinists and Aerospace Workers will give up in their attempt to unionize employees at Parkhurst, in spite of the poor attendance at a union meeting held last Tuesday night.

"I understand that only 25 workers out of over 200 attended the meeting and only six of those signed cards," Parkhurst said. "This would have to be considered a vote of confidence for us. It indicates that the workers are generally happy with the way things are going."

Reasons for the poor turnout, Parkhurst said, is because the company's wage scale is comparable to others in the area and in some cases benefits offered are better.

"We're really after the same thing," Parkhurst said. "We are both concerned with the welfare of the worker. We just don't feel that we need an outsider to tell us how to do it. We think we can take care of our own people."

Parkhurst expressed confidence that the company was in a good position now to keep the union out.

She was taken to Bothwell Hospital for treatment of abrasions and a cut on the inside of her cheek caused by her teeth.

Top Officers Of Taxpayers' Group Resign

LINCOLN — Mrs. Margaret Stelljes and C. R. Leppert, both of Lincoln, resigned as president and vice-president, respectively, of the Benton County Taxpayer's Association at a meeting held last week. Eugene Wetzel, Warsaw, remains as secretary-treasurer.

No action was taken at the meeting to decide what stands would be taken concerning the proposed Fair Community College bond issue or the recent increased assessment on real estate in the county.

Another meeting is scheduled to be held late this month to elect officers and to discuss the tax issues.

According to a spokesman for the group, the organization is in danger of breaking up completely because of lack of interest.

minutes ticked away. The deadline passed without an explosion.

Finally, shortly after 3 a. m. authorities decided to undo the pipes and remove the so-called bomb. It contained only a few pieces of wood, a small battery and some heavy string.

Johnson refused to comment further after his arrest. The Miller youth spent the night at a hospital and was released to his family.

Discussing various ways that the Bureau of Narcotics and Dangerous Drugs could be of assistance to local law enforcement agencies, Duane Leiter, a narcotics bureau agent from Kansas City, spoke Saturday afternoon at Holiday Inn.

He explained that the Bureau of Narcotics and Dangerous Drugs, a division of the Justice Department, dealt with four basic types of drugs. These are the "hard-core" narcotics, such as heroin and opium; the hallucinagenic drugs, such as marijuana and LSD; stimulants, like prescription pep pills and "speed"; and depressants, such as prescription sleeping pills.

Leiter later told the Sedalia Democrat-Capital that one of the biggest problems now for the Narcotics Bureau is the fact that the harvesting season for mariguana is just beginning.

He said that marijuana, which is actually the hemp plant, doesn't grow well in the deep South or in mountainous regions, but the plains states have ideal conditions for the plant to grow.

The Kansas City office of the Bureau has 27 agents working at present covering Missouri, Kansas, Iowa and Nebraska.

According to Leiter, approximately 40 per cent of the arrests which are made in this field are done on state charges. The rest come from violations of federal law.

Pettis County Sheriff Emmett Fairfax contacted Leiter before the convention and made arrangements for him to speak.

Salaries of sheriff's deputies was the main topic of a panel discussion held at 1:30 p.m. Saturday at the Holiday Inn.

The discussion entitled "The Sheriff Office and How It Can Be Made A Better Office" was part of the program of the Missouri Sheriff's Association's annual state convention being held in Sedalia this weekend.

Low salaries result in poor law enforcement and an inability to get good men for the jobs, the sherif's argued. Salaries in the various counties generally range from $250 to $450 per month, plus travel allowance and sometimes uniform allowance.

Our sheriff stated that the secretaries in the courthouse were getting more money than his deputies. "I'm almost ashamed to go out and ask a man to work for me," he said.

Members of the association urged that the group take action to see that the setting of salaries be taken out of the hands of the circuit judge and county courts and put in the hands of the State Legislature.

It was generally agreed that the Legislature could at least set a minimum salary and that the association should work to accomplish this.

Pettis County Sheriff Emmett Fairfax, second vice-president of the association, was a member of the panel.

Charles Lawrence, manager of the Sedalia Chamber of Commerce, addressed the sheriffs and their wives at the opening meeting at Holiday Inn Friday evening.

Lawrence told of the progress being made on the Pettis County Jail.

He was introduced by Pettis County Sheriff Emmett Fairfax, who explained the convention program.

Various articles dealing with law enforcement were on display at the meeting, including chemical mace, gun holsters, search lights, a tear gas grenade launcher, badges, and a public address system.

Four Hurt At Grand, North 65

Four persons were injured in a two-car accident at the intersection of North Grand Avenue and Highway 65 about 6:20 p.m. Saturday.

Philip Eugene Luce, 18, 1114 West Seventh, driver of a 1969 Chevrolet northbound on 65; Lee Andrew Kendrick, 21, 408 North Mill, driver of a 1964 Chevrolet, southbound on Grand, and three passengers in Kendrick's auto were taken to Bothwell Hospital.

Luce sustained a laceration to his forehead; Kenrick suffered a bruised back, a laceration to his forehead and a fractured left arm. Floyd Wendell Willis, 35, 418 North Moniteau, the owner of the car, sustained a laceration to his forehead. They were all treated and admitted.

Lee Kendrick, Jr., four months, 408 North Mill, and Ingar Marie Bratton, 4, 418 North Moniteau, were not believed seriously injured.

According to reports, Miss Bratton and both Kendricks were thrown from the car after the impact which tore both the front and the rear doors off the right side of the car.

According to the Highway Patrol Kendrick's auto apparently pulled out in front of Luce's auto, which left some 87 feet of skid marks before colliding with the other car. Both cars came to rest in the ditch on the southeast corner of the intersection and both were demolished.

Trooper Joe Dayringer investigated the accident.

Lung cancer is the leading cause of male cancer deaths. The American Cancer Society reports the mortality rate is 15 times greater than 35 years ago.

Rx TOO MUCH MILK CAN LEAD TO INFANT ANEMIA

Although milk is a wonderful substance by itself, it does not alone supply all the essential nutrients. Sometimes new parents keep infants on "milk alone" for too long. A leading Pediatrician suggests that baby should be started on solid foods early; when the milk or formula intake reaches one quart; when the infant weighs 10-11 pounds, or baby is three months old. Your doctor will tell you when.

Other suggestions are to offer milk by cup at 5-6 months, encourage early self-feeding, avoid force feeding, and eating specific foods. For needed iron — enriched baby cereals, meat and eggs are the best sources and should be started as early as your physician directs.

YOUR DOCTOR CAN PHONE US when you need a medicine and we will gladly deliver it without charge. If you prefer you may pick it up at our drive up window. We keep accurate records for tax and insurance purposes. We carefully fill welfare prescriptions and deliver or mail free of charge. A great many people entrust us with their prescriptions. Question

What death benefits are available to dependents of veterans who died in service, or as a result of a service-connected disability?

Answer

Dependency and Indemnity Compensation (DIC) is a benefit payable to widows, widowers, children, and certain parents of veterans who died after January 1, 1957 in service, or as a result of their service-connected disabilities.

DIC payments for widows are set at $120 per month, plus 12% of the current basic pay scale; the minimum monthly payment is $131. There are also additional payments for two or more eligible children.

Equality Biggest Concern for Warren Court

The Supreme Court as assembled in 1967, from left, seated: Associate Justices John M. Harlan, Hugo L. Black, Chief Justice Earl Warren, Associate Justices William O. Douglas and William J. Brennan Jr. Standing: Associate Justices Abe Fortas, Potter Stewart, Byron R. White and Thurgood Marshall. (AP)

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Warren Court was about one thing mostly: equality.

The equal right of a Negro school child to a decent public education.

The right of a man living in the big city to have his vote count equally.

The right of a poor man to the kind of trial the rich man expects as a matter of course.

The equality was written into the Constitution long before Earl Warren became chief justice.

But much of it only lurked there, unimplemented.

Warren's Supreme Court brought the equality out, and in this sense conducted a social and legal revolution.

Not only the John Birchers who posted "Impeach Earl Warren" billboards along the highways complained.

The court was in many ways setting national policy, a function many scholars and politicians thought should be reserved for the president and Congress. And it was limiting the role of the states.

On the very last day of the Warren Court, one of its members, Justice John Marshall Harlan, exclaimed in an anguished dissent that the court was "eroding many of the basics of our federal system."

Conservatives on Capitol Hill who do not like the court's decisions commonly accused the Warren activists of "legislating" of "amending" the Constitution.

This opposition to what the court has done undoubtedly contributed to the defeat last summer of Abe Fortas' nomination to be chief justice. And Congress never pinches pennies more than when a judiciary appropriation is up for consideration.

It all seems so inevitable now, looking back on the 16 Warren years: That the matching of a strong-willed chief justice with a largely democratic document would propel America further toward equality.

Warren, himself, has made it seem so natural, so effortless.

"We go with the cases that come to us," he told a judges conference shortly before his retirement.

"And when they come to us with a question of human liberties involved in them, we either hear them and decide them or we let them go and sweep them under the rug only to leave them for future generations.

"That has been done in this country not only long enough but altogether too long."

In 1953, when Warren became chief justice, public schools throughout the South, and in parts of the border and Northern states as well, were segregated—with the blessing of the 1898 Supreme Court.

People on the farm often had twice and even three times the voting power of city dwellers because of the way state legislative and U.S. congressional districts were drawn.

A poor or illiterate man accused of a crime shuffled dumbly and ofen alone through a legal system he did not understand and that did not care very much about him.

He may have been tricked or beaten into confessing. Unless the charges against him were very serious, he was lucky to have a lawyer help him make a defense. He probably surrendered and pleaded guilty, anyway.

But, when Warren left the high court, school segregation was illegal, the "one-man, one-vote" doctrine was deeply woven into the nation's political fabric, and all men accused of crime were entitled to the protection of the Bill of Rights.

Last year, only one out of every five Negro children in the 11 Southern states attended integrated schools.

Throughout the North, residential segregation has fostered "de facto" school segregation, and civil rights lawyers have been markedly unsuccessful in combatting the more subtle discrimination.

The blame may lie as much with the court as with school officials. Even admirers have suggested that one of the Warren Court's worst mistakes was adopting the formula of "all deliberate speed" for school desegregation.

But no one questions that the Warren Court accomplished more for the Negro than any past Supreme Court.

It broke segregation in parks, libraries, airports and bus terminals. It approved all the major civil rights laws. And it flatly prohibited discrimination in housing sales and rentals.

And yet, when Warren listed his court's major accomplishments last summer, he gave first place to Baker v. Carr, the 1962 decision that launched the expedition into the "political thicket" of apportionment.

The principle was easy enough to state. As Warren wrote in the follow-up Reynolds v. Sims decision of 1964: "Legislators represent people, not trees or acres."

But, at times it appeared that the court was hip-deep in brambles. It struck down two and three districting plans from the same state, recited the "one-man, one-vote" litany, but was unspecific about how equal in population the districts had to be.

Last April, it filled in the details. The one-man, one-vote principle, said Justice William J. Brennan Jr. in a 6-3 ruling, "permits only the limited population variances which are unavoidable despite a good-faith effort to achieve absolute equality, or for which justification is shown."

In the seven short years since Baker v. Carr, all 50 states have reapportioned at least one house of their state legislatures. Thirty-seven of the states have made their congressional districts more equal.

Some of the states acted in direct response to the court's declaration, others yielded to the pressure of lawsuits.

The third great revolution of the Warren Court—the one in criminal law—gave literal meaning to the legend that appears over the entrance to the court building: "Equal Justice Under Law."

The rich and the educated—and the sophisticated criminal—knew long before there was a Warren Court that they could not be compelled to incriminate themselves with their own words.

Guilty or innocent, they called in lawyers to prepare their defenses, to put their cases in the best possible light.

The Warren Court brought these rights down to every man. The gap between rich and poor and between one region of the country and another was narrowed.

Every man had the right to remain silent in the station house and silent at trial. Prosecutors were stripped of the trick of converting this silence into an indictment by calling it to the jury's attention.

Most important of all, every man under police interrogation or on trial for a serious crime could have a lawyer's help—and a free one would be supplied the poor.

Policemen and prosecutors have reacted vividly and negatively to the court's decisions, particularly the ban that Miranda v. Arizona in 1966 put on confessions obtained in violation of a suspect's rights.

The Warren Court's achievements in these three areas—desegregation, reapportionment and criminal law — are by no means the whole story of the Warren Court.

Major advances were made in freedom of speech and of the press. Citizens suspected of subversion were shielded from overly zealous loyalty probers. The right to read a racy book, to thumb through a sexy magazine or to see a spicy movie was protected against censorship.

The Constitution's separation of church and state was observed with a ban on required reading of the Bible or the Lord's Prayer in the public schools.

At the end, the court had begun to safeguard the rights of the poor generally — against arbitrary evictions and wage garnishments and against welfare cutoffs for crossing state lines.

With a flourish that symbolized its majestic independence, it told Congress it had no right to bar Rep. Adam Clayton Powell, D—N.Y., from his elected seat in the House after he met the qualifications for office set forth in the Constitution.

This was Warren's last decision. He could have been speaking of them all when he declared with absolute simplicity: "It is the responsibility of this court to act as the ultimate interpreter of the Constitution."

Russell Seitz, 21, Elberon, N.J., has accumulated most of the parts needed to build an intercontinental ballistic missile. Seitz, a third year special student at Massachusetts Institute of Technology, said he found most of the parts at dumps, salvage yards and surplus agencies within a 20-mile radius of Boston. Seitz, who said he has access to the rest of the needed parts, inspects the rocket engine. (UPI)

Johnson Grass Control Plots Will Be Viewed During Tour

The Pettis County Weed Control Board will conduct a tour of Johnson grass control plots throughout the county Tuesday, to observe the reactions of the grass to different chemicals.

Representatives of the University of Missouri Extension Center will be present, along with John Medders, representing the Geigy Chemical Co., to explain the plots and the different chemicals used. Medders will also discuss corn root worms and corn borers.

Those wishing transportation are to meet at the Derby Oil station at the junction of Highway 65 and Route H and HH north of Sedalia at 9:30 a.m.

The first stop on the tour will be the Gordon Callis and Son farm, northeast of Longwood. At this stop the observers will be shown 10 test plots. Five soil sterilants — Dowpon, Ansar, Atrazine and diesel fuel — have been used.

The next stop will be the C. H. Williams farm at the junction of Routes HH and EE. Here Atrazine and oil have been used on corn. The group will have a lunch break here.

At 1:15 p.m. the group will arrive at a field of corn just east of the Sedalia airport on the north side of East Highway 50. Here they will observe the application of Atrazine and zinc on corn. Medders also will have specimens of corn rootworms and corn borers.

The group will then go to the Paul Selken farm on Route DD, southeast of Smithton, arriving about 2 p.m. The plot here has the same makeup as that on the Callis farm.

The final stop will be at the Chancy farm, on Route C south of Sedalia. This demonstration plot is an acre of corn treated with Dowpon. It was intended to put this field in soybeans and treat with Treflan, but flooding prevented this. The observers can see, however, what can be done by applying Dowpon with a regular sprayer.

This tour is the beginning of a program to eventually control Johnson grass in the county, where more than 100 farms are infested. The infestation runs from small, scattered patches to 25-and 30-acre fields. Almost all of the highways have patches along the rights-of-way. The state is conducting a spraying program, but this has been delayed by heavy rains.

The city of Sedalia, especially the northern portion, is heavily infected, and the city is conducting a spraying program. The MKT railroad has had the right-of-way in the county sprayed by a professional firm, according to reports from the control board.

Little money has been made available so far, but more is expected next year to carry the program on in an effective manner.

No Word Yet On Housing Application

Glenn Lewis, president of the Sedalia Housing Authority, said Friday that no word had been received yet from the Department of Housing and Urban Development on the authority's application to have 200 low-rent housing units constructed in Sedalia.

Key Homes Corp., a subsidiary of Village Homes, Inc., Springfield, was approved by the Housing Authority to construct the homes pending HUD approval.

"We feel there will be approval," Lewis said. "We hope that once this project gets started that we can begin others in the near future."

The authority would like to construct a high rise senior citizens home, Lewis said, but under the present setup it is impossible.

To make it possible for the Housing Authority to receive a direct grant from the government for further construction, the city must have a law passed to have all rental property inspected. "This law," Lewis said, "must be on the books for six months before grants will be made."

The city council is working on adopting such a law, Lewis said, but they must first revise plumbing and electrical codes.

TV Coverage Of President's Return Home

WASHINGTON (AP) — When President Nixon returns Sunday night from his world trip, he will be greeted by members of his official family and will make a brief public statement.

The White House said Friday there will be no ceremony at Andrews Air Force Base in nearby Maryland, but he will be welcomed by officials when he arrives by helicopter on the south lawn of the executive mansion.

The ceremonies will be made available for live television and radio broadcast. The tentative time for arrival at the White House is 10:25 p.m. EDT.

East German Boys Cross Over Border

BERLIN (AP) — Two East German boys, aged 11 and 12, crossed Communist border barriers into the U.S. sector of West Berlin, police reported Friday. Usually in such cases, efforts are made to contact the minors' parents and have them returned to East Germany.

Purchases Parts For An ICBM

BOSTON (AP) — A college student says he has bought from private firms two-thirds of the parts to build an intercontinental ballistic missile and has access to the rest.

Joseph R. MacG. Seitz, 21, a special student at Massachusetts Institute of Technology, said in a copyright story in the Boston Globe today that he purchased the parts from various salvage and surplus metal dealers in Massachusetts.

The Globe said Dr. Jerome B. Wiesner, provost of MIT and a former science adviser to Presidents John F. Kennedy and Lyndon B. Johnson, called its attention to Seitz's work.

Seitz said he found a metal salvage dealer in Boston who "will sell you an Atlas nose cone for 40 cents a pound . . . He doesn't know what they are unless you bother to tell him."

A warehouse in Taunton furnished a complete first-stage assembly of the Titan II-C, three guidance platforms, six re-entry shields and four "umbilical assemblies," Seitz said.

An "umbilical assembly" is one which disconnects the missile at the moment of launching.

Seitz, of Elberon, N.J., said he collected the components out of "idle curiosity" and to show security and ordinance people that "all you have to do is go out to the surplus yards and look."

Seitz said that actually assembling an ICBM is "a 500-man-year job," but no classified knowledge is needed.

"I've got all the critical sub assemblies for an ICBM," he said. "The rest is plumbing."

Seitz said he had "avoided getting hold of things like fuel tanks and exterior structures which are 25 feet long and 10 feet in diameter, but I know where I can get them."

Most of the parts, Seitz said, were obtained from "dumps" that specialize in Army hardware.

He said fissionable material for warheads could be obtained, but "I would be very reticent to discuss that."

Astronauts to Study Desert Inhabitants

SPOKANE, Wash. (AP) — Eight astronauts, all civilians, will arrive Sunday at Fairchild Air Force Base in eastern Washington to take a course in desert survival.

Before moving to a desert area near the Pasco, Wash. survival school, officials say the astronauts will be in the classroom to study the world's desert areas and the people and animals who inhabit them.

Accept a Gift For Planning Of KC School

COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP)—University of Missouri curators accepted a $200,000 gift Friday to continue planning for a medical school in Kansas City.

The Kansas City Association of Trusts and Foundations and the Kansas City General Hospital and Medical Center each supplied $100,000 to help with the school. The curators said they could not commit any money from their budget for the project.

Contracts totaling $2,165,101 for a new education building on the Kansas City campus were approved, and contracts totaling $230,035 for construction at Columbia were confirmed.

The board approved a provision of the federal student loan program under which the university can lend money to students. The federal government pays all interest charges until nine months after the student leaves school.

Golden Era Stars Still Very Busy

By BOB THOMAS
Associated Press Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The recent deaths of Judy Garland and Robert Taylor caused many reminiscing Americans to wonder if the great figures of Hollywood's Golden Era—the 1930s—were disappearing.

This is to reassure such worriers: large numbers of the stars of the 1930s are still alive and well.

Indeed, some of them are still functioning at the top of their profession. Katharine Hepburn is as much in demand as she was when she won the first of her three Oscars for "Morning Glory" in 1932. Henry Fonda and James Stewart are making a Western together at Santa Fe.

Fredric March ended a so-called retirement to sign for two pictures. Edward G. Robinson makes more films than any name performer. Bob Hope is always busy. Cary Grant could work for any studio, but he seems to prefer being a business executive these days.

What about John Wayne, Anthony Quinn, William Holden, Glenn Ford? All got their starts in the 1930s, though they didn't reach top stardom until later.

Many of the grande dames of the Golden Era remain active in films and-or television: Bette Davis, Rosalind Russell, Joan Crawford, Myrna Loy, Olivia de Havilland, Jane Wyman, Barbara Stanwyck, Lana Turner, Ann Sothern, Helen Hayes, Ida Lupino, Merle Oberon, Lucille Ball.

These male stars of the 1930s also keep busy: David Niven, Charles Boyer, Fred MacMurray, Mickey Rooney, Pat O'Brien, Walter Pidgeon, Robert Young, Lew Ayres, Robert Cummings, Melvyn Douglas, Bing Crosby, Groucho Marx, Don Ameche.

Ginger Rogers, Betty Grable and Dorothy Lamour did their things in "Hello, Dolly!" Jean Arthur came out of retirement for a short-lived television series. Others who make occasional appearances in films or television or the theater:

Jack Oakie, Joan Blondell, Richard Arlen, Buddy Rogers, Rudy Vallee, Cesar Romero, George Raft, Ruby Keller, Chester Morris, Allan Jones, Marie Wilson, Joel McCrea, Ray Milland, Douglas Fairbanks Jr., Marlene Dietrich, Alice Faye, Eleanor Powell and Jane Withers, the lady plumber in those television commercials.

Loretta Young, Irene Dunne and Claudette Colbert have done little performing in recent years but might be lured back with the right role. Less probable is the return of another 1930s star, Greta Garbo, though producers keep trying.

James Cagney still resists the repeated urgings to give up his retirement. Norma Shearer has never returned since her last film in 1942. Child star Jackie Cooper is now a television executive, and Shirley Temple combines housewifery and politics. Freddie Bartholomew became an advertising executive.

Among the others who are retired or in other professions: William Powell, Robert Montgomery, Randolph Scott, Sonja Henie, George Brent, Deanna Durbin, Madeleine Carroll, Johnny Weismuller, Fay Wray, Luise Rainer, Gene Autry, Janet Gaynor, Charles Farrell, Paulette Goddard, Joe E. Brown.

And if you remember all those names, you've got to be over 40 or a student of the late, late show.

NEW ENGLAND STYLE APPEALS TO THE YOUNG

FEATURE HOMES

©By W. D. FARMER

Charming four bed room two-story plan includes all the features most young couples desire in a size that most can afford.

The first floor of this plan is the living and activity area. There is a large living room and a separate family-sized dining room. There is a conveniently located powder room behind foyer. The foyer includes a graceful open stairway.

The kitchen is "U" shaped for efficiency. It has all the built-in appliances plus excellent counter top work surface and cabinet space. The washer and dryer space is located near bath plumbing for greater economy.

The breakfast room in this plan is as large as some dining rooms.

The step-down family room has fireplace at one end with 1/2 partition at the other end, dividing breakfast room and family room. A French door, located beside the three large windows, leads to a terrace behind the house.

The second floor contains the quiet or sleeping area. All four bed rooms are on the second floor, along with two full baths. Three of the bed rooms have large walk-in closets.

The New England style two-story house is enhanced by the beautiful bow window, nestled under the cantilevered frame second story. There are helf glass, cross-buck doors centered under the covered entrance, shown with matching shutters.

The first floor of this plan includes 1,211 square feet and the second floor includes 963 square feet, giving a total of 2,174 square feet in the house area. The garage includes 450 square feet.

The plan number is 2126. For further information write W. D. Farmer, 15 Peachtree Building, Suite 923, Atlanta, Ga. 30303.

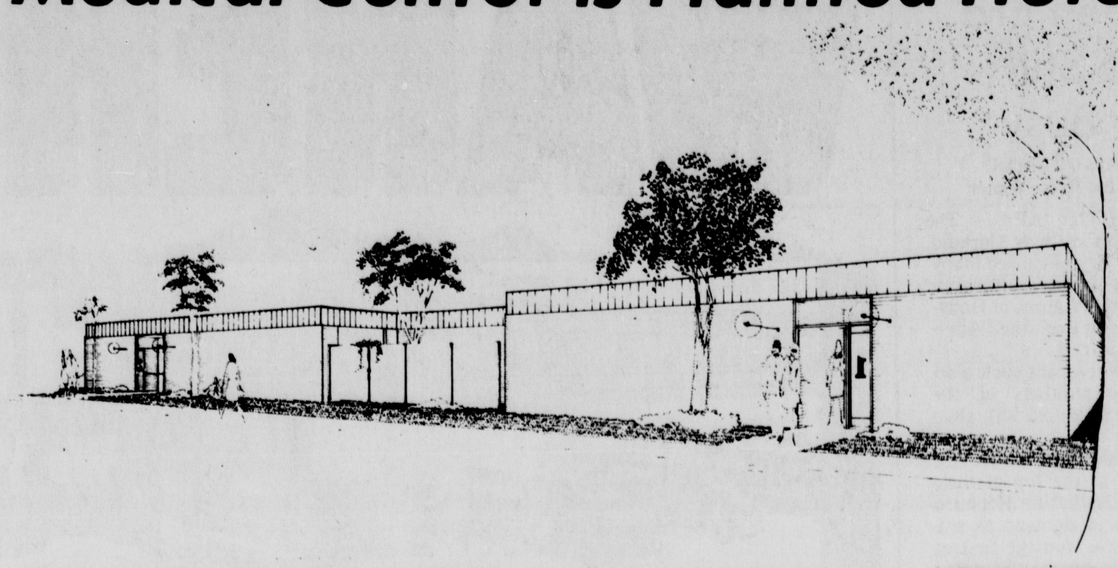
Medical Center is Planned Here



Construction on a medical diagnostic center to be built between 17th and 18th Streets facing Ingram will begin within the next two weeks, according to Dr. Robert Stockwood, Jr.

Dean Construction Co., will build the approximately $350,000 structure. Gregory Gunn, St. Louis, is the architect. It is expected to be completed within seven to eight months.

The building is owned by the LVS Corp., an organization composed of nine doctors.

The corporation was formed last August with Dr. John Lamy as president; Dr. Elmer Van Dyke, vice-president; and Dr. Stockwood, secretary-treasurer.

Directors of the corporation are Dr. Robert Edmonds and Dr. James Burkeholder.

Other shareholders include Dr. Spencer Hopkins, Dr. Jerome Block, Dr. Robert Glass and Dr. John Owens.

"The corporation was formed," Stockwood said, "for the express purpose of building a clinic which will house a group of doctors."

At the present time, plans call for two internists, two pediatricians, two obstetricians, two general surgeons, and one pathologist to have offices in the building.

Plans also call for the building to contain a pharmacy and pathology labs and enough rooms to handle 12 physicians eventually.

"We hope to expand even further," Stockwood said, "so that room can be provided for more physicians and dentists."

The corporation also owns the block immediately west of the above location which may be used for future expansion.

"Bringing groups of doctors together under one roof is in line with recommendations and thoughts of health planners throughout the United States," Stockwood said.

The site is readily accessible to Bothwell Hospital which will bring together outpatient and inpatient facilities.

Youth Kills Coral Snake in Kitchen

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — "Who left the beads on the floor?" Mrs. George Rutter of Tucson asked as she noticed something near the table as her family was finishing dinner.

Then the beads moved.

That's when their 15-year-old son Christopher got a hammer and squashed what turned out to be a coral snake.

"I didn't know how to capture it or we would have," Mrs. Rutter said. "You just don't go around your house with a net or something."

Habitat Living Misses Rush Hour

MONTREAL — (NEA) — Habitat '67 was planned as a "castle in the sky," "a modern-day Utopia" blending the conveniences of urban dwelling with the civilities of country living: proximity to the office, to the theater, to the supermarket, to the nursery, with privacy, the scents of grass, the bounce of flowers, and those two obscure city commodities, sunlight and parking space.

Habitat '67 is a housing complex here, with 114 units (or "apartment-homes"). It is very nice to look at, in a Leger-painting sort of way — concrete cubes and tubes intersect and rise block on block atop each other. And it is very pleasant to live in — at least one garden for each unit, good views for all and, in a departure from most newly built living edifices, the walls are thick enough so you do not hear your neighbor wheezing in his sleep.

But when the apartments were put up for prospective tenants in March, 1968, there was one smudge in the blueprint. The cost of living, like the building concept, was sky-high; a 1½-room apartment cost $600 a month and rent soared to $2,200 a month for a seven-room dwelling.

And folks were not striking each other with folded umbrellas to get there first. In fact, by July of last year, only 27 units were rented.

In August however, rents were lowered by about one-third. Now, 103 of the 114 units are rented and the others are expected to be occupied soon.

And those 27 families that were last July have recently signed two-and three-year leases.

"The only apartment-homes we have left," said Roger Massicotte, administrative assistant to Habitat, "are the three- and four-bedroom dwellings. If we had 50 or more one-bedrooms, they'd be gone in an instant."

Habitat '67 was part of Expo, Montreal's 1967 world's fair. It was supposed to include 1,000 units in 10 precast housing complexes. It was planned to be a city within a city, with churches, parks, shopping and cultural facilities. Because building costs were prohibitive, only one complex was constructed. Thus, there were not enough residents to make commerical structures economically sound.

Moshe Safdie, an Israeli-born architest, designed Habitat '67. He once made a tour of North American cities and concluded: "Metropolitan areas are falling apart... I saw thousands of high-rise apartment boxes with little or no sunlight... And the relation between city center, hub of work and knowledge, and the suburbs is quite arbitrary." He thought he could do better.

One of the problems with Habitat which, along with the steep rents, made it less than desirable, was its isolation from the center of Montreal. Habitat is located on the Cite du Havre, several miles from downtown. And there was a time when, if you had neither car nor horse, the closest you could get to the "hub" was by day-dream. This kind of seclusion was fine for meditation but hard on the stomach; shopping was a problem.

That has been straightened out. Limousine and bus service now is provided for residents.

Despite the ultramodern and luxurious appurtenances of Habitat — wall-length floor vents, adjustable lighting beams for focusing in any part of the room, "floating" refrigerators and washers that allow instant cleaning and one-piece fiberglass bathrooms — there still exist nagging annoyances; the water taps sometimes drip, the air-condition unit can be temperamental.

As for privacy, sometimes it, too, is more wish than reality.

"The other day," said a Montreal cab drivers, "I drove by Habitat and saw several other cabs lined up. It was unusual. I stopped and asked a cabbie what was going on. He said, 'Look for yourself.' And there, up around the fifth floor, was this gorgeous lady sunbathing. All she was wearing was sun-tan lotion."

Law in Missouri Series Will Be Offered

Plan For Courses

Members of the planning committee for the Law in Missouri series are left to right: Mrs. Robert Ramey; Mrs. Ruth Reynolds, area home economist; Mrs. Hugo Riesel and Mrs. William Burns.

Six sessions on the "Law in Missouri" will be offered in Sedalia this fall, according to Mrs. Ruth Reynolds, Extension area home economist coordinator.

All classes are open to the public. The first meeting has been scheduled for 7:30 p.m., Sept. 15. The meeting place will be announced later.

Subjects to be discussed will be estate planning, buying and selling real estate, buying on time and tenant-landlord agreements.

Teachers for the classes will all be attorneys who are members of the Missouri Bar Association.

Members of the planning committee are Mrs. William Burns, Mrs. Robert Ramey, Mrs. Hugo Riesel and Mrs. Wayne Rhodes.

Further information concerning the series may be obtained by contacting members of the committee or by calling the University Extension Center in Sedalia, phone 827-0591.

Will Preview Fair On 'Missouri Forum'

COLUMBIA, Mo. — A "Preview of the Missouri State Fair" will be the subject for fair officials appearing on the Aug. 9, "Missouri Forum." The annual Sedalia event which drew more than 320,000 visitors last year will run Aug. 16-24 with the theme, "The Big One."

Station KOMU-TV, Channel 8, of the University of Missouri - Columbia will telecast the program at 6 p.m. The University Extension Division here will tape it for simultaneous or later use by 60 co-operating radio stations in Missouri and bordering states.

Panelists will be W.C. Askew of Sedalia, fair secretary; John Heifner, administrative assistant to the Missouri commissioner of agriculture, Jefferson City, who administers the fair; and John Owen, special events director of the State Fair.

Practice For Show In Vietnam

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J. (AP) —Two blondes, a redhead and four brunettes — billed as the "Miss America - USO Show"— are practicing dances in a 90-degree "sweatbox" to ready themselves for a 22-day tour of military bases in Vietnam starting Aug. 9.

The troupe consists of Miss America, Judi Anne Ford of Belvidere, Ill., and six state beauty contest winners, who will present a musical revue, "24 Hours A Day."

The talented girls were picked from those who competed in the Miss America preliminaries by George Cavalier, producer of the Miss America Pageant, who also produces and directs the USO show annually.

Along with Miss America on the tour will be Miss Arkansas, Helen Gennings, 20, of Batesville; Miss Minnesota, Charlotte Sims, 21, of St. Paul; Miss Missouri, Kathi Goff, 23, of De Soto; Miss New Jersey, Linda Wilmer, 20, of Laurel Springs; and Miss New York, Patricia Burmeister, 25, of Rochester.

Last Monday, they started strenuous 12-hour daily rehearsals in a big auditorium over the Miss America Pageant office on the boardwalk.

A pageant official said the air-conditioning was turned off to get the girls accustomed to performing in conditions they will find in Vietnam. The windows were wide open but the fans left off.

All seven girls have school chums or acquaintances they hope to see in Southeast Asia. They also will take messages from people in the States and will bring messages back from the servicemen.

In addition to singing, dancing and doing comedy in a group, they will perform separate numbers.

They will do one or two shows a day, perhaps traveling from base to base via helicopter. They will go overseas by a military chartered plane.

Why do they want to go?

"It is not really up to us to decide whether the war is right or wrong," said Miss Missouri, Kathi Goff. "We are doing this because we believe in the boys there and in America."

The three major categories of accidents in pleasure boating are capsizing, which costs the most lives; fires and explosions, which caused the most property damage, and collisions, which result in the largest number of personal injuries, according to a firm which underwrites pleasure boat and yacht insurance.

New MoPac Idea

Missouri Pacific is putting 50 new 24-foot containers into service this week. The new units will be used to move goods from overseas to warehouses within MoPac's 12-state territory via ocean vessels and rail. The new containers are equipped with side doors as well as rear doors to accommodate dock-side fork-lift loading and unloading at inland warehouses. MoPac officials have noted a sharp increase in container traffic this year.

To Demonstrate Show-Me Area Horsemanship

(Democrat-Capital Service)

WINDSOR — On Saturday, 15 club members from each of the Show-Me Extension Area counties, Johnson, Lafayette, Pettis, and Henry, will meet at the Windsor Fairgrounds on East Highway 52 for the Show-Me Area Horse Show.

The show, which is planned and carried out under the direction of the Area Horsemanship Committee, was originally to have been held at the Show-Me Arena in Sedalia. The riders were selected from county shows and each county is to provide $35 for trophies, ribbons and a judge. In case of rain, it will be rescheduled for Aug. 12.

The Horsemanship Committee is made up of representatives from each of the four counties: Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Galloway, registrar; Charles Sparks and J. D. Gregory from Pettis County; George Hughs and Mr. and Mrs. Leroy Pearse, registrar, from Lafayette; Worley Eagleson, Dr. C. H. Veigel, and Mrs. Nadine Wyrick, registrar, Johnson County; and Ed Dugan, from Henry County.

Ann Landers

Embarrassed By Fiance's Laugh

Dear Ann Landers: The man I am going to marry enjoys our minister more than his own. For the past several months he has been attending Sunday worship with my parents and me. Something has been bothering me and I need to know if I am right or wrong.

Our minister has a warm, wonderful personality which comes through in his sermons. He frequently relates amusing anecdotes and adds a touch of humor to the services, to the delight of his parishoners.

My fiance has a rather peculiar laugh to begin with, and when the minister says something funny, he practically cackles his head off. This embarrasses me and I suspect my parents also are uncomfortable, although they have never said so.

Please tell me if it is proper to laugh out loud — very loud, that is — in church? — Blushing Bernadette

Dear Blush: I consulted with a priest, a minister and a rabbi. They all said virtually the same thing. Laughter is good for the soul. A hearty response to an amusing remark is a joy to the person who makes it — and clergymen are no exception.

Dear Ann Landers: When I married my husband five years ago we did not talk much about finances. I was married previously to a man whose illness left me in debt. I was determined to pay off all his obligations and did so, even though I had to sell my car and wedding ring to do it.

My second husband is a widower with two married children. He spoke vaguely about changing his will when we married. (When his wife died she wrote a will leaving everything to them.)

Yesterday I asked him the direct question, "Have you changed your will and provided for me?" He became sullen and replied, "Not yet, but I'll get around to it one of these days." I don't want to bring up the subject again, but I'd like to know if I'll be left without a penny if he should die before he gets around to it? — Worried in Wilmette

Dear W.I.W.: You don't have to worry about a complete shutout because you live in Illinois. Whether there is a will or not, the widow is entitled to one-third of her husband's estate. His children would get the rest.

Dear Ann Landers: My young brother (only 28) died two weeks ago. The autopsy showed he had a heart attack. This was a tremendous blow because no one knew he had a coronary problem.

Both his young widow and I went into shock. There were so many things that needed to be done and neither one of us thought to put the announcement in the newspaper. The funeral was small because not many people knew about it.

The relatives on both sides are mad at me. They say a widow has a right to fall apart, but a sister should remain strong and "take care of things."

I feel as if I have let everyone down. Have I? — Delores

Dear Delores: You did the best you could under difficult circumstances. God gave you two good ears for just such occasions as this. Let the criticism go in one and out the other.

Unsure of yourself on dates? What's right? What's wrong? Should you? Shouldn't you? Send for Ann Landers' booklet "Dating Do's and Don'ts," enclosing with your request 35c in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Telephone Company Gets Competition

GROUSE CREEK, Utah (AP) — The telephone company now has competition from The Telephone Company.

"The Telephone Co., Inc.," is the new corporate name of Silver Beehive Telephone Co., a firm serving about 60 customers in remote northwestern Utah.

"We changed the name because we're planning to expand," said company president Arthur W. Brothers of Grouse Creek. "The way things are now, if we lose one customer, it's a disaster."

The Bell system, which provides the bulk of the nation's telephone service, is often referred to simply as the telephone company.

Steel Price Increase Challenge to Nixon

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. Steel Corp.'s price boost on products used in everything from autos to garbage cans provides the Nixon administration with a major test of its anti-inflation policies.

It's "another measure of inflation" and "we're not happy with it," Vice President Spiro T. Agnew said of U.S. Steel's announcement of a 4.8 per cent increase affecting steels accounting for nearly 50 per cent of the tonnage sold by the industry.

A disturbing factor about the price hike by the industy's No. 1 producer was that it came on the same day the government released figures indicating a possible slowdown in the inflationary pace.

Now, U.S. Steel's price boosts, which probably will be followed by the rest of the industry, are almost certain to be passed on to the buying public in the form of fatter price tags on cars, washers, toasters, refrigerators and other consumer items.

The Bureau of Labor Statistics announced Wednesday the wholesale price index increased only one-tenth of one per cent in July, compared with a jump of four-tenths of a per cent in June.

This aroused hope of a similar cooling down of retail prices in the near future.

Agnew said any decision on attempting to rollback the price increases would have to await President Nixon's return next week from his world trip.

But the administration has said repeatedly it doesn't intend to use "jawbone" persuasion or establish voluntary wage-price guideposts such as set up during the Kennedy administration.

A series of price increases, including some major ones in the oil, copper, lead and zinc industries earlier this year, went unchallenged by the White House.

This wasn't the case during the previous two administrations.

Democratic Presidents John F. Kennedy and Lyndon B. Johnson tangled with the steel industry on several occasions, including the now famous 1962 affair when Kennedy succeeded in rolling back an across-the-board increase.

In justifying its price raises, U.S. Steel cited a payroll increase as well as higher taxes and increased costs for materials and services.

In order to get a close look at the giant sunflowers growing beside his home, John Kalthoff, son of the Rev. and Mrs. James Kalthoff, 1814 West 11th, found that a step-ladder was needed. Heavy rains earlier in the summer helped produce the giant flowers. (Democrat-Capital Photo)

Comparisons of the size of Smith-Cotton High School 25 years ago and now; what tax levy it took to operate then and now and the many building additions that have been added, were just a few things told the Smith-Cotton Class of 1944 by P. A. Sillers, superintendent of elementary education, at their recent class reunion held at Holiday Inn.

Registration and visiting time was held between 2 and 4 p.m., July 19, at the Holiday Inn, with a hospitality hour beginning at 6 p.m. Following the invocation at 7 p.m. by Chester Kirkpatrick, chairman of the reunion, the dinner began.

A welcoming address was given by Charles Eirls, Sunnyvale, Calif., senior class president, and introduction of guests followed. Special guests were Dr. and Mrs. Heber Hunt, Mrs. Doretta Waite, Mr. and Mrs. P. A. Sillers and Mr. and Mrs. Albert Steiner. Every class member then introduced their wife or husband and told something about their family.

Humorous gifts were presented by Mrs. Mary Lou Blatterman Woodall to Eugene Boone, Columbia, for having the youngest child; Mrs. Martha Berry Jennings for being married the longest; Mrs. Lyda Gerster Taggart, just home from Africa, for coming the greatest distance; Mrs. Bessie Leftwich Patterson for having the most children, and Mrs. P. A. Sillers was voted the classmate who has changed the least.

Following presentation of gifts, Kirkpatrick paid tribute to the members of the class who had died. With the program completed, Dave Robinson's band provided music for a dance.

Sunday morning found the active class together again at 10 a.m. for coffee, and at 1 p.m. Sillers escorted them through the chambers of their alma mater.

Power Firms Plan To Buy Approved

TONOPAH, Nev. (AP) — Sierra Pacific Power Co. won state approval to buy for $3 million the Southern California Edison Co., which provides electricity for two Nevada counties.

Reese Taylor, chairman of the Public Service Commission, said the transfer was approved in the dark at the close of a hearing Wednesday night after electric power failed during a thunderstorm.

Double Ring Ceremony Unites Miss Bolinger, M. Volkart

CALIFORNIA — In an afternoon ceremony July 26, at the United Methodist Church, Miss Kathy Lou Bolinger became the bride of Michael C. Volkart.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Bolinger, California, and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Dean Volkart, Russellville, Mo.

The Rev. Bill Secoy officiated at the double ring ceremony.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride selected an A-line, white organza over satin gown with square neckline and short sleeves of Chantilly lace. Her train, falling from her shoulders, was white organza over tulle edged with Chantilly lace, and a shoulder-length veil of bridal illusion was trimmed with three lace rosettes centered with pearls. She carried a bouquet of white pom pons outlined with blue pom pons.

Maid of honor, Miss Cheryl Bolinger, sister of the bride, and bridesmaids, Miss Joyce Bolinger and Miss Brenda Bolinger, also sisters of the bride, were attired in light blue brocade taffeta gowns with empire waistlines and square necklines. Their headpieces were light blue tulle, and each carried a bouquet of blue and white pom pons.

Flowergirl, Miss Lisa Allee, California, wore a gown similar to the attendants.

Serving as best man was Steven Jungmeyer, and groomsmen were Larry Payne and Phillip Cassil. Duane Amos and Glen Steenberger served as ushers. John Volkart, California, was ring bearer.

The bride is a 1968 graduate of the California High School and the groom is a 1968 graduate of the Russellville High School.

Mr. and Mrs. Dennis Ray Werneke

Miss Rose Is The Bride Of Dennis Ray Werneke

A candlelight ceremony was performed July 12 at the First Christian Church in the uniting of Miss Bette Gayle Rose and Dennis Ray Werneke.

Dr. Harry Purviance officiated at the double ring wedding for the niece of Mr. and Mrs. John W. Welch, 1112 West Seventh and the son of Mrs. Alvin Werneke and the late Mr. Werneke, Knob Noster. As Miss Rose was escorted down the isle by her father, John A. Rose, 1400 East 14th, she presented a white rosebud to Mrs. Werneke, mother of the groom and to her aunt, Mrs. Welch.

The setting was a bouquet of pink carnations and white gladioli centered beneath the altar cross and brass candelabra flanked the altar.

Organist, Miss Jan Hoffman, Sedalia, played "Wedding Carillion" by Schreiner as the guests entered. She also played "A Rose Breaks Into Bloom," as Paul Luce and Allen Giokaris lighted the candles, and "The Wedding March."

Miss Geniece Clawson, Eldon, sang "Oh Perfect Love" as guests entered and "The Lord's Prayer" as the couple knelt at the altar.

The bride selected an A-line, floor-length gown of silk organza over taffeta styled with empire waist and elbow length sleeves. A wide band of hand clipped French lace trimmed the waist and sleeves, and cut out motifs in the lace pattern, trimmed the front panel and chapel length train which was the width of the aisle. Her fingertip veil of silk illusion was secured with a large organza rose edged in the French lace, styled by Mrs. Ina Reed. Her bouquet of white roses and stephanotis, with shower of white satin ribbon, were carried upon a white Bible.

Miss Jane Patrick, cousin of the bride, Memphis, Tenn., was maid of honor. She wore a floor-length dress of pink rose brocade with shoulder length veil of tulle secured with a large pink rose. She carried a colonial bouquet of white miniature carnations with pink satin streamers. Bridesmaids, Miss Connie Rose, niece of the bride, Carson City, Nev. and Miss Teressa Alpert, Sedalia, wore floor-length brocade dresses, with short veil of tulle secured by a large rose; Miss Rose's dress was yellow and Miss Alpert was attired in blue. Matching colonial bouquets of carnations were carried by both.

Serving as best man was Glen Werneke, brother of the groom, Knob Noster, and groomsmen were Larry Montague, uncle of the groom, Valley Center, Kan. and Roger Harms, Knob Noster. All were attired in evening suits.

Ushers were B.J. Rose, brother of the bride, Rapid City, S.D.; Denny Mahin and Gary Welch, Knob Noster. Doormen were Allan Rose, Rapid City, S.D.; Terry Rose, Carson City Nevada; and Jerry Dean Welch, Knob Noster.

Flowergirl, Miss Julie Joy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arlan Joy, wore a full-length dress of green taffeta with short veil of green tulle. She carried a basket of pink and white miniature carnations.

For her niece's wedding, Mrs. Welch, chose a blue silk dress with matching accessories, and Mrs. Werneke, mother of the groom, wore a green knit dress with matching accessories. They both wore pink miniature corsages tied with white ribbon. Mrs. Della Rose, grandmother of the bride, was presented with a pink miniature carnation corsage.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held in the Fellowship Hall at the church with approximately 400 guests present. The bride's table was decorated with white ruffled net over white taffeta, and a tall silver candelabra holding a rainbow colored aster bouquet and five pink candles was the centerpiece. A four - tier white cake was decorated with pink roses and topped with wedding bells, and six small white heart cakes also decorated with pink roses, surrounded the wedding cake. A glass punch bowl, holding pink punch and ice rings of roses and stephanotis, surrounded by silver trays of nuts and mints, added the final touches to the table.

Serving at the table were Mrs. Larry Hendricks, Crocker, Mo.; Miss Quinetta Kateman, Jefferson City; Mrs. Carl Jacobson, Mission, Kan.; Mrs. Terry Forsberg and Miss Judy Steele, Sedalia.

At the gift table were Miss Monty Werneke, Knob Noster; Miss Beverly Morris, Miss Mary Ellen Gross and Miss Candy Wells, all of Sedalia. In charge of the guest book was Mrs. Jerry Young, Raytown.

For a wedding trip to Higginsville and then Columbus, Ga. where the couple resides, the bride chose a beige silk ensemble with coral accessories. Her corsage which was lifted from her wedding bouquet was of white roses and stephanotis.

The bride is a graduate of Smith-Cotton High School and Central Missouri State College. The groom is a graduate of Knob Noster High School and is in the U.S. Army Engineer Company at Fort Benning, Ga.

Relatives from out of state include Mr. and Mrs. Henry C. Wachtman, great-aunt of the bride, Skiatook, Okla.; Mr. and Mrs. Oscar D. Rose, Charleston, S.C.; Mrs. B. J. Rose and family, Rapid City, S.D.; Dr. and Mrs. Joe T. Patrick, Memphis, Tenn.; Miss Connie and Terry Rose, Carson City, Nev.

The bride-to-be was honored with a miscellaneous shower June 22, by Mrs. Johnny Murrell, 1408 State Fair Boulevard.

Mrs. Eugene Luce entertained with a miscellaneous shower July 7, at her home 1114 West 7th.

The future Mrs. Werneke was honored with a Bride's Maid of Honor Luncheon at the Bothwell Hotel, June 11, by Miss Jan Patrick. Corsages were presented to each by Miss Patrick and table decorations were pink roses.

A rehearsal dinner was given July 11 by the groom's mother, Mrs. Alvin Werneke, at their country home in Knob Noster.

Future Bride Is Showered

BUNCETON — Miss Colleen Smith, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hillard Smith, was honored with a bridal shower July 27, at the home of Mrs. Arthur Toellner, by Mrs. Toellner and her daughters, Mrs. Eldon Jones and Mrs. Harold Sherman.

Miss Smith is the bride-elect of Clarence Eisburge. An August 8 wedding is planned.

Mrs. David Allen Scheidt

Miss Dolores and D. Scheidt Wed On Parents' Anniversary

CALIFORNIA — On the 25th wedding anniversary of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Bestgen, Miss Mary Dolores became the bride of David Allen Scheidt, son of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Scheidt, California.

Before an altar of white daisies enhanced by two ivy entwined candelabras, the Rev. Jerome Bestgen performed the July 26 double ring ceremony and Nuptial Mass in the Annunciation Catholic Church.

Serving were Danny Bestgen, brother of the bride and Steven Scheidt cousin of the bride and groom.

Miss Kathryn Strickfaden played traditional wedding music and accompanied Mike Bolin as he sang "The Lord's Prayer," "Whither Thou Goest," "Ave Maria," and "On This Day."

Given in marriage by her father, the bride chose an A-line, full-length gown of delustered satin, featuring a Chantilly lace bodice, scalloped edged sabrina neckline, and traditional long sleeves that tapered to a point over the wrist. Double-edged scalloped Chantilly lace trimmed the skirt from waist to hemline and a wide chapel length train fastened at the shoulders with two flat bows. A Swedish styled triple crown of embroidered lace was outlined with tiny seed pearls and aurora borealis crystal beads secured the bouffant veil of silk illusion. The bride carried a cascade of snowdrift centered with a cluster of baby yellow roses.

Mrs. Mona Marshall, sister of the bride, served as matron of honor, and Miss Becky Bestgen, sister of the bride, Miss Vicki Scheidt, and Miss Susan Scheidt, both sisters of the groom were bridesmaids. All four wore gowns of rainbow yellow, pink, green and blue, styled with silk chiffon over taffeta, smooth fitting bodice and modified wide scoop neckline. Each carried a white woven basket of daisies and rainbow showers and wore a cluster of daisies in her hair.

Junior bridesmaid, Miss Judy Scheidt, cousin of the bride and groom, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Scheidt, California, wore a yellow dress and headpiece like the attendants. She carried a miniature basket of daisies and rainbow showers.

Best man was Vincent Imhoff, California, and Jim Fischer, Mike Scheidt, cousins of the bride and groom, and Eddy Bestgen, brother of the bride, were groomsmen. Ushers were Jack Howard, Larry Fenton, both of St. Ann, Mo., and Kenny Marshall, brother-in-law of the bride.

Miss Sandra Scheidt, sister of the groom, Denver, Colo., presided at the guest book, and Mrs. Don Matthews, aunt of the bride, California, assisted with the flowers.

A reception followed in the corridor of the school with Mrs. Ed Garber, Tipton; Mrs. Bob Reynolds, California; Mrs. Bob Coale, California; Mrs. Hughie Thompson, Springfield and Mrs. James Luebbert, Jefferson City, aunts of the bride, serving.

Gifts were received by Misses Boby Gene and Thora Coale, cousins of the bride, and Misses Mary Lou and Rita Scheidt, cousins of the bride and groom. Multi-colored rice bags were distributed by Miss Denise Marshall, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Marshall, niece of the bride.

For a wedding trip to Oklahoma, the new Mrs. Scheidt wore a white A-line dress with yellow accessories and a corsage of baby yellow roses lifted from her bridal bouquet.

The couple will reside at Kingston Estates, Bethalto, Ill.

The bride is a 1968 graduate of California High School and attended Central Missouri State College, Warrensburg. The groom is a 1965 graduate of California High School and a 1969 graduate of Linn Technical School, Linn, Mo. He is presently employed by Cherokee Pipelines.

Mrs. Charles Raymond Reynolds

White and Yellow Setting For Fuller - Reynolds Vows

KNOB NOSTER — The Valley City Christian Church was decorated with altar baskets of large yellow daisies and white gladioli flanked by branched candelabra for the afternoon wedding July 26th, of Sharon Kay Fuller, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ruben Fuller of Knob Noster, and Charles Raymond Reynolds, son of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Reynolds of Route 2, Warrensburg.

The Rev. Frank Cogdill officiated at the double ring ceremony. Mrs. Clyde Brownfield played traditional wedding selections and accompanied Mrs. Marion Lee Baldwin, who sang, "The Wedding Prayer" and "Each For The Other."

Given in marriage by her brother-in-law, Larry Wessing, Pilot Grove, the bride chose an empire gown of bridal satin with an overlay of lace. Her attached train was also in lace, and a bouffant veil of illusion fell from a coronet of lace, seed pearls and crystals. Her pearl necklace was a gift of the groom, and she carried a bouquet of yellow rosebuds and white baby breath.

Attending the bride as matron of honor was her twin sister, Mrs. Wessing, Pilot Grove. Her baby blue dotted Swiss gown extended into a flowing train and was trimmed in blue and white daisies. She wore a circle headpiece and carried a bouquet of yellow and white daisies with blue baby breath. The bridesmaids, identically dressed, were Mrs. Cully Scott, Knob Noster, sister of the bride, and Mrs. Sam Kanoy, Concordia. Miss Deanna Droege, Knob Noster and Miss Mary Jo Reynolds, Warrensburg, candlelighters, in floor length empire gowns of blue dotted Swiss trimmed also with daisies, carried white candles entwined with lily of the valley and ribbon. A bow held their veils and each wore a wrist corsage of yellow and white daisies.

Nephews of the bride, Brad Scott, carried the Bible and Timmy Fuller, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jim Fuller carried the rings.

Serving as best man was Ronnie Elling, Concordia, assisted by Jerry Kuhlman of Knob Noster and Sam Kanoy of Concordia, as groomsmen. Seating the guests were Bruce Reynolds and Donnie Reynolds, Warrensburg.

A navy blue lace dress and white accessories were selected by the mother of the bride, Mrs. Fuller for the wedding, and Mrs. Reynolds chose a three-piece suit of light blue with white accessories. Both had yellow rosebud corsages.

At the reception following the ceremony, a three-tiered wedding cake, trimmed in yellow rosebuds and sugar bells and topped with a miniature bride and groom, centered the bride's table. Assisting with the serving were Mrs. Theodore Kuhlman, Miss Nancy Kearney, and Miss Barbara Brownfield. Mrs. Jim Fuller, Boonville, was in charge of the guest book, and Mrs. Perry Ruff, Mrs. Bill Turner, and Miss Laura Nace attended the gift table.

For her wedding trip through Colorado, the bride chose a yellow A-line dress with white accessories, and the corsage from her bridal bouquet.

The couple is at home on their farm on Route 2, east of Warrensburg.

Mrs. Reynolds is a graduate of the Knob Noster Senior High School, and is employed at the Citizens Bank in Warrensburg.

Mr. Reynolds is a graduate of the Concordia Public High School, and is engaged in farming.

Out of town guests included Mr. and Mrs. Abe Ziesen of Marion, S.D.; Mr. and Mrs. Doug Fryrear of Gravois Mills; Mr. and Mrs. Everett Lipscomb and Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Lipscomb of Clinton.

Mr. and Mrs. Michael Hardy Shea

Miss Schroeder-Shea Wed In An Evening Ceremony

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. — In an evening ceremony July 7, at the United Presbyterian Church, Miss Janis Lee Schroeder became the bride of Michael Hardy Shea.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Howard E. Schroeder, and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Cloyd H. Shea, Otterville.

The Rev. Laurence A. Sunkel, Jr. officiated at the ceremony before a communion table decorated with white and yellow mums and white gladioli and accented by brass candelabra. Traditional music selections were played, and Raymond Schroeder, brother of the bride sang "Largo."

Given in marriage by her mother and father, the bride chose an empire waisted, ivory, delustered satin gown with elbow length sleeves and peter pan collar, trimmed with lace and pearls. The back panel of the dress formed a train and a silk illusion veil flowed from an ivory rose. She carried a bouquet of white lillies, stephanotis, and ivy on a white bible.

Miss Kathleen Shea, sister of the groom was maid of honor, and Patrick Shea, brother of the groom was best man.

H. Raymond Schroeder, brother of the bride and Rodger Unverzagt, Indianapolis, served as ushers.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Schroeder chose a dress of yellow lace over crepe, with yellow pillbox hat and matching accessories.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held in the church, with 50 guests attending. The bride's table was covered with white organdy over yellow cloth, trimmed with yellow mums, white daisies and pearls, and silver candelabra. The three-tiered wedding cake was topped with miniature bride and groom.

For a wedding trip to Miami Beach, Fla., the new Mrs. Shea chose a sleeveless, A-line navy dress with empire waist, trimmed in red and white, and accented by red, white and blue accessories.

The bride received her A.B. degree in English from Hanover College, Hanover, Ind. The groom is a student at the University of Missouri, Rolla, majoring in mechanical engineering.

The couple returned to Indianapolis July 14 where they will reside at 3407 Ashley Lane, Apt. A.

Namath Frankly Admits Fans Don't Like Him

CHICAGO (AP) — "They don't like me."

With that frank and obvious answer Joe Namath, the controversial, shaggy-haired quarterback of the New York Jets, put his finger squarely on the reason for the hostility that greeted him Friday night at the All-Star football game.

The big question is: Why?

There probably are two answers:

Because Chicago is a National Football League stronghold and Namath represents the American League, and because some of his appeal apparently has been lost due to his headline-making dispute with Commissioner Pete Rozelle.

Ticket sales lagged while Namath languished in retirement, refusing to sell his interest in a New York night spot as ordered by Rozelle. But as soon as he agreed to sell two weeks ago and rejoined the Jets things changed.

By game time, 74,208 fans were jammed into Soldiers Field—the largest crowd since an estimated 75,000 turned out in 1957.

They not only booed him when he appeared, but cheered every time he missed a receiver and seemed to be thoroughly enjoying the fact that Namath was having difficulty with an All-Star squad that was subdued by only the thinnest of margins, 26-24.

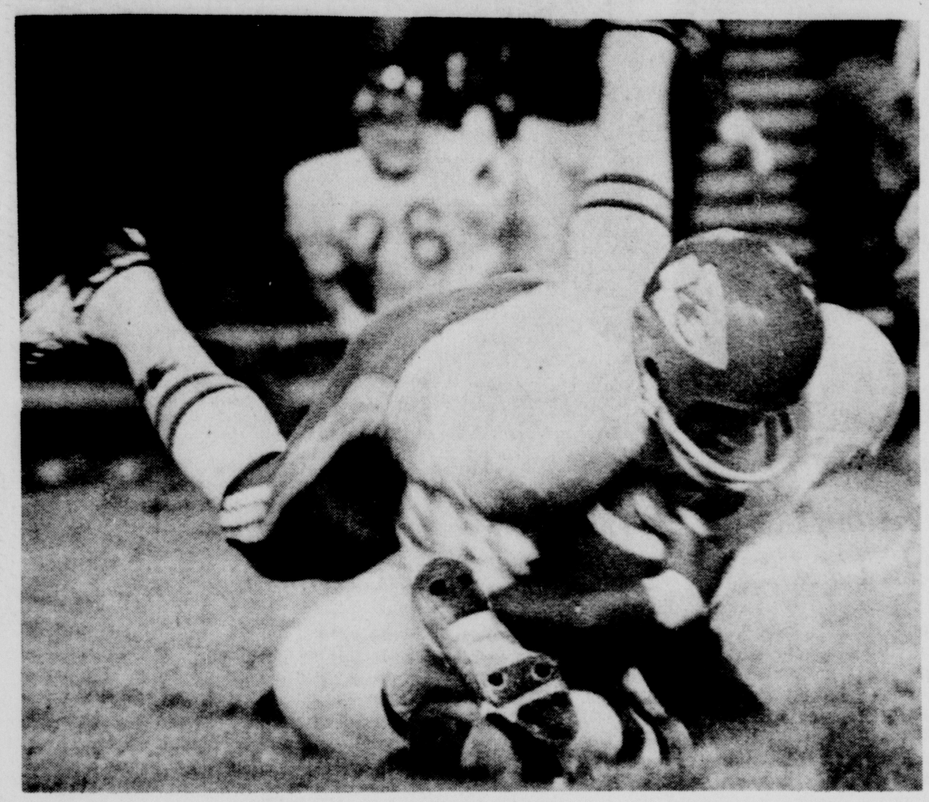
"I expected it," said Namath of his reception. "It's an NFL city."

As for his performance, Namath expressed dissatisfaction despite completing 17 of 32 passes for 292 yards. Two passes, however, were intercepted and not one went for a touchdown.

But he refused to reach for an alibi—such as the week of training camp he missed while me met with Rozelle to solve their dispute. That left him only 10 days to prepare for this first game.

"I wasn't throwing worth a flip," he admitted. "Mentally wasn't as sharp as I should have been. But at this stage I'm satisfied. It really doesn't matter, though, what it looks like. We won."

But personally he lost.



Up-ended

Chiefs Escape with Win

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — Gene Trosch recovered a fumble and Jackie Lee threw a scoring pass to Robert Holmes to give Kansas City a 23-17 victory over Oakland Saturday night in the first exhibition game of the season for the two American Football League clubs.

The 21-yard pass was set up when Eldridge Dickey, filling in for the injured Daryle Lamonica, fumbled early in the fourth period.

Oakland had gone ahead 17-13 in the third period on a field goal by the 41-year-old George Blanda and a 44-yard scamper by linebacker Bill Budness after he intercepted a pass.

After a scoreless first period, Jan Stenerud kicked field goals of 38 and 16 yards to give Kansas City a 6-0 margin.

Dickey then ran over from the 20 and Blanda converted to give Oakland a 7-6 lead before Jack Gehrke took a 28-yard pass from Len Dawson to send the Chiefs to a 13-7 halftime advantage.

Lamonica had gone out early in the second period after he was struck on the head by an opponents' helmet. An Oakland spokesman said Lamonica appeared okay.

After Kansas City went ahead in thel pod, Stenerud increased the margin with a 23-yard field goal.

Dickey led the Raiders to the three with less than a minute to go but then was thrown back to the 17 and the drive failed.

Family Affair at Fair

The second father and son combination, Ron Hutcherson and his father, Leon, of Keokuk, Iowa, will make a bid for the '69 national stock car championship, when the IMCA new model car races are held in conjunction with the Missouri State Fair here Aug. 17, and again on Aug. 23.

Young Hutcherson, the brother of two-time IMCA champion and NASCAR great, Dick Hutcherson, has entered the former Dave Pearson 1969 Ford Torino in the three new model contests.

Ron, who is now rated third nationally with only six IMCA races under his belt so far this year, will have the expert advice and tutelage of his father, Leon, who schooled brother Dick in his early days, on the tough Midwestern dirt track circuit.

Ron wants to win races on his own and make a reputation for himself rather than live in the shadows of a famous auto racing brother. Dick, who retired from active racing last year to take over the team management of Dave Pearson, who is now leading the NASCAR circuit; is responsible for young Ron's participation in IMCA racing. He helped purchase the Torino that Pearson drove in the Daytona "500" last February.

Young Hutcherson has shown championship qualities and with a break in mechanical fitness should bring his Ford Torino into the winner's circle on many occasions this year.

In the recent Iowa "300" Ron has a one and one half lap lead on Ernie Derr, Fred Horn, Irv Janey, and Tiny Lund when ignition trouble forced him to relinquish the lead and pull into the pits, which cost him four laps placing him seventh at the finish.

IMCA sprint car races will be held the afternoons of Aug. 16, and Aug. 24. The 16th annual Missouri modified championship races will be held Aug. 16, and Aug. 22. Reserved seats are now on sale at the state fair ticket office.

Dr. Pepper Drops Its First Tourney Game

Sedalia's Dr. Pepper softball team lost its first game 5-3 in the Marshall District Softball Tournament Friday night at the Marshall stadium to Hall Motor Company, Sweet Springs.

Douglas Messer, Hall's pitcher, went all the way to score a win with Roger Meyer doing the receiving.

Paul Pettigrew took the loss for the home team, Dr. Pepper with David Grupe catching.

David Meyer started the top of the second inning for Sweet Springs with a double, followed by Roger Meyer flying to center field and David Meyer stealing third.

Cannon singled to right-center, allowing David Meyer to score for the first run of the ball game.

Gary Jones got on base for Dr. Pepper in the bottom of the second, followed by a home run over the left field fence by first baseman Lloyd Kindle.

In the top of the third, Weber singled into left for Hall's and Fangman and Lindeman followed with singles into center and left fields. Weber later scored on a passed ball and Klug tripled driving in Fangman and Lindeman.

Roger Meyer led off for Hall's in the top of the fourth and beat out an infield hit, and later went to second on an overthrow by the short stop. Cannon popped out to the third baseman and Messer was called out on strikes. Webber then got on base on a hit to right-center field and Meyer scored.

Hagerman, Dr. Pepper's right-fielder reached first on an overthrow by Hall's shortstop. This was followed by a single by Kindle which drove Hagerman to third.

Kindle stole second and Abney grounded out to the shortstop while Hagerman scored on the play.

Dr. Pepper's next game in the double elimination tournament will be played at 3:30 p.m. Sunday against the loser of the second Friday night game, between Bunceton and Clinton Goodyear.

Fails to Score

David Grupe, catcher for the Dr. Pepper softball team, makes a good tag during the top of third inning of tournament play between Dr. Pepper and Hall's Motor Company, Sweet Springs. The baserunner, Jim Klug, was tagged out at home when he tried to score on a throw to first base by Grupe moments before.

The Sedalia Little League all-stars became district and regional champions of Missouri and Oklahoma Saturday night as they downed Bartlesville, Okla. 7-0 at Joplin.

Brian Kennon, Sedalia hurler, won the contest with a shutout, as 0's were dealt to a team in the fifth of five games in the tourney. Kennon also added a home run to his effort. Greg Gooch also knocked a round-tripper for Sedalia.

The all-stars will advance to Omaha, Neb. for competition next weekend.

Sedalia's Little League all-star team won its first game of the regional championships at Joplin Friday night, downing DeSoto 1-0 in eight innings.

Winning pitcher Tony Lock won his own game with a home run in the final inning.

BASEBALL

DETROIT (AP) — Luis Aparicio knocked in three runs with a homer and two singles while Gary Peters homered and pitched a six-hit shutout as the Chicago White Sox trimmed the Detroit Tigers 5-0 Saturday.

Aparicio's homer, only his second of the year, came off starter and loser Mickey Lolich, 14-4, and gave the White Sox a 1-0 edge in the first inning.

The veteran shortstop then knocked in a run in the third on a single after Walt Williams doubled. In the seventh, Aparicio singled in the third Chicago run after a walk to Don Pavletich and a single by Williams.

Peters, 7-11, hit a leadoff homer in the ninth. The shutout was his third of the year and second over Detroit. It was Peter's first victory in nearly a month and only the second in the last 12 games for the White Sox.

Big 8 Coaches to Meet

KANSAS CITY — The 63rd Big Eight Conference football season, which coincides with the centennial of collegiate football, receives an off-the-field kickoff in Kansas City next week when all eight head football coaches gather here for their annual meeting and associated activities.

Highlight of the session for Big Eight football fans will be the Kickoff Luncheon, to be held at noon August 11 in the Imperial Ballroom of the Hotel Muehlebach. The luncheon expected to attract over 1,000 fans, features presentations by the eight head football coaches. Bruce Rice, sports director at KCMO , will be master of ceremonies for the affair, which will have the centennial as its general theme.

Tickets for the luncheon, priced at $3.50 each, are still available at the Big Eight Conference office in the Hotel Muehlebach.

The meeting will mark the Kansas City debut of a new head coach in the Conference, Oklahoma State's Floyd Gass. Also appearing will be the Big Eight's three bowl-team coaches, Kansas' Pepper Rodgers, Missouri's Dan Devine, and Oklahoma's Chuck Fairbanks.

Other head coaches on the program are: Bob Devaney of Nebraska, the nation's winningest coach with a .778 percentage; John Majors of Iowa State, starting his second season; Eddie Crowder of Colorado, opening his seventh campaign at Colorado, and Vince Gibson of Kansas State, whose team carried the "dark-horse" tag in the league.

In addition to the coaches, the Chevrolet sports art collection, depicting the evolution of collegiate football, and the Conference's football highlights film, "Big Eight Football at Its Best", 1968, will be featured. The sports art collection will be on display both before and after the luncheon and the film will be shown immediately after the coaches' portion of the program.

Again this year, the luncheon falls just two weeks prior to the opening of football practice. Dates in the Big Eight for opening of the fall sessions, which are determined by an NCAA formula, vary from August 25 at Colorado and August 28 at Iowa State to August 29 for the others. The first three days for all will be days of conditioning with protective equipment limited to just helmets. All Big Eight teams open the season on September 20.

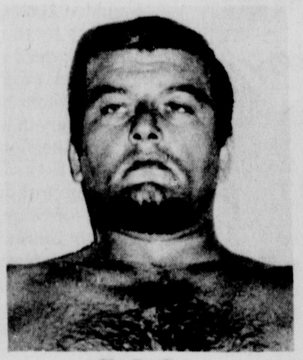
Actually, the luncheon and the business meeting of the football coaches will start a week of football meetings for the Conference. Later in the week, the Big Eight's 55 varsity and freshman football officials will convene for their annual clinic at the President Hotel. Again this year, prospective varsity officials and those assigned to fresh man football games have the option to join varsity officials for the meetings.

The meetings for the officials get under way on August 14 when the eight position leaders and clinic staff members huddle with John Waldorf, Conference supervisor of football officials, to complete clinic plans. Positional representatives are: Vance Carlson, McPherson, Kansas, referees; Cliff Squires, Lincoln, Nebraska, umpires; Gordon DuPree, Stillwater, Oklhaoma, linesmen; Dick Thompsonp North Platte, Nebraska, field judges; and E. Wayne Cooley, Des Moines, Iowa, back judges. In addition, Marcus Rosky, Des Moines, Iowa, M. G. Volz, Lincoln, Nebraska, and Ed Dubie, Sand Springs, Oklahoma, all retired Conference officials, will join Waldorf in leading various discussions.

Meetings continue Friday with the testing of all officials, and wind up Saturday evening after more study sessions, rules review meetings, and mechanics discussions.

Conference football coaches, in addition to matters pertaining to the conduct of playing rules for the 1969 season, will review such items as centennial year activities, promotion of Conference football, crowd and sideline control, limitations, and other matters pertaining to the conduct of Big Eight football programs.

Danny Little Bear



K. O. Cox

Danny Little Bear, K.O. Cox to Collide

Talented Danny Little Bear, fast moving up the area wrestling ladder, will try to boost his stock even higher when he collides with rugged K.O. Cox in the Convention Hall ring Tuesday night.

The pairing will headline a five-event program that will include a unique midget battle royal in which the participants will box while blindfolded.

Little Bear advanced his cause last Tuesday by turning back veteran Bob Geigel in a gruelling test of speed and power. Bear introduced Geigel to the upside-down Indian deathlock, a device that has been one of the most effective weapons in Danny's ring arsenal.

A midget tag team clash will make up Tuesday's semifinal, with Little Bruiser teaming with the Crusher to oppose Cowboy Lang and Bobo Johnson.

For the battle royal slugfest, all four of the tiny fellows will be flindfolded in what promises to be a wild, free-swining affair.

Scheduled after the main event, the royal will continue until one of the midgets has clearly demonstrated his superiority over the others.

Ronnie Etchison, a Sedalia favorite, will also be in the lineup. The 240-pound veteran from St. Joseph will tackle rowdy Jack Monroe in the special event.

Scheduled in the 8:30 opener are Little Bruiser and Lang.

Intermediate, Junior Swimmers Win Places

Intermediate and junior aged swimmers from the Surf Club of Sedalia traveled to Jefferson City Saturday to participate in a swim meet limited to those 14 years add and under.

Many of the local swimmers turned their best times of the season in the short distance events.

Those capturing one or more first place awards were Alan Braverman, freestyle; Lisa Jensen, backstroke, freestyle and breastroke; Bill Rabourn, backstroke, breastrroke, freestyle; Diane Cordry, freestyle and butterfly; David Stoll, freestyle, backstroke, breastroke; Susan Talbot, backstroke; Brian Beaudette, breastroke and butterfly; Stuart Braverman, backstroke; Skip McGuire, backstroke, breastroke; Mary Beth McGuire, backstroke.

Second place winners were Jeanie Byrum, Jamie Schumaker, Stuart Braverman, Jack Hawkins, Julie Joy, Susan Stole, Alan Braverman, Tracey Curry, Susan Talbot, Alan Braverman and Steve Glass.

Third place winners were Becky Jaeger, Tony Beaudette, Stuart Braverman, Susan Stoll, Jack Beaudette and Julie Joy.

Gaining one or more fourth place awards were Mary Beth McGuire, Tom Stoll, Kathy Anderson, David Braverman, Jamie Schumaker, Kim Anderson, Greg Banaka, Jim Schumaker and Jeanie Byrum.

Final action of the season for the swimmers will be next Saturday and Sunday when a contingent will journey to the Kansas City area for a meet at the Homestead Country Club.

'Duke' Shading 'Bear'

NEW YORK (AP) — "The Duke" shades "The Bear" as major college football's 'best percentage' coach. But if Nebraska's Bob Devaney has a slightly better batting average, Alabama's Paul Bryant is easily the winningest in his profession.

Robert S. "Duke" Devaney, a genial Irishman doubling as athletic director, has restored gridiron prestige for the Cornhuskers and helped bring greatest-ever acclaim to the Big Eight Conference.

In his 12 seasons as a head coach, Devaney has posted a mark of 94-26-5 for a .783 percentage. At Nebraska, his seven teams have cut a handsome 59-16 path through the opposition.

Bear Bryant, continuing to wage a sizzling duel with fellow Southeastern Conference mentor John Vaught, bests the Maestro of Old Miss by the narrowest of margins, .770 to .769, for runner-up position. His 187 coaching victories, built from Maryland through Kentucky and Texas A&M to Alabama, are tops in the active ranks, 17 better than Vaught.

After playing the "other end" opposite Don Hutson as a 'Bama undergrad, Bryant painstakingly constructed a 187-56-15 record in 24 seasons. His most recent nine years at Tuscaloosa have produced amazing 84-11-4, .884 results.

Vaught, an All-America guard at Texas Christian, has fashioned his 170-51-12 showing entirely with the Rebels.

The ratings are based on 10 or more seasons.

Missouri's Dan Devine and Woody Hayes, fresh from leading his Ohio State Buckeyes to the national championship, stand fourth and fifth, respectively.

Devine, in 14 seasons has a record of 105-33-8 for .761.

Smithton Bank Drops a Pair To Columbia

SMITHTON — The Smithton Bank men's softball team dropped a doubleheader to a tough Columbia Redbird team Friday night at Smithton.

In the first game, Columbia's pitcher, Lowell Marsch, turned in a fine pitching performance as he limited the Smithton hitters to three hits in posting a 6-0 shutout. Ronnie Landreth took the loss for Smithton.

In the second game, Columbia scored an unbelievable 10 runs in the final inning to bring home the double victory. Smithton had led on the grand slam home run of Bill Ripley. The final score was 10-9. Bill Vaughn took the win while Larry Yunt took the loss for Smithton Bank.

Greg Cook Shades Taylor As Most Valuable Player

CHICAGO (AP) — Quarterback Greg Cook of Cincinnati shaded swift halfback Altie Taylor of Utah State for Most Valuable Player honors on the resurging college All-Star team which left the New York Jets a shaky kingpin of the pro football realm Friday night.

The Chicago Tribune, sponsor of the 36th All-Star game — which ended with the Joe Namath-led Jets sweating out a 26-24 decision at the final gun — announced that Cook edged Taylor by a scant two votes in a press box poll.

The ballot totals were not disclosed, but Sports Editor George Strickler of the Tribune said Cook, who hurled a record All-Star three touchdown passes, and Taylor, who ignited an electrifying 17-point All-Star third quarter, garnered all except five votes.

Taylor set a game record for All-Stars and pros with his tide-turning, 78-yard kickoff return in the third quarter.

Cook, Cincinnati U's NCAA total offense leader last season, stole the spotlight from the Jets' much-publicized and well-jeered Namath by hurling his three touchdown passes all in a second half. That erased a 16-0 All-Star deficit and had the Super Bowl champions hanging onto rapidly shrinking prestige at the end.

The 6-foot-4, 210-pound Cook, who may stride right into the No. 1 quarterback job for the American Football League's Cincinnati Bengals—who made him their top draft choice—completed 12 of 23 passes for 241 yards.

Cook played the entire second half and fired scoring passes of 17 yards to Gene Washington of Stanford; 12 to Bob Klein of Southern California, and, with 16 seconds left, a 19-yard shot to Jerry Levias of Southern Methodist.

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Rookie Frank Baker greeted Kansas City reliever Moe Drabowsky with a two-run triple in the seventh inning Saturday night, carrying the Cleveland Indians to a 6-4 victory over the Royals.

Cap Peterson lashed a pinch hit double and took third on Dave Nelson's single in the seventh before Drabowsky replaced loser Tom Burgmeier and Baker tripled to right, breaking a 4-4 tie.

Sam McDowell, making his second relief appearance in two seasons, came on in the seventh to preserve the triumph for Stan Williams, 4-10.

After the Royals scored three runs in the second on two walks, an error, a fielder's choice and Joe Keough's single, Cleveland tied the game 3-3 in the fourth against Chris Zachary, a 25-year-old right-hander making his American League debut. Ken Harrelson doubled in one run, and Duke Sims and Lou Klimchock singled in one each.

Jose Cardenal stole home in the fifth to put Cleveland ahead, but Kansas City got even in the bottom half on singles by Burgmeier and Joe Keough and a sacrifice fly by Paul Schaal.

How You Play the Game

You poker buffs out there know that some like to play the game loose, others tight; some bull the pot, others are cagey. They call it strategy, win or lose.

Many participants cling to a sterile technique which makes them vulnerable to those who are unpredictable in their response to the show of cards and the betting.

For observers the poker game can be a study of character.

Say you're holding three deuces and are bluffed out by a pair of jacks. This really happens, but does it mean anything more than as a card player, you'd be better off sticking with solitaire? asks a contemporary.

Yes, it does, according to a couple of university researchers who have completed a four year study of the enigmas involving how participants play the game.

Their conclusion is that if you're a consistent loser at poker, chances are you aren't playing the cards right in the game of life, either.

Prof. Thomas M. Martinez of California's Santa Clara University and Robert Lafranchi, a graduate student who put himself through school as a dealer, say they found a significant correlation between business and social success and success at the card table — and vice versa — in a four-year study of 300 poker players out there, not in Sedalia.

Winners, they say, tend to carry over to the game the same self-confident, outgoing, well-organized characteristics that make them successes in life. They play "primarily for the satisfaction of succeeding through personal skill," treating poker "neither a release nor an escape, but a way of life, a continuation of a game they thoroughly enjoy and master..." They are good bluffers. And don't we know it, sounds a chorus of regular victims!

Losers, on the other hand — listen to this — are short on confidence and self-discipline. They seek release from social tensions in poker but in carrying over the characteristics that have led to business and personal disappointments, they are likely to repeat at the table the pattern of second best hands in life. Neither a fresh deck nor a new deal is going to do much for them. Is it really that bad? some players may ask after being on the losing end so long.

All of this makes a neat theory. But there's still a joker in the deck.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

Nixon, Ceausescu Can Do Business

By DREW PEARSON AND JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON — One team of columnists has reported that the real reason for President Nixon's trip to Romania was to persuade that government to release Jews for migration to Israel. Nothing could be further from the truth.

Jews began migrating out of Romania as early as during the war under a special arrangement worked out by Archbishop Angelo Giuseppe Ronconalli, later Pope John. Since then relations between Israel and Romania have been very cordial, and Romania frequently votes with Israel in the United Nations.

There is complete freedom of religious worship in Romania today. And the former Romanian Ambassador to Washington, Silviu Brucan, is Jewish.

The chief reasons for Nixon's surprise move in stopping off in Romania are:

1. Nixon had a very profitable two-hour talk with President Ceausescu of Romania in 1967. The two men liked each other and concluded that the United States and Romania could do business together. "Nixon is a practical man," Ceausescu later told us. "He wants peace and so do we."

Accordingly, one month after Nixon was inaugurated he received a formal invitation to visit Romania.

2. He wants to thank the Romanians for pressuring the North Vietnamese government toward peace. Romania has been more vigorous in this respect than any other Communist country.

3. He wants to ask the Romanians to convey a message to the Chinese Reds that the United States has no intention of encroaching on Chinese territory once there is peace in Southeast Asia — despite the statements by Chiang Kai-Shek that he intended to invade the Chinese mainland.

4. Nixon wants to counter his vote as a member of Congress against the Truman policy of sending surplus wheat to the smaller European Communist nations. Truman was called pro-Communist for this policy, and Nixon was one who joined the criticism. The policy, however, has worked.

—Malaxa was Nixon Client—

Nixon knows Romanians to some extent, thanks to his relations with Nicolae Malaxa, a onetime fascist and partner of Albert Goering, brother of Field Marshal Hermann Goering. Malaxa later came to the United States under the auspices of the Communist government and hired the Nixon law firm in Whittier, Calif.

The move had all the earmarks of a contrivance to get the influence of an important senator, in order to keep Malaxa in the United States. Malaxa made a big show of building a steel tube plant in Whittier. Nixon's close pal, Rep. Pat Hillings of Los Angeles, who replaced Nixon in Congress, introduced a bill to prevent Malaxa from being deported, while Nixon's old friend, Sen. Pat McCarran of Nevada, did the same thing in the Senate.

In the end, Malaxa did not build a steel tube plant in Whittier, but thanks to Nixon's influence he is still in the United States.

The most important question diplomats are discussing regarding the President's stop in Bucharest is whether it will offend Russia, inasmuch as Romania is the most independent of all the Communist countries with the exception of Yugoslavia.

The general consensus among diplomats is that it will not. It probably will antagonize some of the diehards in the Kremlin, but the average Russian leader cannot object to the United States promoting friendship with a member of the Communist bloc. Had Nixon been interfering with the Russian army in Czechoslovakia, it would have been different. But both he and Johnson have both kept hands strictly off Czechoslovakia.

President Nixon will find Romania to be one of the most prosperous countries in Europe, for a time rated as high as Switzerland and Japan in its gross national product. Romania has made tremendous strides in housing, and if the President drives outside Bucharest, in the suburbs he will see row upon row of huge apartment houses recently built around parks and lakes.

He will also see women doing manual work. This is not unusual in the Communist countries, and in Romania those who are on relief are required to work. Young girls who come in from the countryside to get jobs in Bucharest and may be temporarily unemployed get welfare jobs pouring concrete or laying sod.

Around the streets of Bucharest after midnight you scarcely see a policeman, but you do see unaccompanied women. The crime rate in Romania is extremely low. Since Nixon campaigned on a policy of "cleaning up crime in the streets" and is sending a message to Congress on welfare next week, these are matters which he might want to check into.

There is only one thing Romania really wants from the United States — namely, more trade, particularly most-favored-nation treatment. Yugoslavia now enjoys this type of trade. Romania feels that it should be treated equally.

So far Romania has had only unfortunate experiences with the United States regarding trade. When the Firestone Rubber Company signed a contract to set up a petrochemical plant near Ploesti, the Young Americans for Freedom cooperating with Firestone's competitor, Goodyear, started a boycott. Firestone yielded to pressure, reneged on its contract.

Letter to the Editor

LEE KLUTTZ (Clinton, Mo.) — I very much recommend the letter to the editor by Jack L. Lobaugh, president of the Letter Carriers, in your July 25 issue of the Sedalia Capital. The proposed Postal Corporation plan as outlined by non-postal "experts" should be given serious thought by the public; and I urge each of you to write your representatives in Congress to let them know that the public opposes this corporation plan. This plan as outlined would result in much higher postal rates, less service to the public, and more discontent among the employees.

I read an article in the paper that it was predicted if this plan became law then our letter rate would go up to as high as 12 cents whereas it is now 6 cents per ounce.

I am not opposed to postal reform. The service needs many changes but those changes can be accomplished within the department and without tearing down the present system. I believe for the good of the patrons and employees the Post Office should remain a department of government under Congressional control. Any public protest of service cuts in mail delivery or hours of postal service would fall on deaf ears if there were no elected Congressmen to hear them. I believe the postal service is a service to serve all the people and not a profit making corporation.

We had a declared holiday on July 21. Of course we realize the moon landing was a great achievement, but do you realize how much this cost the post office and all other federal agencies? Do our high public officials want to economize?

Looking Backward

NINETY-FIVE YEARS AGO

Good apples are selling at $2.00 per bushel today.... Some misguided lunatics made Ohio street miserable last night with their howling.... Officer Bruce picked up a drunken stranger and put him in the city louse trap to sober up, or get carried off by the bugs.

TWENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO

"How Boys State Operates," was the subject of talks by Joe Herrick and Raymond Harman, Smith-Cotton High school students, before the Sedalia Kiwanis club. Herrick was sent to Boys State by the Kiwanis club and Harmon by the Rotary club. Will Hurley was program chairman.

Thought for Today

Let not many of you become teachers, my brethren, for you know that we who teach shall be judged with greater strictness. — James 3:1.

A teacher affects eternity; he can never tell where his influence stops. — Henry Brooks Adams, American historical writer.

Practiced Nonviolence

One of the first forms of modern civil disobedience was practiced by Mohandas K. Gandhi in 1930 in his fight against a tax on salt by the British, who arrested 100,000 of his followers for nonviolent action.

Maine was the first state to adopt prohibition, in 1851.

"When's OUR Cue?"

Secular Films, Magazines Spark Inspiration, Change

By DAVID POLING

For a long time people in the Church thought that their best ideas and comment came from religious publications. If a magazine or book had the official blessing of a denominational press or publishing house, well, that was enough. Same was true for films, color slides and phonograph records.

A religious-sounding, Bible-vocabulary label was adequate for sales approval. The material and content may have been poor or great. Never mind, just so it had the usual phrases that make up most of the religious "vocabulary."

But down deep, people sensed that this was neither satisfying nor accurate. Many writers, composers, publishers never stepped inside the theological tents yet produced honest, exciting stuff about the love of God and the needs of man. You would catch this in the theater, on campus—anywhere that folks were trying to be free and honest. Too often these creative people were not in the institutional church and much too frequently had suffered under its heavy-handed censorship, doctrine or tradition.

Today, this has really changed. Every human society, relationship and encounter needs the evaluation and appraisal that comes from the unofficial seers, prophets and saints. And this message is often available from the nearest theater or drive-in.

As example No. 1, the British movie, "IF," is a staggering film of untold moral dimension. In less than two hours you are confronted with the activity, joy, perversion, punishment, worship and war of an English boys' school. Aside from being a technical achievement of real merit, it presses beyond the boundary of entertainment and sensation to ask some of the major questions of western society.

What does it mean to be a privileged white man in an underprivileged black world? What is the goal of education besides the preservation of status quo? And, oh, how they work this one over: What, just what, is the relationship of the Christian Church to the British empire or the United States or wherever you happen to be? To struggle with these scenes is not easy or pleasant but it is an imperative film that should be shown in every church that cares about the world and its people.

The other summer blockbuster is an article by Peter Schrag in the July 19 issue of The Saturday Review. He writes about "Ivan Illich: The Christian as Rebel." He visits the Center in Cuernavaca, Mexico, that has been the creation of this ordained priest who has been the subject of heresy trials in the Vatican basement and hero to more than a thousand priests, nuns and laymen visitors.

Illich is a once-in-a-century leader who understands theology, sociology, education, politics and the System. He especially understands the System that builds a hierarchy (religious, political, educational) which has a habit of becoming antipeople. Illich is persuasively Christian and powerfully imbued with the desire to help the little people of Latin America. His Center has become the intellectual network for thousands who share his desire to see the liberation of man. He says things like:

"The Catholic matter for me is very simple; the Kingdom of God is not up there in the sky. Look among you."

He is not impressed with the record of the Roman Church in Latin America and is suspicious of the new autocracy, education. "My real enemies," he says, "are those who don't know how to laugh, who take things too seriously." The Illich article is an important contribution to our understanding of the religion upheaval that has dominated our churches—and it comes from a "nonreligious" magazine.

The H in the code word ARCH stands for How can I make this hand in the case of declarers, and How can I beat this hand in the case of defenders.

When South looks over dummy, he visualizes a simple plan of campaign. He will go after the club suit when he gets an opportunity. Even if he loses the club finesse, he will wind up losing one club, one spade and one diamond.

Of course, there are complications if the club finesse works the first time it is tried, but in that case South can refuse to take it a second time and just lose two spades and a diamond. All in all, the prospects look good to South.

They also look pretty bad to West. He looks over dummy and does not care for what he sees. He asks himself the question, "How can I beat this contract?" Then he sees two possibilities. The first is to find his partner with the king and two small spades. In that case, he can lead his deuce of spades and collect three fast spade tricks.

The other possibility is to find his partner with the king of clubs and either the queen or 10 of spades. In this case, also, a spade lead is indicated. Therefore, West leads his deuce of spades and risks the loss of an overtrick or so in case South holds both black kings.

The lead settles South's hash. East's 10 of spades knocks out one of South's honors. Later on, East gets in with the king of clubs and gives his partner two spade tricks.

In an effort to gain support for the new federal Constitution in 1787, Alexander Hamilton, John Jay and James Madison published an influential series of political essays in the New York Independent Journal, says The World Almanac. These 94 essays, called the Federalist Papers, have since served as a classic guide to the theory and philosophy of the United States Constitution.

American Negroes

Not to the rioters the praise
But to the great who fought to raise
The Negro from his lowly place
To give opportunity to his race.
Like Booker T. Washington
Who in 1881
With a dream and resolute
Started Tuskegee Institute
Tho he was a former slave
Fine things to the world he gave.
Then George Washington Carver came.
Not a soul he seemed to blame
For his color or his plight.
With what God gave did he fight.
He will never be forgotten
Changing crops from only cotton
And his research paved the way
To many products used today;
Mary McLeod Bethune in 1904
With a dollar and a half and faith—no more.
Founded a college and went on to do
Things for the Negro all her life through.
Many provided education
For their race throughout the nation
Most of whom had felt the thorn
Of slavery in which they were born.
'Mongst the pioneers way back when
James Beckwourth was one of the mountain men.
And then cowboy Bill Pickett, a Negro,
Was, for years, the star of a rodeo;
Matthew Henson had the role
To first actually reach the North Pole.
Peary on his polar expedition
In less than an hour confirmed their position.
But it was his companion he sent
First to the spot before he went.
Phillis Wheatley, second American woman to write
A book, she a Negro; the first woman white
And from Scott Joplin Ragtime music came
That in that era brought him fame
William Christopher Handy—a Negro whose Musical talent created the blues—
In every field Negroes are known
For wonderful things done on their own.
Soldiers, teachers, inventors, athletes and such
Who to the nation, have meant so much.
Singers, dancers, musicians and actors
And, through the years, brave benefactors
So many Negroes who have succeeded
In helping their people when help was needed
Even before Lincoln's proclamation
Giving American Negroes emancipation
In Negro history there were highlights
In which some rose to unusual heights.
Some have gone upward, some have stood still
Some just don't want to and never will
Whether they're Negro or whether they're White
Life is a battle in which we must fight—
True the Negro was enclosed by a wall
But even in slavery some stood mighty tall.

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Mrs. Joseph Kopechne, whose personal grief was deepest in the recent Kennedy tragedy, showed true Christian forgiveness. In a handwritten note (photographed by the Associated Press) she said: "I am satisfied with the Senator's statement and do hope he stays in the Senate."

President Nixon is a sports fan. During the All Star Game festivities before the event was rained out he remarked, "I'm very happy with my present job, but if I had my life to live over, I would have been a sports writer." His sports copy might have been clearer than his Asian policy, in which he chooses not to be quoted directly.

"If you work for the government you owe your allegiance to whoever is elected President," is the policy of Eliska Hasek, the Czechoslovakian speech writer in the White House. She started with Kennedy, continued with Johnson, and now writes for Nixon. She doesn't even type or take shorthand. She studies her President, gets his style, and then dictates the message. The President then approves.

Hurrah for Sharp Tongue Disgusted with Reproach

By MURIEL LAWRENCE

DEAR MRS. LAWRENCE: How you hit home with that column on the young man who always said mean things to his girl! My first husband killed himself soon after our marriage and my effort to live with my in-laws landed me in a mental hospital. Its psychiatrists helped a little. But I am now again making my second husband miserable. I say something mean to him and then something even meaner. I'm so ashamed of the first crack. I'm so scared of my tongue I can't talk to other people . . .

ANSWER: Truly, the men you marry seem to relish misery.

But you won't agree with that, will you? No, it's your meanness that's afflicting your present husband as it drove your first one to suicide. O.K., have it your way. However, I myself admire that bad tongue of yours, that fine, rebellious, scornful tongue that's sick and tired of these men you marry who collapse into misery every time you frown at them like so many trembly Ben Bolt's Alices.

Why doesn't your husband tell you off when you say "something mean" to him? Why does he take these cracks of yours lying down? Tell me that, please. Because he loves you? Because he's so forebearing and good? Oh, come on. Those psychiatrists who helped you must have suggested that people like you—people who love to blame themselves—tend to involve themselves with people who love to see them do it. These people choose to collapse into misery under our meanness instead of getting up on their hind feet to return us the crack which makes our contempt inappropriate.

People kill themselves because suicide is the ultimate, unanswerable r e p r o a c h to other people. As to those we "make" miserable, they hang around to see to it that we do precisely that. The hanging around allows them to wallow in delicious reproach of our meanness and so relieve themselves of all responsibility to pull themselves up and out of their misery.

And you, you self-blamer from a long way back, fall for this trick.

But your tongue will not fall for it. It's disgusted with all this reproach heaped upon you by yourself and other people —and it says so. It tells the truth.

Animal Protest?

Even the squirrels in Longview, Texas, apparently detest the increasing number of litterbugs. The squirrels play around a sign, installed by some nature lover who watches their daily cavorting over the courthouse lawn. (UPI)

True 'Westerns' Vanish

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Somewhere down the dusty trail, almost out of sight, is the television Western.

This venerable folklore, the enshrinement of the American myth, is virtually gone from the tube.

Overexposure, gimmicks and constant tinkering with its basic structure in the name of mass appeal left the Western squeezed as dry as prairie dust. By the time the antiviolence issue rode into town wearing a white hat, the Western had as much chance as the Clantons at OK Corral.

True, there are five shows left on television which, for want of a better classification, are called Westerns. Actually, they are simply melodramas with Western trappings, with a few of them more akin to soap opera than horse opera.

"I think if 'Bonanza' was a pure and simple Western it would have disappeared years ago," said David Dortort, creator of "Bonanza" and "High Chaparral" on NBC. "I felt the country was crying for a strong father image. Before, you always had the loner, the single man conquering unbelievable odds by himself, a man with no roots."

Norman Macdonnell, who produced "Gunsmoke" for CBS for 10 years before taking over NBC's "The Virginian" four years ago, said, "I think it is true that some people feel if you put in a lot of double negatives and people ride around on horses, this makes it a Western.

"I think the key to the Western is perhaps the simplicity and strength and lack of psychological overtones," Macdonnell said. "A cowboy set out to handle his own problems, whether physical or personal. I think the appeal is that each man is his own master."

This is the age of the conglomerate, on television as well as in business. A loner would get lost among the families of "Bonanza," "High Chaparral" or "Lancer," or the bunkhouse gang on "The Virginian." The closest thing to a loner is Marshal Matt Dillon, who nowadays shows up on "Gunsmoke" only long enough to collect his monthly paycheck.

The television screen has seen few Westerns to inspire the aficionado. One was "The Westerner," with Brian Keith, but bucking "Route 66" and "The Flintstones" it lasted only 13 weeks. Another was "Rawhide," whose producer was Bruce Celler, known now as the creator of "Mission: Impossible" and "Mannix."

"Nobody wants to see the real Western," Celler said. "The real Westerner drank. Sometimes he was brave, sometimes cowardly. He was dirty because it's hard to ride a horse all day and stay clean. He wasn't a fast draw, not even a good shot. If he used a weapon, it was usually a rifle.

The manners and mores of 1855-95 in the western half of the United states were different than anything that had existed before or since. No cowboy ever went into court to settle a claim. The handgun was called the equalizer, and frontier justice, long ago made hackneyed by Hollywood, existed. It was this that set the Western apart from other fiction.

Violence is inherently a part of the Western — so much so that when it is taken out, the story becomes something less than a Western — and that is what finally did it in.

ABC is left without a single this year and none of the networks cared to gamble this year on new ones.

Essential Surcharge Questions

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Surcharge: Last year a law was passed under which all individual taxpayers above the lowest brackets and all corporations are charged an extra 10 per cent of their income tax. This surcharge expired June 30, but the 10 per cent withholding was kept alive by stopgap legislation pending final action on President Nixon's request that the surcharge be continued for another year.

Proposal: Nixon proposed that the surcharge be continued at 10 per cent through the last half of this year and at 5 per cent through the first six months of 1970. The Treasury said this would yield $7.6 billion in the fiscal year ending next June 30 and result in a $6.3 billion surplus.

Purpose: To help curb inflation by draining off some of the excess purchasing power that sent prices soaring.

Critics' View: Opponents said the surtax did not check inflation, as demonstrated by constantly rising prices and interest rates. What was needed, they said, was a major overhauling of the tax laws and a closing of loopholes used by the wealthy.

Outcome: The House passed a 12-month surtax extension bill as Nixon asked, but Senate Democrats balked. They insisted on administration-backed tax reforms as the price for another year of the surtax, finally agreed to a six-month extension. If the House concurs, this will be sent to the President for his signature.

Literary Wealth

Book lover Judith Tompkins, Cambridge, Mass., has a mountain of books to herself after a massive give-away of 75,000 books at Brattle Book Shop. Several thousand persons scrambled around each other helping themselves to the books. The give-away was staged since the book shop was being torn down and the owner wanted to avoid the expense of moving the books. (UPI)

Small Town Pays High Price of War

By TOM TIEDE
NEA Staff Correspondent

BEALLSVILLE, Ohio — (NEA) — Richard Rucker's family, again, are gathered at the kitchen table. Kenneth, the father; Betty, the mother; and sisters Cynthia, 14, Linda, 11, and Patricia, 3.

Richard Rucker's papers are cluttered about the chromium dinette. A scrapbook, an official photograph, some old letters, a few citations of war.

Richard Rucker is dead. Killed in Vietnam.

"It happened last Memorial Day, 1968," says the father, a thin, shirtless man whose occupation is repairing telephone wires. "The way we got it is that Rich and a couple other guys were trying to take this bunker, or something. An artillery shell blew off. And that was it."

The man pokes at the piles of papers.

"The Army sent us all these personal things and we keep 'em in a box in the house. It's all we got to remember him. ever' now and then we git it all out, spread it on the table and do just that — remember him.

"You know, ever'body said the hurt would go away. That's what ever'body said. But it don't. It's almost a year now and it ain't gone away yet."

One reason the hurt remains, the father explains somberly, is that peculiar circumstances won't let the family forget the loss of its kin for even brief moments. This tiny village, situated in a region of about 400 families, has in the past three years lost six young men in the war. That's five more that in Korea, four more than in World War II

The region has suffered more, on the basis of population percentage, than anywhere else in the nation. Roughly, one of every 200 local people have died in Vietnam. The unofficial national percentage is about one of every 6,000.

"Let's see," says Betty Rucker, the mother. "Jack Pittmann got it first. He was shot in 1966. Then there was Charlie Schnagg. Then there was Duane Greenlie. Then there was Robert Lucas. Then there was that boy who moved away some time ago. What was his name— Jimmy Davis?"

Then, of course, there was Richard Rucker.

"It don't seem fair," says the mother. "We've had all kinds of newspaper people come in here and they say it's unfair, too. Really, it's like our boys are fighting the war by themselves."

The mother drops her eyes.

"But there isn't anything to be done. We've written our congressman and the Army. But it didn't help. And for sure it didn't bring back our boy."

Cynthia Rucker, the oldest sister at the table, opens up a small gray scrapbook. She says her brother used to send home every photo he could from Vietnam, most of them in color. The pictures, pasted down with tabs, are neatly arranged, but most are bent and marked from fondling.

"Here he is with his gun," says Cynthia.

"Where?" the mother asks.

"Oh, why do they always show off their weapon?"

Kenneth, the father, empties a packet of mail. It is mostly military stationery and the communications are in even, bold print. The father explains Richard was a mechanical draftsman and not given to script writing.

"I remember he had a job all waiting for him," the father says, sorting the mail. "There wouldn't have been any problem there. He was a hard worker and able. Everybody he ever worked for like him.

"I think he would have made about four something an hour to start. But he'd have went up real fast. He was a damn good worker, remember. If he'd a got back, hell, no telling where a kid like him woulda went."

The family, as one, nods in agreement. They grow quiet. Papers are shuffled softly as each reaches for a favorite memento.

Then Linda begins giggling at a photograph of a comical, chicken-necked, hooked-nosed woman; she explains that her brother used to carry the picture around and call it "my best girl." Little Patricia snickers, too, and then hunches up warmly against her father's bare arm.

The father picks up the gag photo. Smiles. Then puts it back down.

"He was a good boy," the man says. "Clean — didn't smoke or drink." He pauses and slowly shakes his head. "All these local kids who git it were good boys really. All six of them." He takes a bitter sip of coffee, now cold. "Damn it," he sayd, huskily, "look at all these papers anyway. It ain't much to be left of a man's son, now, is it?"

Finds Namath Charming

By DICK KLEINER
NEA Hollywood Correspondent

HOLLYWOOD (NEA) — Meredith MacRae, on working opposite Joe Namath in "Norwood":

"I was very impressed with him. I expected him to be conceited, but he was a charming and very real person.

"He was shaky the first day, but then Jack (director Jack Haley Jr.) told him to smile and show his eyes, and after that he really developed."

Jonathan Harris, the ex-Dr. Smith of Lost In Space, was in Houston to do "Damn Yankess" in the round with Rita Moreno and Gary Collins (only they updated it in Houston and called it "Damn Cardinals" — seriously!)

Jonathan toured NASA headquarters there and became a hero with the astronauts — who were as interested in him as vice versa — when they were talking about the planets they hoped some day to visit. He put on his best Dr. Smith voice and said:

"I've been there. You won't like it."

For Martin Sheen, "Catch-22" was more than a movie. It was a major event in his life, no matter how it burns out.

It was a major event for two reasons. First, he had been discouraged with his own acting. He didn't think he was very good in "The Subject Was Roses." He thinks he "took the safe and easy way" when he did that part, rather than being daring and inventive.

In "Catch," he worked with Alan Arkin. Sheen's is a small part, but he was with Arkin for two solid weeks, sitting in the middle of an airfield. And Arkin talked to him, talked him out of his depression.

Another reason why the picture was so important to Sheen is that he was a one-man Peace Corps. They shot in Guaymas, a remote and primitive Mexican village. Most of the cast lived in the only hotel. But Sheen (whose real name is Ramon Estevez) had his family with him and they rented a house in town, between the cemetery and the slaughterhouse.

"I brought birth control to Guaymas," he says. "It was very good."

The end of the picture party for William Wyler's "The Liberation of Lord Byron Jones" was highlighted by some great entertainers in the cast — one of the Nicholas brothers tap danced and Lola Falana sang, and she is a solid singing citizen.

But, for me, the highlight of the party was another chance to talk to Jesse Hill Ford, the Tennesseean who wrote the novel and screenplay. I wanted to know if he had succumbed to the lure of Hollywood and writing films.

"I'm going back to Tennessee," Ford said. "I don't belong here."

Nobody really belongs here.

Irving Wallace saw "Goodbye Columbus" and quickly called Lester Linsk, who will produce the movie version of his best-seller, "The Plot."

He said that Ali MacGraw should play Lisa, one of the heroines of his book, if she's available.

"This is one of the few times," Wallace says, "that I've seen one of my book characters come to life. When I write, I have nobody in mind, but Ali is Lisa."

Boredom in Paradise

By JOAN CROSBY
NEA Entertainment Editor

MONTEGO BAY, Jamaica — (NEA) — There were problems in this island paradise.

Everyone connected with the filming of Saul David's production of "Skullduggery" (for Universal) had just plain been here too long. Even paradise palls when there is no contrast.

Stars Burt Reynolds, Susan Clark and Roger C. Carmel were working nearly every scene in this comedy-drama-adventury which concerns anthropologists who stumble on a lost tribe called Tropis, which may be more human than monkey. Then again, they may not.

When they weren't working, the cast lounged around the swimming pool at the Mahoe Bay Club, where Pat Suzuki, making her movie debut (covered with the reddish hair of a Tropi) practised her swimming. Carmel improved his Ping-Pong. Australians Chips Rafferty and Michael St. Clair played gin rummy. Alexander Knox and his wife went into town shopping, and New Yorker Mort Marshall told dialect stories which kept director Gordon Douglas laughing.

Burt Reynolds is on his way to finally making it as a film star, after three TV series (Riverboat, Gunsmoke and Hawk). He has made six films in a row. "Sam Whiskey" and "100 Rifles" are presently in release. Another one, called "Fade In" may never be released.

"Paramount has hidden the picture, but I think it's the best I've done," he says. "It's an American version of 'A Man and a Woman.' Unfortunately it was tied in with another picture, 'Blue.' In 'Fade In,' the heroine is working as a script girl on 'Blue.' Unfortunately, 'Blue' was the greatest disaster since Hiroshima. I think they have hidden my picture hoping everyone will forget 'Blue.'

"I have another secret movie called 'Impasse,' in which I do $800,000 worth of stunts and 16 cents worth of acting. I stand and look virile and fight and jump in the sack. It's being released in Arkansas and places like that. Not that I have anything against Arkansas."

Burt's fifth picture is called "Shark." He says it was originally called "Cain," until "the man doubling me got killed and the producers decided to cash in."

The sixth is "Skullduggery." Then a pause for a knee operation, since successfully completed, to relieve an old football injury.

One thing Burt is sure about, he will do no more TV. "It's the only medium in the world where reviews don't count," he says. "I was raised on TV. I've done about 250 shows. When Hawk, which was the best, went off, I was offered a tremendous amount of money to go back in TV."

Burt was offered four series, all of which are on television now. One of the series was a guaranteed sale.

"But dummy me took the one that was the best written. It was called Lassiter and was written by Richard Alan Simmons. It was going to be shot across the country. Lassiter was a writer who masqueraded as a different character each week, which would have been great for an actor."

The series was on CBS's lineup of shows for the following season. But it didn't make it because, Burt says, Lucille Ball ("Bless her little Iron Butterfly heart," he adds) looked at the line-up and asked where Mannix was. Her company Desilu (since sold to Paramount) was producing Mannix. She wanted Mannix on and if CBS wanted her, they had better put it on.

"After that happened," Burt says, "I swore I would do no more TV not knowing if anyone wanted me for movies.

Burt is not a Hollywood type. He lives on a ranch near Palm Beach, Fla. where he raises Black Angus cattle. He never pulls punches when he is talking and he never puts anything off the record. He also has a wry and delightfully warped sense of humor.

"The other day I dreamed up a great format for a 30-minute situation comedy," he says. "There is a spotlight on an empty chair. For 30 minutes Darren McGavin, Gene Barry and Ray Danton try to get in the chair."

Paradise can do that to a man.

Keeps Original Cast for Film

By JOAN CROSBY
NEA Entertainment Editor

NEW YORK — (NEA) — Mart Crowley decided he had better produce the movie version of his off-Broadway hit, "The Boys in the Band" when—— a famous producer immediately began talking to him about the film's title song. And when—

— another famous producer suggested casting really big names in the nine character comedy-drama about homosexuals. Crowley, feeling loyalty to the original cast (which had been loyal to him through his efforts to get the play produced) felt they should re-create the roles for which they had been praised by critics. Crowley and the producer argued. Finally, the producer gave in, saying, "O.K., we won't use actors. We'll use the original cast."

Crowley is still wondering, "What does he think they are?"

He's a slight, extremely boyish-looking young man of 33 from Vicksburg, Miss., whose first name is Martino. "I keep wondering why I didn't use it. All my life I have been Mark or Mort or Matt. People just don't believe anyone can be Mart."

"The Boys in the Band" is his first play and it's so brilliant it marks Crowley as an exciting playwright of great promise. It's a slashing, funny (yet terribly tragic) look at homosexuals and their own agonies. It took courage to write, although Mart doesn't think so. "That's nonsense. It's just a play." It took courage for actors to agree to appear in it.

"Can I tell you what it was to get actors to be in the play?" Mart says, in his way of making exclamations out of questions. "No one wanted anything to do with it then. It's quite a different story today."

Besides the film version, being released by Cinema Center Films, there are companies in New York, Los Angeles, Las Vegas, London, Boston, Sydney, with productions opening in Paris and Rome.

The film is being shot entirely in New York. The changes Crowley has made in his screenplay are minor. The play takes place in continuous action and so does the movie. Only it goes back in time a few hours, showing the characters leaving their places of work and preparing to congregate at the birthday party which makes up the play.

Crowley worked as secretary to Natalie Wood for awhile, but he has always been a writer. His success now is sweet, but he looks back on "a period of five years that were total disaster. I wrote a screenplay at Fox that was never done. I did a treatment for Universal that was planned for production, then shelved. Paramount bought a script and made a film, but it was never released, and I was canned from it anyway. I had a TV writing contract but my option was dropped. I wrote a pilot for a series with Bette Davis which was shot, but the series never sold. Nothing I did worked out.

"Then I wrote a play and took the script around to producers and all I heard was 'You're out of your mind if you think anyone will do this.'"

The play was "Boys in the Band," which was produced off-Broadway because no one had the courage to present it on Broadway.

Mart's second play, "Remote Asylum," is scheduled to open on Broadway next November.

"It's about what I might call fruitless escape, the fantasy of believing that with a passport and a plane ticket you can run away from yourself."

One of the characters in the play is Michael, one of the leading characters in "Boys in the Band." But the theme of the play is not involved in any way with homosexuality.

Mart is a graduate of Catholic University, where classmates were James Radonski who shortened his name to Jim Rado and coauthored "Hair," Jon Voight who is lighting up films with his portrayal in "Midnight Cowboy," and Robert Moore, who directed "Promises, Promises."

"I think between 'Boys in the Band' and 'Hair' and 'Midnight Cowboy' that Catholic University never wants to hear of us again."

Because "The Boys in the Band" deals honestly with homosexuality, Mart has found himself asked to speak to members of a homosexual society and he has been commended for writing about a social cause.

"I just wanted a play that was drmatically effective, the kind I wanted to see with structure and plot. I don't know from social causes."

Stubborn Reaction

Thanks to Mart Crowley, the original cast of the off-Broadway comedy-drama, "The Boys in the Band," will recreate their roles in the film version. Crowley, who wrote the play, will produce the movie. (NEA)

Storm Flattens Set

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — Robert Shelton purchased an entire Western town movie set on a desert site 15 miles out of town for $205,000 Thursday as a tourist attraction.

Thirty minutes later, a thunderstorm with winds up to 60 miles an hour flattened 18 of the town's 20 buildings.

Cinema Center Films had the set constructed at a cost of $175,000 for the recently completed motion picture "Monty Walsh" starring Lee Marvin and Jack Palance.

GRANTS TO UNPRODUCED WRITERS

NEW YORK (AP) — The Dramatists Guild Fund gave four $1,000 cash awards to young people chosen by their universities as having demonstrated a talent for writing for the theater.

Recipients were Larry A. Reed, University of Wisconsin; Mark Lamos, Northwestern University; Michael Levy, City College of New York, and Romaner Strong, the University of California at Los Angeles.

The awards were in memory of Elmer Rice, Howard Lindsay, Russel Crouse, Moss Hart and Oscar Hammerstein II.

In previous years, the fund, which was set up in 1962, was used to provide financial assistance during illness or to complete a writing project.

Director Learned From Errors

By DICK KLEINER
Hollywood Correspondent

HOLLYWOOD — (NEA) — It was the last day of filming for Noel Black's "Run Shadow Run." The call sheet for the next day, which usually lists the hour each actor must report, simply read: "Tomorrow: Unemployment Insurance."

They were all discussing what they would do the next day, their first free day in two months. Most agreed with Sondra Locke's plans.

"I'm going to sleep all day long," she said.

Even Black, the director, had a noncinematic project. He said he and wife were off for a week in Santa Barbara, to rest up before he began the process of cutting and editing his film.

Typically for Hollywood, on this last day of shooting they were filming one of the first scenes of the picture. "Run Shadow Run" is a movie about moviemaking in college, perhaps a subject of more significance in California, where many colleges have, courses in moveimaking, than elsewhere.

Black was, himself, a student in UCLA's cinema department. Then he made the delightful short, "Skater-dater," which led to the well-received "Pretty Poison." His second feature is this one.

He learned several things during "Pretty Poison," and one valuable lesson after it was finished. That was the lesson of very carefully choosing where a film should be sneak-previewed.

"We sneaked 'Pretty Poison,' " he says, "at a theater where 'Guess Who's Coming to Dinner' was being show. It was a good picture, but it appealed to the old Tracy-Hepburn fans, who had an antipathy toward our film. The cards were mostly negative.

"Then we sneaked it at a theater where 'No Way to Treat a Lady' was playing. After seeing that, our film looked great — we got a fine reaction.

"I'm going to be very, very selective where we sneak this one."

Even though Black is an experienced undergraduate filmmaker, he has a UCLA student, Vaughn Oborn, on hand. Oborn, an internee with the American Film Institute as well as a UCLA student, is serving as technical adviser.

They were shooting a scene in which Robert Forster, the protagonist and maker of the movie-within-the-movie, screens his film for his friends. There was a projector and screen set up in his apartment.

The projector was actually Oborn's, and he was a little worried about it. They kept running it forward and then backward and then forward again, getting the film-within-the-film to the point Black wanted.

"They'll wreck it," Oborn said sadly.

"Bill them for it," Sondra Locke advised.

For Sondra, this is her first film since her smash debut in "The Heart Is a Lonely Hunter." She has matured much — her delicate face has become a women's face, no longer a girl's.

She says she's faced with the problem which so many ambitious actors bump into — should she go for stardom or hold out for good acting parts?

"I'd like both," she said. "But any actress who says she doesn't want to be a star is kidding herself. We all have that ego thing. I want to be a star. But I want good parts, too. So far, I've been able to do both — but it was a long time between jobs."

She and her husband, Gordon Anderson, have settled in Los Angeles, after fame found her in Shelbyville, Tenn., when she did "The Heart I s a Lonely Hunter." At 22, she is all out for her career.

"A family?" she said, and laughted. "No, I haven't thought of having a family. I'm not sure about bringing kids into this world. Anyhow, I'd feel sorry for any child that had me for a mother."

Ask Them Yourself

FOR REP. CLAUDE PEPPER

of Florida

What do you suggest to curb young Americans from growing disillusioned and disrupting our campuses?—A. S. Kravitz, Brooklyn, N.Y.

● In an effort to involve young people in responsible positions of Government, I have proposed the creation of a Department of Youth Affairs. This department, represented by a secretary of cabinet rank, would co-ordinate and expand programs that draw on the many talents of our nation's young men and women.

FOR LAWRENCE SPIVAK

of "Meet the Press"

Do your guests on your tv program know in advance the questions interviewers will ask? Their answers are so prompt and to the point?—Harold C. Vangen, Walnut Creek, Calif.

● "Meet the Press" is a spontaneous, unrehearsed press conference. No advance questions are given to the guests.

FOR ELIZABETH POST,

etiquette expert

Is it proper to pick up chicken and eat it with your fingers?—Miss Gale Houston, Salinas, Calif.

● In a friend's home, your own home, or in an informal restaurant, chicken may be picked up with the fingers. In a more formal atmosphere, it is not correct.

FOR SANDY KOUFAX, sportscaster

When the pitcher goes to his mouth with his fingers, why does an umpire call it a ball?—Mrs. Alice Slitt, Austin, Texas

● In an effort to eliminate a pitch called the "spitball," the baseball rules committee in 1968 set up a new rule: whenever a pitcher places his fingers to his mouth, he shall be charged with a "ball." The new rule ostensibly will prevent a pitcher from placing saliva on the ball which, due to air currents on the added weight, can make the pitched ball behave in an unusual manner.

FOR JOHNNY CARSON

How do I get tickets for your show? I get constant refusals.—Mark Kreffing, Teaneck, N.J.

● Write for tickets at least five months before you plan to attend.

FOR BERGEN EVANS,

language expert

Why are newspapers called the "Fourth Estate"?—David Deutsch, Jamaica, N.Y.

● One meaning of "estate" is a class regarded as a part of the political body. In early English parliaments there were three estates: the Clergy, the Barons and Knights, and the Commons. Author Thomas Macauley said that the gallery of the House of Commons, in which reporters sat, "has become a fourth estate of the realm." Historian Thomas Carlyle picked up the phrase (and incorrectly attributed it to Burke), and it passed into the language.

FOR DIAHANN CARROLL

In your tv show, "Julia," you appear to be so cool and standoffish with men. Are you this way in everyday life? Aren't you interested in a husband?—Foss Heiner, Ogden, Utah

● "Julia" is a little cool, I'll admit. But not Diahann Carroll. I'll marry "Mr. Right Guy" one of these days, but he'll also have to be a father to my eight-year-old daughter Suzanne.

FOR JAMES J. ROWLEY,

Director, U.S. Secret Service

Since the Government does not reimburse a person for unknowingly accepting a counterfeit note, why does it reimburse a bank for doing the same?—Victor Paulson, Mankato, Minn.

● The Government does not reimburse any organization for accepting counterfeit money. If it did, a counterfeiter might avail himself of this policy to have the Government reimburse him for counterfeit currency he produced.

FOR NORMAN VINCENT PEALE

If God would grant you one wish, what would it be?—Mrs. Maurine Clements, Nalcrest, Fla.

● My one wish is that I could carry out God's guidance in everything.

FOR JACK WEBB

Have the names of the guilty people been changed on "Dragnet"?—Gary Wilson, Rochester, N.Y.

● Yes, we change them. But the real names of police officers are used

Kodak Standards, Kodak Materials, Kodak-Trained Technicians— for Over 35 Years.

1934, when BALL PHOTO started, wasn't a particularly good time to start in any kind of business. But, we had an idea which is as important today as it was then. OUR IDEA . . . deal directly with the public . . . eliminate all middlemen . . . standardize on KODAK supplies . . . fast service and low, low prices. Did it work? You bet! Here we are thirty-five years later and more than 575,000 camera owners now depend on us for the very finest work—and keep coming back to us year in and year out. And why not? We have fulfilled our promise of QUALITY and CUSTOMER SATISFACTION, at low prices. We have created the most modern, most advanced film processing laboratories in the world. We insist, absolutely, on processing all film to KODAK standards under the direct supervision of KODAK-trained technicians. We use only KODAK supplies and materials—exclusively!

And we insist that "the customer is always right!" You are never "just a number" to us. We insist on giving every film order we handle the most careful personal attention! Anytime you have a problem, or a question, you'll always get a straight and honest answer from a Customer Service Representative. You are always protected—fully and completely—by our famous DOUBLE GUARANTEE proudly printed below.

How can BALL so consistently deliver guaranteed quality at unbeatable low prices? There's a sound business reason. We do all our own work! We are not merely "middlemen" who farm out your films to other plants, tacking on an extra profit in the process. Often, these other plants are manned by people whose credentials are completely unknown to you. But there's no such risk when you send your film to BALL! You know who you're dealing with. And you know that we back up our reputation for quality and fair dealing with an unconditional guarantee of satisfaction!

What You

A family attorney can be selected with the Editors' note: A lawyer can be as important to the financial well-being of a family as a family doctor is to its physical well-being. But when does the average family need a lawyer? And how does it select one?

FAMILY WEEKLY asked these questions—and other pertinent ones—of Samuel Kling, a leading authority on legal matters. His advice on divorce and other family problems has been read by millions. Mostly, however, he is interested in preventing legal tanglements, and his suggestions here may help you minimize them—even eliminate many of them.

Should a layman attempt to handle legal matters without a lawyer?

There may be a few times when the well-informed layman can get along without the aid of legal counsel. He may, for example, be able to handle a rent or collection item in a small-claims court. He may even be able to handle his own traffic-court case, if it's trivial.

Is it always necessary to employ counsel in a divorce case?

No, not if the defendant doesn't contest the case for some reason; if he or she has little or no property or assets; if the wife seeks neither alimony for herself nor support for the children. However, whenever there's any doubt about one's legal rights, an attorney should be consulted.

Is it always desirable to hire an attorney in a negligence case?

For the most part, yes. Recovering damages for injuries to your person or property depends on many factors. One of the most important is the question of negligence or legal fault. Either is determined by a thorough investigation of the facts and witnesses. This requires an experienced negligence lawyer who would be able to evaluate what a damage suit is worth. But it's hardly worthwhile to employ counsel if the property damage is only about $50 and if it's obvious that the claimant was legally in the right.

What qualities should a lawyer have?

A lawyer should have an all-around good reputation and the respect of his fellow lawyers. He should be thorough, tenacious, and have a sound grasp of legal principles.

While it's impossible for any lawyer to know all the law, a successful one will not only have a firm grasp of basic fundamentals but also the legal mind capable of wrestling with an involved set of facts and coming up with a conclusion that makes legal sense.

To what extent should a client shop around for an attorney?

Many laymen are likely to seek an attorney merely in terms of price. If one attorney asks a $500 fee for representation in a case, the client may engage another attorney who will represent him for $350, or even less. It is primarily important that the client should consider the attorney's experience, intelligence, character, and reputation. The fee should be secondary.

Should you choose a specialist lawyer rather than one with a general practice?

Like physicians, lawyers lately have tended to specialize. There are attorneys who specialize in labor, divorce, criminal, tax, or negligence law.

But the fact that a lawyer handles many negligence cases doesn't mean that he isn't qualified to handle divorce cases or write wills. He often does, though usually not with the know-how of the specialist who has devoted almost his entire legal career to one special branch of the law. Obviously, the specialist is better equipped to handle cases in his particular field.

Are there specialists in all communities?

Most practice in larger cities. In smaller towns, the general-practice lawyer is similar to the general-practice physician. But even in larger cities, the majority of attorneys practice general law and can deal with almost any legal matter.

How should one choose an attorney?

A recommendation from a friend or relative who has encountered a similar legal problem is as good a reason as any for making a choice. But beware of persons who recommend a particular lawyer only because they expect a part of the attorney's fee for the recommendation.

OVERNIGHT TODAY'S STANDARD BOOK OF GOOD MANNERS

WORLD'S MOST COMPLETE ETIQUETTE BOOK

Hundreds of Authorities-- Each the Leader Recognized in The Field-- Join Together

The biggest etiquette research yet — lasting five years — has created the most authoritative, most up to date, most comprehensive etiquette book in the world.

Yet it's so arranged it requires no studying or lengthy reading as it gives specific answers at a glance to any latest etiquette question.

It's entirely original in content – arrangement – coverage – and approach. It's not a rehash of old articles and books. There's nothing outmoded in it.

It's not the one woman opinion of a single aging "authority." Every article and item has been thoroughly researched and checked with the authority who is today's recognized leader in that field. Every rule and discussion applies to today's world.

Far More Authoritative! Far More Up To Date!

Mrs. Llewellyn Miller–Washington, D.C. diplomatic reporter and one of America's most distinguished women–with unimpeachable social background –was asked to write the Encyclopedia of Etiquette.

Mrs. Miller joined together with hundreds of etiquette specialists–each the recognized authority for a different field. Whatever the etiquette situation Mrs. Miller worked with the appropriate expert.

It took over five years. There is nothing like it. Every topic, subject, entry, heading and word represents the latest findings. Answers are fast, crisp and exact–for any etiquette situation. They are acclaimed as "supremely interesting" and superbly written."

The ENCYCLOPEDIA reports exact latest changes–when delightful old customs are still followed–and when today they are absurd. It tells when and how today's etiquette is more informal–of the trend to close to formal dinners, lunches and teas–and the streamlined perfect etiquette of today's servantless homes.

It gives most recent changes for any etiquette situation for each age group, for single and married, in business, at home, entertaining, and tipping.

Most Complete – Fastest Easiest To Use

The ENCYCLOPEDIA gives more information on more subjects than any etiquette book. No single person could possibly provide the exact information or authoritative guidance of the Encyclopedia of Etiquette. It has more pages, more words, fuller treatment of subjects and more subjects covered. It has up to five times more sub-heads under a single entry, more information about traditional subjects and new topics with hundreds of subjects covered in no other book or covered only in passing. For a single subject it has up to six times the length of the nearest competition.

The ENCYCLOPEDIA gives a "feel" and "etiquette reflex" for whatever situation – as no other etiquette book can. Yet you need never read it through – or even long chapters at a time. There's no fumbling. Topics are alphabetical with cross-references. A speed index easily locates any item.

Easy To Be Unsure!

Little etiquette points can be confusing such as when to call others by their first name, who goes first entering and leaving, exact procedures in introductions. Selecting wine when out–or serving wine at home. People sometimes overtip, tip where nothing is expected or undertip.

Not knowing what to do can cause Invitations to dry up. Deals, good times, promotions, sales, even jobs are lost daily by people unknowingly offending others. Yet it's easy to know what to do correctly. The ENCYCLOPEDIA OF ETIQUETTE keeps anyone up with latest etiquette. It reports on changing customs, where there's a choice of procedure and advises the safest choice.

The ENCYCLOPEDIA advises a woman when now to go hatless – correctly. It advises when certain jewelry may now be correctly worn although formerly considered in bad taste. It advises what traditional demands most parents no longer make. It advises on girls dining alone at a bachelor's apartment – or going unchaperoned on a ski weekend – and on today's "dating bar" etiquette. It gives the only sure test for good caviar and advises wives what not to do in supermarkets.

Every possible etiquette subject is here! From traditional to modern, military to college weekend, church attendance to smorgasbord dinners, gracefully refusing wine to getting to know new neighbors, what is expected from servant – and employer – when to give a "social" kiss and when not. And all yours to examine without risk.

Many Etiquette Books In One!

In almost half a million tightly written words and over six hundred chock full pages the ENCYCLOPEDIA OF ETIQUETTE contains a library of etiquette books — including these.

- A charm course — a popularity course — a course in social behavior.
- A wedding encyclopedia with exact procedures for ceremonial formal, informal weddings — for all faiths.
- A complete tipping guide for any service — any situation.
- A detailed travel guide for trip planning, passports, customs.
- A complete guide — whatever the situation — for clothes for men, women, teenagers, children.
- An entertainment manual for formal, informal dinners — cocktail parties, teas, lunches — teenage and children's parties — banquets and barbecues.
- A today's dance etiquette guide to teenage, college, discotheque, subscription and club dances — and ball of the year!
- An encyclopedia of personal and business correspondence including a guide to greeting cards and announcements — and answering them.
- A complete guide to selecting, serving and drinking wines, liquers and spirits of all types.
- An encyclopedia of office etiquette.
- A conversation course, a public speaking guide and a guide to speaking on the telephone.
- A guide to serving and eating common as well as exotic foods — and a complete carving course.
- A guide to table silver, linen, china and glassware for all situations.
- A guide to raising young children and teenagers with best manners — and common mistakes young people make.
- A manual for introductions, addressing others, shaking hands, bowing, tipping hat, precedence in and out.
- A guide to coats of arms — how to use it correctly.
- A complete guide to vital rules for participants and observers in any popular participant or spectator sport.
- A complete guide to what each servant correctly does — and today's quite correct etiquette shortcuts to maidless homes.
- A guide to funeral, burial, cremation, arrangements, procedures by faiths. — And George Washington's 110 rules of civility and decent behavior — and MORE, MORE, MORE.

The Power That Wins Over Others

How would you like others – almost as soon as they meet you – to size you up favorably?

How would you like – in those crucial first impression moments – to possess an easy, assured "feel" for personal diplomacy that instantly wins others over to you – and smooths the way to popularity, deals, good times, raises and romance?

This "feel" can be 90% of sales strategy and can win quick acceptance in a strange community. It can give an instant tremendous advantage in any business or social encounter.

It is not a matter of birth or privilege. It is not inherited. It costs nothing to use. It is based only on simple courtesy and latest right etiquette. Knowledge of today's latest nuances of graceful living becomes a lifelong open sesame to fun and business success.

Makes All The Difference

The mark of good breeding is keeping up with latest changes in etiquette. Latest personal diplomacy adds poise and graciousness. Again and again in situations you "feel" the right thing to do – and do it with grace and charm.

The ENCYCLOPEDIA OF ETIQUETTE is today's best, most modern, most practical etiquette book. It's guaranteed the greatest value per dollar spent – or no cost.

Only seeing and using the ENCYCLOPEDIA can show you how much more authoritative, how much more up to date, how much more complete and how much easier to use it is. That's why we arranged to ship you the ENCYCLOPEDIA OF ETIQUETTE to examine at home at our risk.

Use the ENCYCLOPEDIA for 10 full days to answer all your questions on social and business etiquette. You be the judge. If at the end of that time you do not agree it is all we have said, return it and you owe nothing. Otherwise keep it and pay the low price of only $4.00 in 10 days and $4.25 a month for two more months for a total of only $12.50 plus postage charges. Could anything be fairer?

- Almost 700 Pages
- 6¼" x 9¼"
- Almost Half a Million Words
- Over 1/3rd Yard Wide (when opened)

A truly magnificent illustrated encyclopedia! Superbly printed on special heavy luxury stock. Sturdy binding to withstand years of use.

SOCIAL AUTHORITIES REPORT ON ENCYCLOPEDIA OF ETIQUETTE

Cleveland Amory

"The minimum of snobbery and the maximum of common sense — the what's what of etiquette — why certain of our long established rules are being modified today." Cleveland Amory

"The correct standards for today's manners, the right guidelines to acceptable and winning personal behavior." Cornelius Vanderbilt, Jr.

Cornelius Vanderbilt, Jr.

Louis XIV

The French court of Louis XIV invented modern etiquette.

But etiquette is the ancient art of being assured, making friends and avoiding embarrassment.

Today's final arbiter is the ENCYCLOPEDIA OF ETIQUETTE (in the Library of Congress) available at no risk below.

MELANIE DE PROFT Food Editor

Fresh blueberries are blended with lemon pudding in the filling for tender, rich pastry shells and are also used to adorn the tops of these Blueberry Tarts.

■ A plain, ready-to-serve chilled canned pudding, served from your prettiest bowl along with an assortment of toppings, fruits, garnishes, and other add-ons, is a pleasant, effortless ending to a family meal. With little more effort and a bit of imagination, you can also prepare fancy party desserts from these puddings. Here are a few recipes carrying simple ideas for glamour.

Blueberry Tarts

6 baked tart shells, prepared from a pie crust mix*
1 can (15½ to 18 oz.) ready-to-serve lemon- or vanilla-flavored pudding, chilled
Fresh blueberries, rinsed and drained
1 cup whipped dessert topping or thawed, frozen whipped topping
Flaked coconut

1. When ready to serve, fold about 2 cups of blueberries and the topping together. Blend into the pudding and spoon into tart shells.

2. Top with additional berries as desired, and sprinkle edges with coconut. 6 tarts

*Note: Fit pastry into individual skillets (see photo) or tart pans and flute edge. Thoroughly prick pastry with a fork and place skillets or tart pans on baking sheet. Bake as directed on pkg. for pie shell until golden brown. Cool on racks.

Frozen Chocolate Pudding Pie with Cherry Flair

1 10-in. chocolate cookie crumb crust (see recipe)
1 can (15½ to 18 oz.) ready-to-serve vanilla pudding, chilled
2 cups whipped dessert topping or thawed, frozen whipped topping
1 can (16 to 18 oz.) ready-to-serve chocolate pudding, chilled
3 tablespoons chilled caramel topping sauce
½ cup salted almonds, coarsely chopped
Maraschino cherries with stems

1. Empty vanilla pudding into a large bowl and blend in 1 cup of the whipped dessert topping or thawed, frozen whipped topping.

2. Empty chocolate pudding into the same bowl and draw a rubber spatula or spoon through the chocolate and vanilla puddings until partially streaked to give a marbled design.

3. Turn into the chocolate cookie crumb crust. Set in freezer to chill, about 15 min.

4. Remove from freezer and drizzle with the caramel sauce. Top with the salted nuts.

5. To garnish, drop spoonfuls of the remaining dessert topping onto the nuts around outer edge of pie. Put a stemmed maraschino cherry onto each mound of topping. Set in freezer for several hours or until filling is firm. If necessary, allow pie to remain at room temperature to soften slightly before cutting.

8 to 10 servings

Chocolate Crumb Crust

2 cups finely crushed chocolate cookie crumbs (may be prepared from baked refrigerated cookie dough, commercial chocolate cookies, or wafers)
5 tablespoons butter or margarine, melted
1 oz. (1 sq.) unsweetened chocolate, grated

1. Adding gradually, drizzle butter over crumbs and mix thoroughly with a fork. Blend in chocolate.

2. Gently, but firmly, press mixture over bottom and up sides of a 10-in. pie plate. Chill in refrigerator until firm or set in freezer about 15 min. Fill and top as desired.

Choco-Banana-Mallow Pudding Pies

The chocolate crumb crust will accentuate the delicate flavor of any one of the ready-to-serve canned puddings such as chocolate, butterscotch, vanilla, or lemon. Follow directions on cans for use of gelatin or cornstarch in preparing pie fillings made from ready-to-serve canned puddings. For the 10-inch crust, use two cans of pudding (one flavor or a blend of two flavors). Mix in 2 sliced bananas. Turn into crust; top with mixture of whipped cream and miniature marshmallows. Sprinkle with small pastel-colored disc candies. Chill. 8 to 10 servings

Emerald-Topped Lemon Rice Pudding

1 can (16½ to 18 oz.) ready-to-serve lemon pudding
1 can (15¾ oz.) ready-to-serve rice pudding
1 pkg. (3 oz.) lime-flavored gelatin
¾ cup boiling water
¾ cup unsweetened pineapple juice

1. Empty the canned puddings into a bowl and mix thoroughly. Set in refrigerator several hours, allowing flavors to blend.

2. Pour boiling water over the gelatin and stir until dissolved; blend in the pineapple juice and pour into a shallow pan. Chill until very firm.

3. Turn gelatin onto a flat surface such as a baking sheet. Using the straight edge of a spatula, chop through all of the gelatin, crisscrossing as you cut, until all is a shimmering mass.

4. Spoon about ¾ of the shimmering gelatin into a crystal bowl. Cover with the chilled pudding and pile remaining shimmering gelatin on top. 8 servings

The Ladies' Home Journal Diet Club: A New Weight-Losing System That Works!

Dear Family Weekly reader:

Your good health, looks and vigor are not only your own most valuable assets; they're ours, too. And since overweight is America's No. 1 public health problem, we have decided to attack it with an entirely new, exciting program: the Ladies' Home Journal Diet Club. It is potentially the most massive, promising step ever aimed at one of the key risk factors contributing to our No. 1 killer, heart disease, and other chronic diseases associated with overweight. If you are one of the more than 30 million overweight Americans, here is a safe, sensible approach toward the achievement of a healthier, happier YOU; and to assist thousands of others whom you will join in this cooperative help-one-help-all venture.

WHAT'S UNIQUE ABOUT THE CLUB

Your health is a personal responsibility, and dieting is a private affair. You will not be asked to go to meetings. You will not be part of any weight-reducing "group." You can achieve the slender new YOU in the privacy of your own home with the help of a Personal Menu Planner designed for your weight goal. You will learn to choose wisely from nourishing, satisfying ordinary foods. But you will not be alone. Each week you will receive by mail fresh, easy-to-apply diet counseling that is as authoritative as the most up-to-date scientific knowledge can produce. All guidance on nutritional problems is approved by the Club's panel of experts on nutrition (doctors, professors, and home economists). All guidance on the psychological aspects of nutrition and dieting is approved by the Club's panel of psychiatrists.

HELP OTHERS AS YOU ACHIEVE YOUR OWN WEIGHT GOAL

The Ladies' Home Journal food editors and kitchens will supplement this scientific counseling with a constant flow of diet recipes, menus and kitchen tips. And because of the unique scientific design of the Club program, you will contribute to medical research, without extra effort or disclosure of your confidential records, by voluntarily furnishing information to our Diet Data Bank. We hope and expect that this accumulated experience will help many other people to achieve their weight goals, as you can.

WHAT THE CLUB WILL DO FOR YOU

As soon as you fill out and send us the attached confidential membership application, you will receive from the Club:

1. A suggested realistic, permanent weight goal as determined by your sex, age, weight history, your body build and your life style.

2. Your Personal Menu Planner with five ample food lists so you can select for yourself the foods you prefer, yet restrict your caloric intake to a sensible level. The variety from which you choose will allow you to satisfy your craving for food and minimize the monotony that so often turns dieting into torture. Your food selection list is designed to insure an adequate level of nutrition, which is most important in any weight control program. Losing weight with the Ladies' Home Journal Diet Club can be educational and even fun!

3. Your Diet Progress Chart to keep track of your weight losses, day by day, through the very effective first three months as you achieve your primary objective. The chart continues for an entire year so you can make sure that you keep your weight and figure where you want them, or even lose a few additional pounds.

4. Your copies of the Journal Diet Club Newsletters and Magazine. The Newsletters will arrive each week except for one week at which time you will receive the very authoritative and handsome Magazine. These publications will be like nothing you have ever read before. They will be packed with brief, practical diet, nutritional and exercise advice — information and inspiration ready to be used right now! Answers to diet questions that you send us. Tips on how to organize your refrigerator. What to do about cocktails. How to cut down on fats. How to diet in restaurants or in front of friends. How to speed weight control through exercise. And, always, detailed personal case reports of successful dieters — their problems and how you can overcome them.

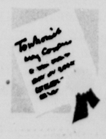
Then, every two weeks, you will get a simple form so you can deposit your new weight in the Club's Diet Data Bank. Results will be analyzed and reported in the Club publications so you can match your own progress against the performance of other club members.

Some dieters love company. If you do, you can hold your own coffee klatsch among your friends and neighbors for mutual support. We shall supply simple instructions to make these get-togethers rewarding, sociable and calorie-controlled.

A delightful way to add even more enjoyment to your Diet Club membership is to have a friend join at the same time you enroll. Then, whenever you feel like it, and perhaps even daily, the two of you can compare each other's successes. When one dieter makes even more progress than the other, it provides inspiration and incentive for the one whose progress isn't so great. And talking about your experiences, about your diets, about taking in waistlines, about receiving unexpected compliments . . . all that is such fun when you have someone to share your thrills and success. If you have a friend who wants to join you, just ask her to write us for her own membership application.

WHEN DO YOU RECEIVE YOUR MASTER DIETER CERTIFICATE?



Just as soon as you reach your desired weight goal, you will receive your Master Dieter's Certificate. At that time, you will also receive an appropriately liberalized Menu Planner to maintain your new reduced weight and more attractive figure permanently without backsliding.

When you maintain your weight goal for a certain time, you will be eligible for prizes for the slim new YOU. Even better, you will take satisfaction in knowing that you succeeded where so many failed. You will think better of yourself, and so will your family. Ask anybody who ever took weight off and kept it off: There is no better feeling, no achievement more rewarding in admiring glances, in sincere compliments, and in being able to wear a much wider selection of those smart, smaller sized fashions.

WHAT THE CLUB WON'T DO

The Club won't fool you by pretending that weight reduction is easy. It won't lure you with promises of magic methods. It won't saddle you with fads, crash diets or rituals that become so inflexible and distasteful that you would soon give up and regain your hard-lost weight. If you lose an average of only one to two pounds weekly on your Club diet, we will have fulfilled realistic objectives. We believe that this goal is feasible. Even more importantly, you will have established a new way of life so that these lost pounds will stay off. The Club does not encourage your use of drugs; if medications seem necessary, they would only be used under recommendation and direct supervision of your personal physician (and we do strongly urge you to stay in touch with him while you lose weight). Finally, the Club won't treat you as a greedy, immature neurotic, but as a responsible individual who can master the weight problem on your own, once we supply the know-how, the scientific tools and sympathetic support.

YOU HAVE NOTHING TO LOSE BUT POUNDS

If you adhere to the regimen doctor-designed for you, you will achieve your reduced weight goal. Your bathroom scales will report your success; your mirror will reflect a more slender you.

If you do not lose weight, if you conscientiously remain on the diet and it does not work for you, your entire Journal Diet Club Membership costs will be refunded. So you have nothing to lose but pounds; everything to gain. Rush back this no-risk Membership Application TODAY.

Sincerely,

LADIES' HOME JOURNAL DIET CLUB

Dorothy Holmes

(Mrs.) Dorothy Holmes

PLEASE READ THIS CAREFULLY BEFORE FILLING OUT THE APPLICATION FORM BELOW:

If you are now pregnant or if you are a nursing mother, the Journal Diet Club cannot accept your membership because your nutrition should be closely and directly supervised by your doctor; for the same reason, you should consult your doctor about your diet and follow his instructions if you become pregnant while you are a club member.

Sorry but we cannot accept your application if you are over 65 or under 18 . . . or if you have a particular medical problem, in which case you should diet only under the close personal supervision of your family physician. And no men, please—our Diet Club is exclusively for women.

Please follow the directions below with utmost care. Your exact wrist measurement is required to help calculate your over-all body build. The measurement should be taken with a cloth tape measure, with arm extended and fingers spread out, just below the widest protrusion of your wrist-bone (see drawing at right). The tape measure should be pulled snug, but not tight enough to indent the skin.

YOU MAY HAVE PIN-WORMS
AND NOT KNOW IT

Fidgeting, loss of sleep and a tormenting itch are often telltale signs of Pin-Worms . . . ugly parasites that medical experts say infest 1 out of every 3 persons examined. Entire families may be victims and not know it.

To get rid of Pin-Worms, they must be killed in the large intestine where they live and multiply. That's exactly what Jayne's P-W tablets do . . . and here's how they do it:

First—a scientific coating carries the tablets into the bowels before they dissolve. Then—Jayne's modern, medically-approved ingredient goes right to work—kills Pin-Worms quickly, easily. Ask your pharmacist.

Don't take chances with dangerous, highly contagious Pin-Worms which infect entire families. Get genuine Jayne's P-W Vermifuge . . . small, easy-to-take tablets . . . special sizes for children and adults.

GLEN CAMPBELL

How a Country Boy Survives Stardom

Glen and his wife Billie with part of their family—Travis, Kelli, and Debbie.

HE WAS LATE. His hotel suite was in confusion. His managers were making muffled phone calls to locate him.

Fifteen minutes later he rambled in—big Glen Travis Campbell in a big green suit, abundant blond hair, holding a big cigar. After an enveloping handshake, he headed immediately to the amplifier, fiddled intently with the dials, picked up a guitar, and absent-mindedly strummed some random sounds.

Glen Campbell, the country-boy star in the hectic world of tv, music, and movies is anything but hectic himself. He has about as much hustle and bustle as a stroller on the main street of his home town of Delight, Ark.

"Delight is just a little town of 290 people, last I knew. Everybody knows everybody. We lived eight miles out on a farm." (Strum, strum) Glen says that a guitar at least gives him something to do with his hands, and he punctuates his comments with strums.

Glen got married when he was only 17. "Didn't last long," he admits. "A conflict of personalities. I was too young." There was a daughter, Debbie, 9, from that marriage. She spends summers with Glen and his present family.

At 21, he married Billie Nunley. He met her while playing with his own band in Albuquerque. "Perhaps you were more ready for marriage this time?" I suggested. "Not much," he laughed. "My wife is a great person, though. Sensitive, a great mother and wife. She's a gas!" (Strum, strum)

The Campbells live in Laurel Canyon above Los Angeles in the same "nice little house" they have had for four years. Glen spent most of that time accompanying other singers and doing a few of his own releases for Capitol Records. None, however, caused much of a stir.

Then in 1967 he became a smash with "Gentle on My Mind." Its success made Tom Smothers aware that his tv program's guitarist had a voice and would be a worthy summer replacement for the Smothers Brothers show last year.

Today Campbell has his own CBS-tv show which will resume its second year come September. He also has been signed to make six movies. In the first, "True Grit," he costars with John Wayne, a boyhood idol. "I used to pick cotton to get the money for all his movies," Glen said.

Glen's and Billie's children, Travis, 3, and Kelli, 7, are being raised "different, not better, than the way I grew up," he says. "I think Mom and Pop did a good job. I'd like my kids to grow up where I did—the sticks. They'd get a much better outlook on life than in Los Angeles."

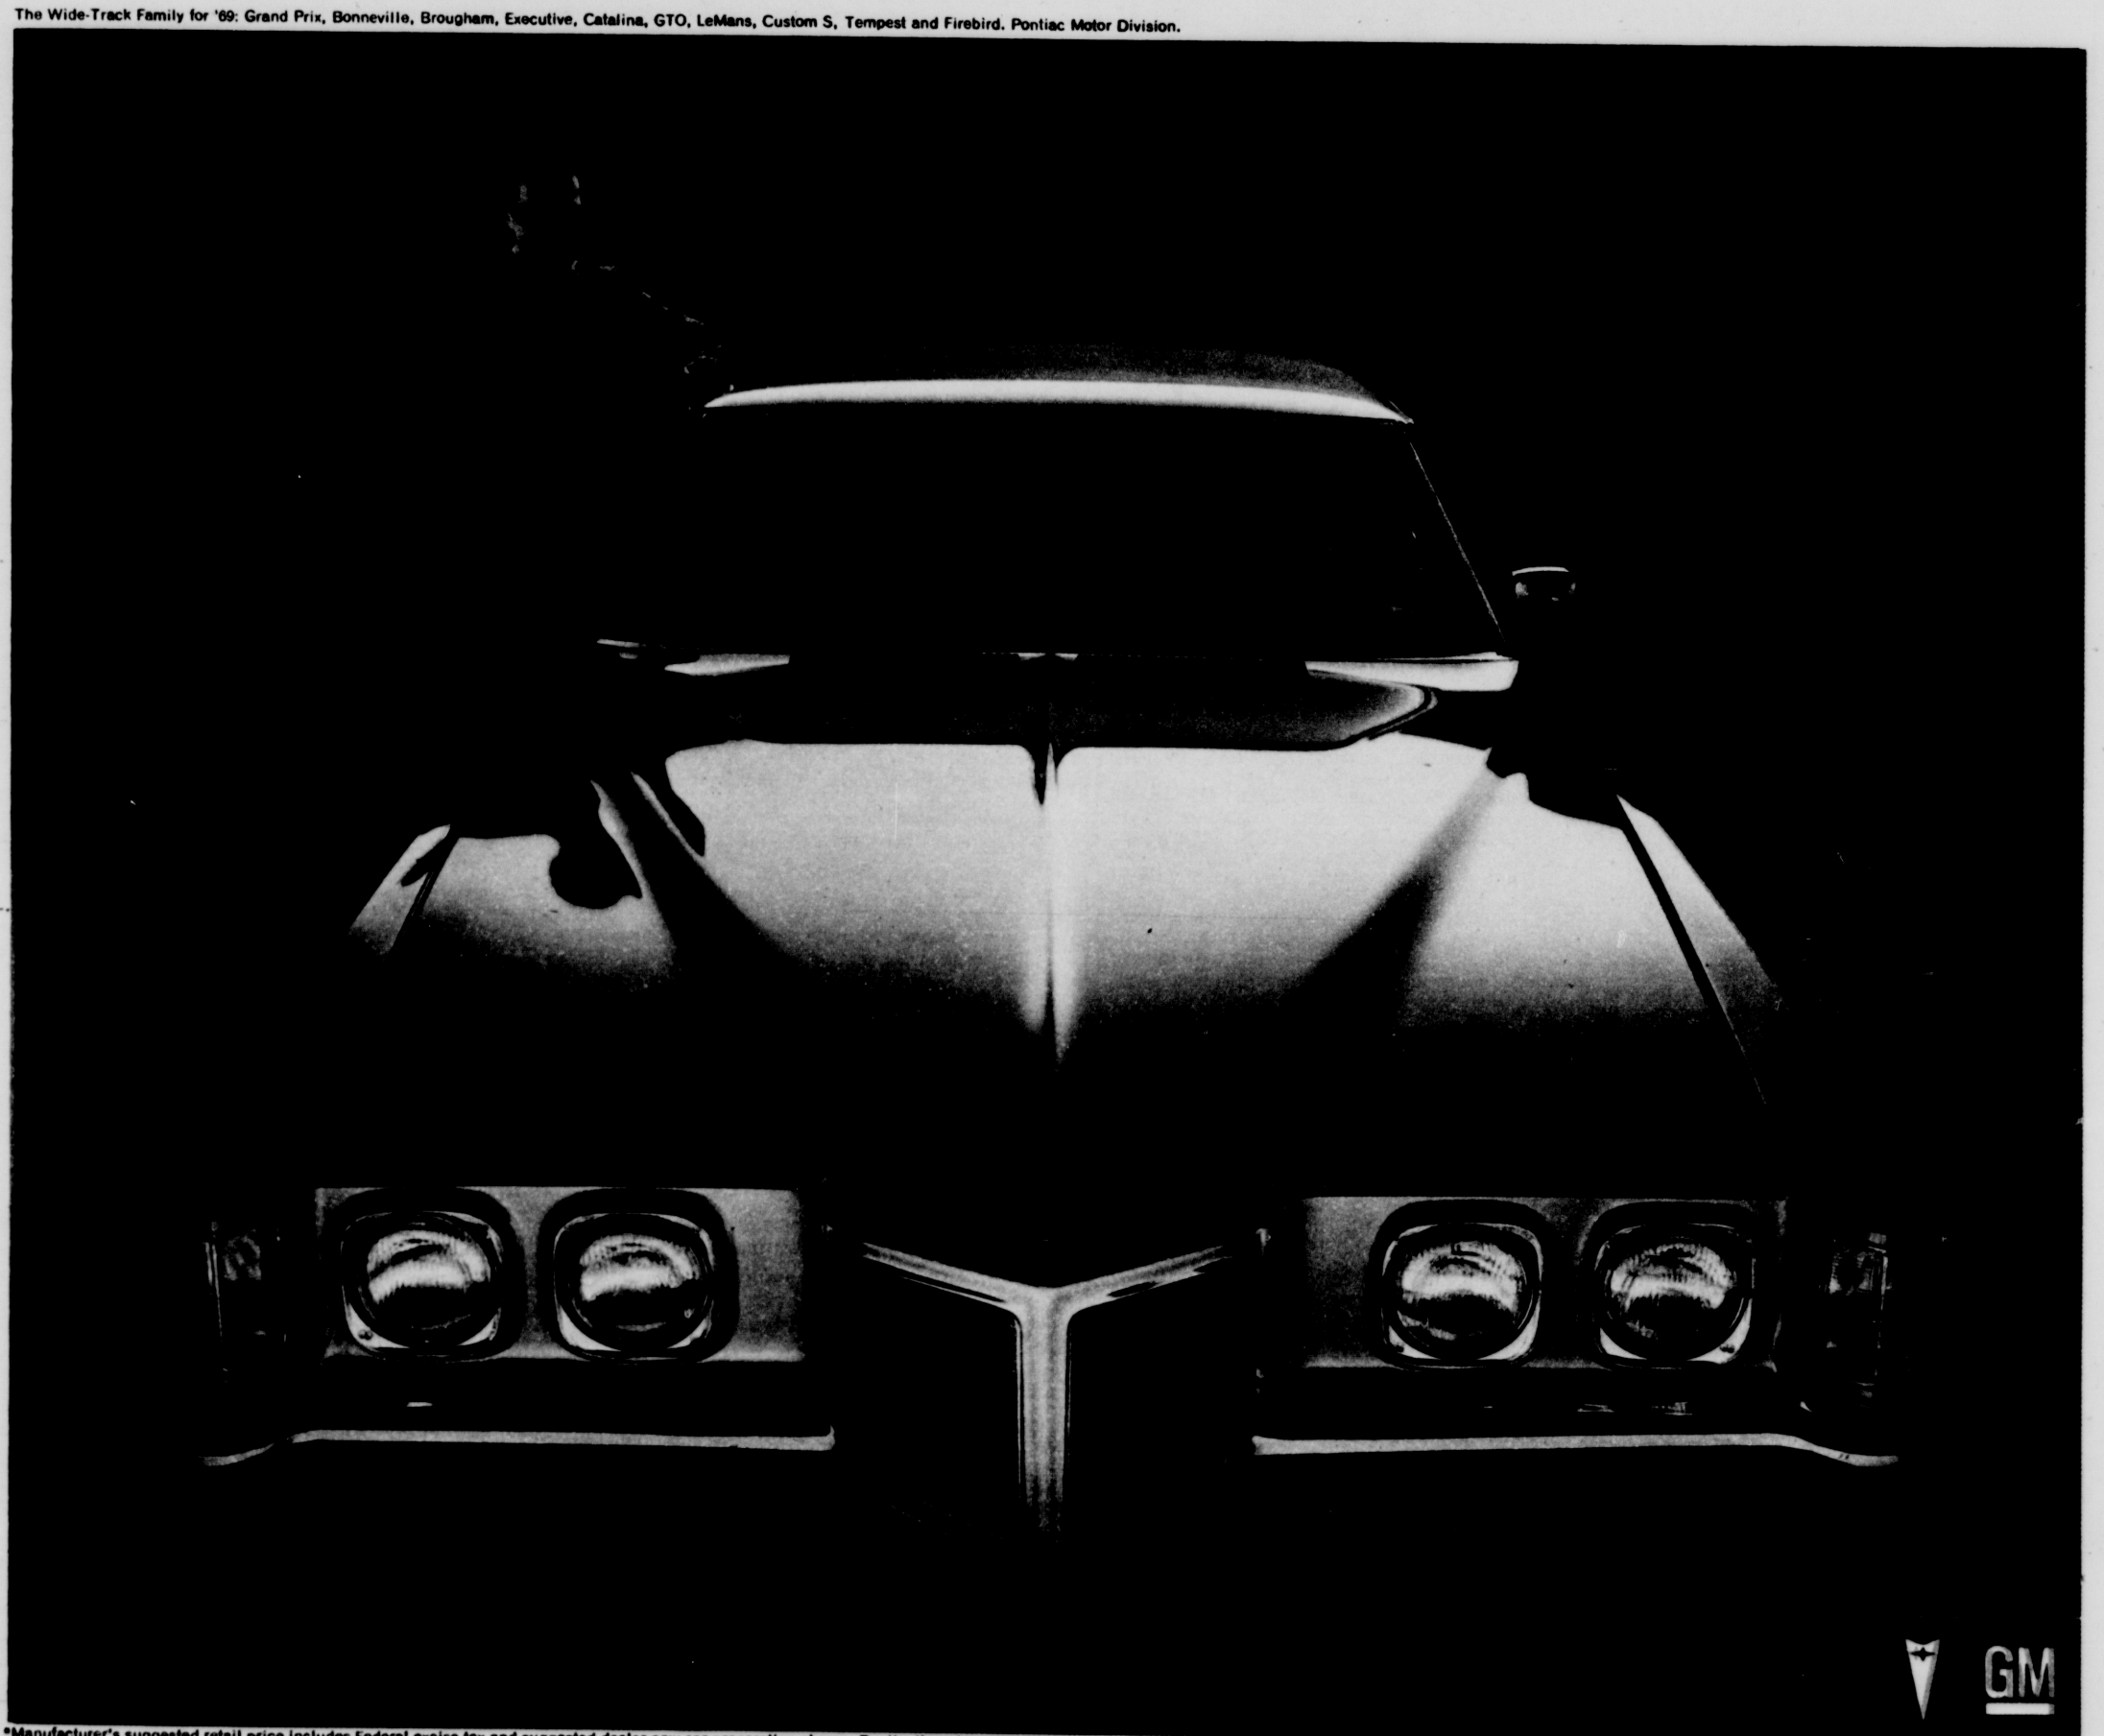
He himself never finished high school and regrets it now. "But," he adds quickly, "ever since I can remember, this here guitar (strum, strum) was all I ever knew. My father got me a mail-order one when I was four. I was on the radio, regular, by the time I was six."

Glen is 30, right on that "don't-trust-anyone-over-30" borderline. But his fans are in all age groups. "They look at life so differently. When they stop me on the street, I like to ask them what they think."

Recently a third child, Wesley, was born. Like the other children, Wesley's not being baptized. Says Glen, "We'll wait and let them pick their own religion." His only comment on the new arrival: "He's a gas." Strum, strum. —TERRY SCHAERTEL

What kind of people buy a new '69 Pontiac Grand Prix at this time of year?

The Wide-Track Family for '69: Grand Prix, Bonneville, Brougham, Executive, Catalina, GTO, LeMans, Custom S, Tempest and Firebird. Pontiac Motor Division.



*Manufacturer's suggested retail price includes Federal excise tax and suggested dealer new car preparation charge. Destination charges, state, local taxes and optional equipment additional. Add for options shown: outside remote-control mirror—$10.53; Soft-Ray windshield—$29.49.

Not just anyone would. It takes a smart shopper.

Someone who flipped over Grand Prix's styling the first time he saw it back in September.

He's impressed by Grand Prix's handling. And luxury. Especially the cockpit interior. But it's G.P.'s power that really turns him on. The standard 400-cube V-8. Or one of the 428-cube V-8s he can order.

Obviously, he's sold on the '69 Grand Prix. But he's also patient. He's been waiting. For just the right time. For the best possible deal.

Now his wait is over.

He's a smart shopper. A very smart shopper. Maybe you? Find out at your local Pontiac dealer's. And soon.

Good news for the 20 million men and women in the U.S.A. who have had Heart Attacks...

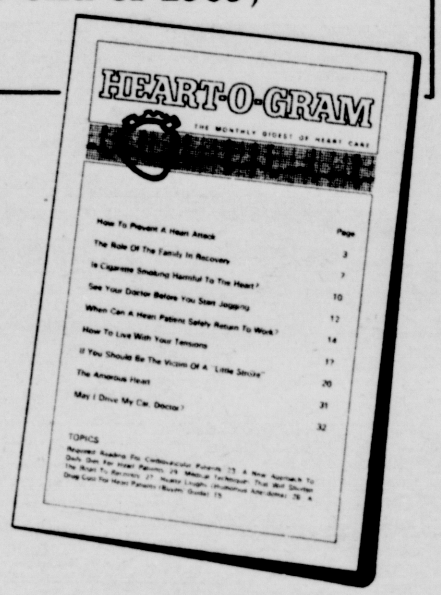
Or have a Cardio-Vascular Condition

(and the 500,000 who can expect to have one before the end of 1969)



The information in this new magazine can speed recovery and help you lead a normal life. It can prevent a recurrence—in fact, as one important heart specialist says, "It can conceivably save 200,000 lives each year."

Medical science now knows that heart disease is not inevitable, not a penalty of aging, not hereditary – due to "a weakness that runs in the family."

Coronary heart disease is our own fault. In large measure, we create it – in the way we live – and we can prevent it.

Yet despite the warnings often sounded by family and friends, the annual toll from heart attacks is appalling. Each day 1,400 Americans lose their lives through heart disease. And another 500 more succumb each day from cerebral brain strokes.

Continuing research proves conclusively that the way we live, what we eat, our smoking habits, how we control our tensions, how we exercise are directly responsible, not only for the original heart attack – but for our chances for a complete recovery.

Your doctor knows you – and your condition. But remember, he is a busy man. Pamphlets, brochures, papers from various organizations have been available to the public, many of them containing excellent information on specific topics relating to heart disease.

This material is not always available to the average person.

A Much-Needed Magazine Is Born – A Heart Patient's Guide To Better Living

HEART-O-GRAM fills a long-felt need. It is a monthly magazine, edited by doctors and written in layman's language.

Published monthly, HEART-O-GRAM comes to your home or office. It contains "Do's and Don't's" for heart patients, menus and recipes, diet information, tips on daily living—work habits—hobbies—activities—human interest stories about other heart patients.

HEART-O-GRAM assembles all the current and important information about the heart—medical and non-medical—in one easy-to-read monthly journal.

It can shorten the road to recovery.

What Doctors Say About HEART-O-GRAM

"Serves a real need . . ."
"Will help in the fight against heart disease."
"Should be recommended to every patient."
"A fine project."
"Written in layman's language, is a real asset."
"Education needs consistence."

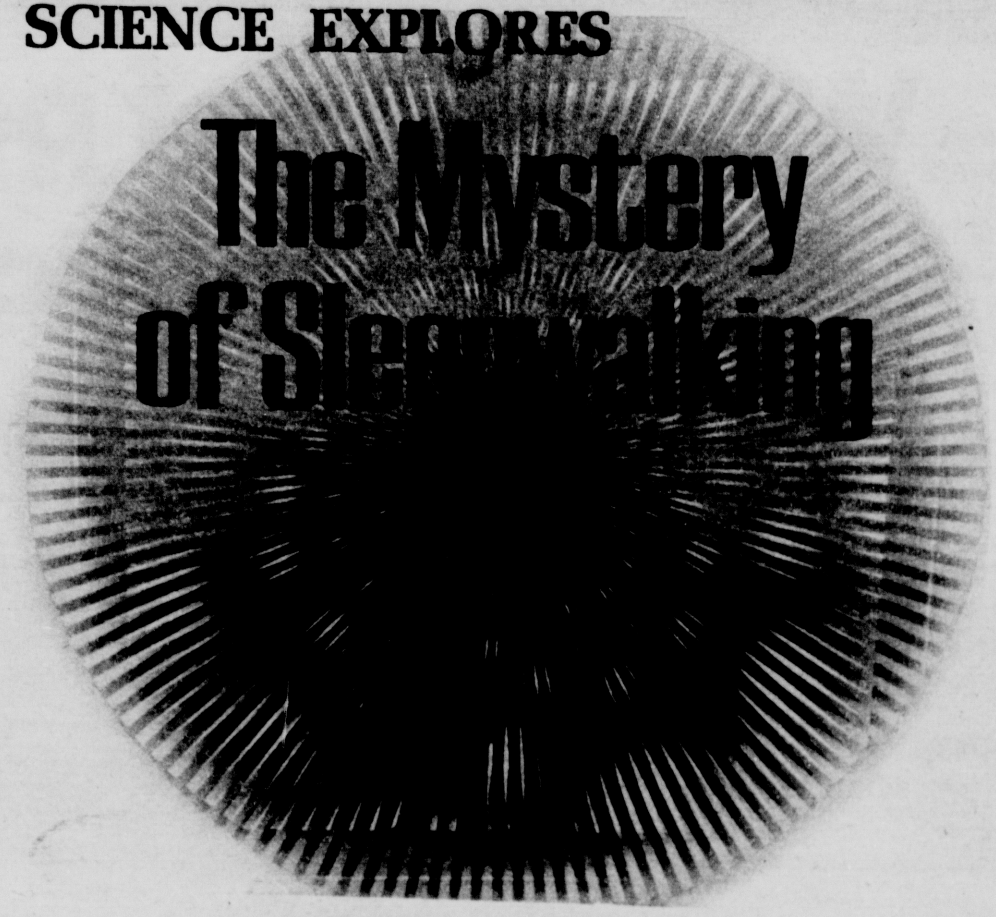
SCIENCE EXPLORES

The Mystery of Sleepwalking



MAN HAS long wondered about the phenomenon of sleepwalking. Are sleepwalkers magically protected from harm? Are they potentially dangerous? What motivates their strange behavior?

Until recently, the answers were based on myth. Now science is studying the subject much more objectively and has come up with some very surprising facts to counter the fiction.

How many sleepwalkers are there today?

"The clinical estimate is that there are about four million sleepwalkers in the U.S.," says Dr. Joost M. Meerloo, New York School of Psychiatry. But many never leave their bedrooms.

What causes sleepwalking in most adults?

Dr. S. L. Andelman, a specialist in public health and a medical columnist says, "Adult cases of sleepwalking are associated with financial woes, marital problems, or other worries. When they are solved, the sleepwalking often stops." If new difficulties arise, it is likely to resume.

Is sleepwalking safe?

No. Some may go their way unharmed. A woman, for example, got up, dressed, slid behind the wheel of her car, and drove safely 23 miles. Yet some have suffered serious injuries—falling from windows or off of roofs. There was even a lad who stepped out the door of a car on the San Diego freeway. One woman drank disinfectant; a man stabbed himself.

Do sleepwalkers perform superhuman stunts?

There is no such proof. However, according to New York psychiatrist Dr. Ernst Jolowicz, it is true that since the sleepwalker has no inhibitions, he can exert great physiological powers.

Do sleepwalkers murder?

There have been a few rare cases reported. Dr. Edward Podolsky in Diseases of the Nervous System tells of a man who shot and killed his wife. The husband testified at his trial that he had not awakened until several hours after the crime and that he did not even hear the shot he fired. The jury found this incredible until medical evidence supported it.

Which age groups have the most sleepwalkers?

Dr. Allan Jacobson, Dr. Anthony Kales, and associates at the University of California at Los Angeles say somnambulism is practiced mainly by children, with boys out-numbering girls. It seems to be caused by an immaturity of the central nervous system.

Do sleepwalkers remember their escapades?

No. Upon awakening, they have no recollection of what they did.

Is it safe to awaken the sleepwalker?

For his own safety, he should either be led back to bed or awakened—just be sure that the walker is not in a dangerous position, where he might lose his balance. Actually, according to UCLA's Doctor Kales, since walkers can thrash about on waking, you are the one who should be careful. You might receive a blow of extraordinary force.

WHAT'S BETTER (and less costly) than buying a complete school wardrobe for your little girl? Sewing one. With easy-to-follow instructions, you can make one that encompasses the latest styling and interchangeable parts!

To wit: create a dazzling hat and overcoat, complete with fringed scarf, that turns a coordinating dress, jumper, or skirt into a costume; fashion a pair of contrasting pants(in the new wider leg) to keep little ones warm on the way to school; sew a color-mated knit shirt or turtleneck that interchanges with a skirt or pants, or nestles snugly under a jumper. And, for a quick change after school, make a great-looking jumpsuit (the kind that zips down the front with ease) to slip your youngster into.

The trick to making this wardrobe is to keep the fabric formula simple: three solid colors and a bright plaid will provide enough variety. Using remnant pieces for trim is a clever way to eliminate waste while coordinating your child's wardrobe.

These simple up-to-the-minute silhouettes were created exclusively for FAMILY WEEKLY readers by children's-wear designer Gabriele Knecht of Swak.

DEAR POLLY—My daughter is getting married in August. I bought a walnut recipe file and ordered her new name imprinted on file cards. I am giving these cards to her close friends and asking them to write favorite recipes on them and sign their names at the bottom. They will return these cards to me to go in the file box which I will take to her shower.—MRS. L. J. DeR.

DEAR POLLY---When cutting out material that ravels I place a sheet on a table or the bed, put the material on top of it and then cut. When finished the sheet is gathered up and the ravelings and strings shaken out into the bathtub. Then I wipe them up with a facial tissue and throw into the waste basket. Mess is gone with little effort.---MRS. A. H.

Polly's note: Dampening the tissue would help, too.

DEAR POLLY—To give my hair a silkier look I always rinse it with vinegar. It always comes out beautiful.—LESLIE

Polly pays a dollar for every idea used. Send them to her, care of this newspaper.

DEAR POLLY---A discarded fish bowl makes an excellent mixing bowl to use for beating or whipping cream or egg whites. The rim keeps the contents from splashing.---REBA

DEAR POLLY—A Pointer suggested giving baby food as a baby shower gift. This reminded me of the best gift I received at such a shower. It was a box of disposable diapers for my sixth baby. It was nice not to wash diapers those first few days after coming home with the new baby.—ANOTHER MARY

DEAR POLLY---When traveling with a baby, carry a spring type clothespin in your purse. This is great for holding a napkin around the child's neck while he eats.---PHYLLIS

DEAR POLLY—One day I ran out of waxed paper and tried the following when making a pie. I slit a plastic bread bag down one side and across the end and had a marvelous surface for rolling out the crust. Dough does not stick to this as it sometimes does to waxed paper and a piece can be reused several times.—MRS. D. A. C.

DEAR POLLY---Before wearing new shoes for the first time I rub a dry cake of soap on the inside of the heel. The shoe slides on more easily and there is less chance of a blister.---IRENE

WHAT IN THE WORLD!

Say, Can You See? You read a lot about flag-burning but not much about flag-waving. This surprises Harry Heltzer, president of 3M Company, who started a modest program offering American flag stickers on a reflective material. Within three weeks, 3M had 875,000 orders. The company expects several million orders in a matter of months.

Hob Nob With so many British aristocrats struggling with the enormous taxes on their ancestral estates, and so many Amercians curious about this almost extinct way of life, a young London banker opened a new business to satisfy both. About his "Country Homes and Castles" program, David Morse says, "American tourists apply to be weekend house guests (paid) and enjoy the same hospitality we offer our friends." That includes meeting neighbors and sharing elegant dinners, complete with brandy, before a blazing fire, served by liveried family retainers. The all-inclusive prepaid rate is "suitable" and too crass to mention further.

Poodle Palaces The cost of housing is going sky-high. That includes doghouses. James De Vries of New York City has a thriving business selling doghouses in the $250 to $750 range. They are really pieces of scaled-down furniture (a Ming dynasty bed, shown here, which also serves as a coffee table), which you could use even if you didn't have a dog. De Vries gets a little huffy if you question high-priced dog dwellings. "If a woman spends $3,000 for a dress, why not $500 for her dog! Besides, I'm also designing houses for the disadvantaged dog—at $100 or so!"

No Bugs Here Youngsters often bring their parents to the "star" show at Rochester's Strasenburgh Planetarium, recent recipient of the New York State Council on the Arts award. One day some 235 sat in rapt silence, watching the domed ceiling as pinpoints of light representing thousands of stars glowed in the dark. The audience was impressed at how much it was like sitting in a park on a clear summer night. Suddenly a little voice cried, "Mom, are the mosquitoes out?"

Light on Romance British singer-actress Petula Clark ("Good-bye, Mr. Chips,") told Family Weekly how she met her French husband, Claude Wolfe. "This Paris record company wanted me to sing for them in French. But I couldn't speak French and didn't intend to learn. During our argument, the office lights went out, and everyone began screaming, 'Claude, help us!' Someone stumbled in and fixed the light. He ignored me, didn't speak English, but I couldn't take my eyes off him. 'Who's that?' I asked. 'Our public-relations man' somebody answered. 'If you decide to cut a French record, he will take you around.' I decided to make a little effort." Now Petula and Claude are bilingual.

Should Know About Lawyers

as important to you as your family doctor—and should be same careful consideration

By SAMUEL G. KLING
Author of "The Complete Guide to Everyday Law"

Many lawyers obtain clients, especially when negligence is involved, in this unethical manner. Under the code of ethics of the American Bar Association, no attorney is permitted to solicit business directly or indirectly; nor is he allowed to pay those who refer legal business to him.

Is it wrong to sign a power of attorney in an accident case?

Not as a rule—but certainly don't when it is presented by an "ambulance-chasing" attorney or his representative, who asks that he be allowed to represent you. Otherwise, there is no objection. A power of attorney simply authorizes the lawyer to represent the client in a given matter, under the terms that are defined in the contract.

What are those terms?

They usually authorize the attorney to represent the client in negotiating a settlement. But, if the latter is impossible, the lawyer will then institute a suit on behalf of the client against the defendant. For such services, the attorney usually charges a percentage fee of the amount recovered. If nothing is recovered, either by settlement or suit, usually no fee is charged.

Who determines a proper settlement?

Usually the attorney does, but he rarely ever makes any settlement without the approval of his client.

What happens if the client isn't satisfied with the settlement?

Depending on which action has been taken, he may ask his attorney either to reopen negotiations or to file suit. He may also dismiss his lawyer, provided he has compensated him for legal services already rendered.

How can one engage counsel in a nonnegligence matter if he has no funds?

He can seek assistance from one of the many legal-aid societies throughout the country. These are listed in the Yellow Pages of the telephone directory under "Lawyers—Legal Aid." To be eligible for the services of a Legal Aid Society, a client must prove that his income and assets are so inadequate that he can't afford to pay any fee. Legal Aid Society services are free. Most legal-aid societies are community-service agencies, supported by city or state contributions.

What is "Lawyers' Referral"?

This is a service provided by the local bar association. Any financially able person needing a lawyer is referred to one of the bar's members. Typically, the applicant pays a registration fee of about $1 for the referral. He pays the counsel a fixed fee of about $5 for the initial consultation that may last up to a half-hour.

Lawyers' Referral is halfway between free legal aid and private legal counsel. The fees charged for divorce, for example, are much less, since clients are apt to come from low-income groups. Many clients are directed to Lawyers' Referral by legal-aid societies if they can afford to pay some fee. It also is listed in the Yellow Pages.

Does a Legal Aid Society handle all cases?

It will not handle criminal or divorce cases. However, Lawyers' Referral handles all kinds of legal matters.

How Does Lawyers' Referral work?

It consists of a pool of lawyers who serve in rotation and provide a "potluck" of legal assistance. A client doesn't have a choice. He must hire the lawyer whose name currently heads the list. If he is dissatisfied, he may pay another consultation fee for the attorney next on the list.

What about representation in a criminal case if the defendant is without funds?

Under recent U.S. Supreme Court decisions, the accused is entitled to counsel at every stage of the criminal proceeding. This means that he has a right to be represented at the time of his arrest; when he is questioned by the police; when he signs a confession; when he is indicted; and when he is tried for the crime for which he is charged. All is at the expense of the state.

Is it good practice to retain counsel on an annual basis?

Yes, if the client's business so warrants. Many businessmen retain an attorney on an annual basis. They pay either a flat fee for all the routine legal work likely to come up during the year or a combination of a flat fee and additional fees for nonroutine matters such as litigation.

By far the best arrangement is for client and counsel to have a written contract that specifies the work to be done by the attorney or legal firm. Then there will be no misunderstandings about what the retainer covers.

How confidential is the relationship between attorney and client?

The most confidential known to the law. No lawyer is permitted to disclose information given to him by his client, even when the lawyer is called as a witness. For violation of his trust, an attorney may be subject to disciplinary action by his local bar association and to suit, if damages occur from a breach of the communication.

What responsibility does a lawyer have?

An attorney is both an officer of the court and the agent of the client who employs him. He has an obligation to be fair and honest with both. He undertakes to exercise ordinary care, skill, and diligence in handling the affairs of the client whose case he has accepted. A lawyer has the right to refuse to accept a client for any reason. Generally, any agreement by the attorney, within the scope of his authority and particularly any agreement respecting procedure or the conduct of the trial, binds the client.

The attorney must keep his client informed at all times of the state of his business and what action is being taken. However, this does not mean a blow-by-blow description of everything that is taking place. It means keeping his client posted on the major legal steps being taken.

What does a client owe his counsel?

The duty to give a full and fair disclosure of all the facts relevant to his case. Be sure to tell your attorney the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth. For only when counsel is in full possession of all the facts can he act intelligently on the matter. Many clients withhold facts in the mistaken belief that the less a lawyer knows about the real situation, the better. But, given all the facts, an attorney can determine which are relevant, which are harmful, and which are useful to his client's interests. No layman is qualified to do this. Presented with information that may be damaging, a careful attorney will prepare his defense accordingly, in order not to be caught unaware by the opposition.

Is criticism of the legal profession justified?

To some extent, yes. Bar associations haven't always been responsive to people's needs nor to law changes because most lawyers are conservative and interested in maintaining a status quo. Nor have attorneys gone after "ambulance chasers" and other abuses as diligently as they might. Most lawyers feel they're capable of handling any legal matter, no matter how complex or remote from their experience. So they hesitate to refer a case to a specialist. Law has become increasingly a matter of specialization. Today there are lawyers for every conceivable field. An attorney with no real expertise in tax law, for example, may be doing his client a grave injustice by not calling in a specialist.

On the other hand, few professions are better disciplined than the law. Admittedly, there are practicing shysters and thieves, just as there are quacks practicing medicine. But as a whole, the legal profession is highly regarded.

Should a lawyer defend a guilty person?

Yes. Everyone accused of crime is entitled to a defense. Under our system of law, a defendant's guilt or innocence is determined not by his attorney, but by a jury or by a judge serving as a substitute for a jury. A lawyer's function is to present the facts in their most favorable light to see that the accused gets a fair trial. ◆
